It supports these policies: Federal administration and management of National forests; adequate appropriations for their care and management; Federal co-operation with the States—especially in forest fire protection. State activity by acquirement of forest lands; organization for fire protection; encouragement of forest planting by communal and private owners; non-political departmentally independent forest organization, with liberal appropriations for these purposes. Forest fire protection by Federal, State and fire protective agencies, and its encouragement and extension, individually and by co-operation; without adequate fire protection all other measures for forest crop production will fail. Forest planting by Federal and State Governments and long-lived corporations, and acquirement of waste lands for this purpose; and also planting by private owners where profitable, and encouragement of natural regeneration. Forest taxation reforms removing unjust burdens from owners of growing timber. Closer utilization in logging and manufacturing without loss to owner; aid to lumbermen in achieving this. Cutting of mature timber where and as the domestic market demands it, except on areas maintained for park or scenic purposes, and compensation of forest owners for loss suffered through protection of watersheds, or on behalf of any public interest. Equal protection to the lumber industry and to public interests in legislation affecting private timberland operations, recognizing that lumbering is as legitimate and necessary as the forests themselves. Classification by experts of lands best suited for farming and those best suited for forestry; and liberal National and State appropriations for this work.

The membership of the association is close to 10,000 in every State in the Union, every Province in Canada and every civilized and semi-civilized country in the world. The subscribing membership is $3.00 a year; contributing membership is $10.00 a year; sustaining membership is $25.00 a year and life membership is $100.00. Members receive each month the American Forestry Magazine which contains articles on everything pertaining to trees.

President—Dr. Henry S. Drinker, South Bethlehem, Pa. Treasurer—John E. Jenks, Washington, D. C. Executive Secretary—Percival S. Ridsdale, Washington, D. C.

AMERICAN WOOD-PRESERVERS' ASSOCIATION.

President—J. H. Waterman, Galesburg, Ill. First Vice-President—H. S. Loud, New York City.
Secretary-Treasurer—F. J. Angier, Baltimore, Md.

The objects and purposes of the association shall be to advance the wood-preserving industry in all its branches; to afford its members opportunities for the interchange of ideas with respect to improvements in the wood-preserving industry, and for the discussion of all matters bearing upon the industry of wood preserving; to maintain a high business and professional standard in all respects, and to standardize specifications for wood preservatives and their introduction into the materials to be preserved.

The means to be employed for these purposes shall be meetings for the presentation and discussion of appropriate papers, and for social and professional intercourse; the publication of such papers and discussions as may be deemed expedient; co-operation with other societies, associations and organizations in the work of standardizing specifications affecting the wood-preserving industry, and all other things incidental or conducive to the attainment of the objects of the association or any of them, and as the members may from time to time consider advisable.

Next annual convention will be held in Chicago, January 18, 19 and 20, 1916.

UNITED STATES BUREAU OF PLANT INDUSTRY.

THE Bureau of Plant Industry studies plant life in all its relations to agriculture. It investigates the diseases of fruit and forest trees, truck crops and other plants, and carries on field tests and demonstrations of their control and prevention. It studies the bacteriological problems connected with plant production and also the factors of plant nutrition and distributes cultures of nitrogen-gathering bacteria for the inoculation of the seed of leguminous crop plants. It is engaged in the improvement of crops by breeding and selection and the acclimatization and adaptation of new crops and varieties. It is encouraging the production of drug-producing crops and other special crops, and is studying the general physiological problems influencing the growth of plants. In co-operation with the Bureau of Animal Industry and the Forest Service it is conducting a campaign for the eradication of poisonous plants, especially in the vast stock-grazing areas of the West. It is investigating various technological problems in connection with crop production, particularly with reference to fruit and paper-producing plants and to the standardization and handling of grain. It is engaged in the study of various phases of economic botany and in the devising of methods for the improvement of forest-grazing areas. It is carrying on a propaganda in the interest of good seeds for the farmer and the improvement in the quality of farm seeds. It is conducting extensive work in the breeding and testing of the principal field crops, such as the small grains, corn, cotton, tobacco, forage crops, and sugar-producing plants, with special reference to the improvement of these crops. It is engaged in the operation of testing stations in the semi-arid regions for the co-operative investigation of the problems encountered in crop production under the conditions existing in those areas. The adaptation and breeding of crops is a special feature of this work, which also includes physical determinations of the factors influencing plant growth in those regions.

It is conducting horticultural studies of garden crops and maintains an experimental farm for this and other lines of the work of the bureau. It is engaged in investigations of the transportation and storage of fruits, and in the general upbuilding of the fruit industry. It maintains greenhouses and trial grounds for the work of plant propagation and improvement. It is engaged in the introduction of seeds and plants from foreign countries and in the operation of plant introduction and testing gardens to aid in the development of new plant industries. It is also engaged in the Congressional distribution of seeds and plants.

THE UNITED STATES PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE.*RUPERT BLUE, SURGEON-GENERAL.

THE United States Public Health Service is a bureau of the Treasury Department. The head of the bureau is a commissioned medical officer, with the title of Surgeon-General. The work of the service is administered, under the direction of the Surgeon-General, by seven bureau divisions—Personnel and Accounts, Scientific Research, Foreign and Insular Quarantine, Domestic (Interstate) Quarantine, Sanitary Reports and Statistics, Marine Hospitals and Relief and Miscellaneous.

The commissioned corps of the service consists of medical officers of the following grades: Surgeon-General, Assistant Surgeons-General (chiefs of divisions of the bureau), Senior Surgeons, Surgeons, Passed Assistant Surgeons, and Assistant Surgeons. Appointments in the corps are made to the grade of Assistant Surgeon, after successful examination. Qualifications for examination are graduation from a reputable medical college, one year's hospital experience or two years' professional work after graduation, and testimonials from responsible persons as to professional and moral character. Applicants for examination must be between the ages of 23 and 32 years.

The Public Health Service maintains twenty-three marine hospitals and 120 other relief stations throughout the country. Fifty-one quarantine stations in the United States and twenty-five stations in its insular possessions are also operated, and eighty-five stations for the medical inspection of immigrants. Eighteen officers are stationed at American consulates abroad to assist in the administration of quarantine and the inspection of immigrants.

At the Hygienic Laboratory, located in the city of Washington, research work in connection with investigations of disease, sanitation and water pollution is carried on, and tests are made of the purity and potency of viruses, serums and toxins, with the supervision of the manufacture and sale of which the Public Health Service is charged by law.

The Public Health Service co-operates with State and local Boards of Health in the eradication of epidemic diseases, such as plague, cholera, yellow fever, typhus fever, smallpox and leprosy. Details of officers are also made, on request from State and municipal health authorities, to assist in the suppression of typhoid fever, infantile paralysis, cerebro-spinal meningitis, and other diseases. The Public Health Service has supervision of measures for the prevention of the spread of infectious and contagious diseases in interstate traffic; the administration of matters in relation to the Interstate Quarantine Regulations regarding the prevention of the use of the common towel and common drinking cup on vehicles or vessels operating in interstate traffic and the certification of water and ice furnished by common carriers for passengers in interstate traffic. Among the signal achievements of the service in recent years in the field of public health work have been the eradication of bubonic plague in California and Porto Rico, and the suppression of yellow fever in the South.

The personnel of the Public Health Service consists of 186 commissioned medical officers, 262 acting assistant surgeons (physicians appointed locally and not subject to change of station), 50 pharmacists, 1,418 attendants and 129 other employees, a total of 2,045 persons. During the fiscal year 1915 53,331 patients were treated—14,329 in hospitals and 39,005 as dispensary or out-patients.

Owing to conditions in Europe the fiscal year 1915 witnessed a considerable decrease in the number of vessels inspected at quarantine stations, a total of 10,397 such inspections having been made, as compared with 14,128 in 1914. These vessels carried 612,026 passengers and crews, as compared with 1,549,570 in 1914. Fumigations to the number of 2,731 were made in 1914, as compared with 1,680 in 1915.

The same reasons caused a great reduction in the number of medical inspections of immigrants. The total inspections reached 562,263, as compared with 1,485,957 in 1914, and the number certified for rejection on account of physical or mental defect was 17,840, whereas in 1914 41,250 such certifications were made.

THE TORRENS SYSTEM OF REGISTRATION OF TITLES TO REAL ESTATE.

THE "Torrens System" or "Torrens Law" is a system of "Registration of Titles to Real Estate." It was devised in its present general form by Robert R. Torrens, and first promulgated in the form of law in South Australia in 1858. The "Registration of Titles to Land," however, was in use as early as 1811 in Austria and in 1855 in Hungary. Denmark registered such titles by judicial decree as early as 1550. The provisions of the later acts, however, differentiate the "Torrens" laws from these earlier forms. From South Australia the law spread to Queensland (1861), Tasmania (1862), New South Wales (1862), Victoria (1862), New Zealand (1870), Western Australia (1874), Fiji (1876), and New Guinea (1889). In all of these the registration of titles is compulsory on the alienation of crown lands, otherwise voluntary; only fee-simple titles may be registered. The title obtained by registration is indefeasible.

Almost immediately after the launching of the system in Australia it was adopted in British Honduras (1858), followed by British Guiana (1880) the Leeward Islands (1886), Jamaica (1888). The system was also adopted in Central America, Tabago, Trinidad, Turks Island, Wales, Norway, Denmark, Germany and Austria. In England a similar law was passed (1862) and Ireland (1865). In these leaseholds for life or for twenty years were brought in. Absolute, qualified or possessory titles may be registered in England; only absolute titles in Ireland.

In Canada the system was adopted in British Columbia (1871), Ontario (1885), Manitoba (1885), Nova Scotia (1904), Alberta (1906), and Saskatchewan (1906). Throughout Canada the act is compulsory on alienation of crown lands, except in British Columbia, and voluntary otherwise except in Ontario. It is wholly voluntary in Ontario and permissive only in parts of that province. An estate of any kind is entitled to registration except in Ontario, which is open only to fee simple and life or twenty-one-year leaseholds, and Alberta and Saskatchewan, which excludes any estate for less than three years.

The registration of land titles under statutes first known as "Torrens acts" or such in fact, has been adopted in many of the States; Illinois was the first to adopt it in 1895, the act, however, being held unconstitutional because under its provisions judicial powers were conferred on the examiners of titles and the recorders. In 1897, however, the law was substantially re-enacted with the objection obviated, and this latter act has stood the test of the courts.

The Ohio law of 1896 was attacked and repealed in 1898. This checked further legislation until in 1913, when the Constitution was amended. The California statute (1897) has obtained a favorable decision from the final court of that State, in what has proved a leading case—Robinson vs. Kerrigan. The system was adopted in Massachusetts in 1898 and from its adoption proceedings have been very active under it and a large number of decisions have fixed its principles there. Minnesota adopted the system in 1901, applying it arbitrarily only to counties of over 75,000 inhabitants. Oregon followed in the same year, shortly followed by the Philippine Islands (1902), Colorado (1903), Hawaii (1903), and the State of Washington (1907). New York, see statement below, adopted the system in 1908.

In all of these States the law is voluntary except in the Philippines (Government grants, compulsory); Hawaii (lands owned by corporations compulsory) and Illinois (decedent's estates). The unit of registration is the county and generally the Register of Deeds or similar officer is the recorder. The operation of the act is confined to estates in fee simple absolute except in Hawaii, which, like the English law, includes qualified and possessory titles. In all there is a judicial proceeding which is heard, except in Massachusetts, the Philippines, and Hawaii, in the local court having equity jurisdiction. The "suit" is analogous to one to quit title. In Hawaii the law was changed in 1914 so as to admit of registration of the estate or interest of a person instead of the possessory title being registered. Massachusetts has a special "Land Court," and the Territories "Courts of Land Registration." The proceedings are declared to be "in rem" in the three latter and in California. The facts are prepared for the court (based upon the petition or other pleadings) by officials generally known as examiners of title. These in California, Massachusetts, Minnesota, and Washington must be lawyers. The complaint or petition must set forth the names and addresses of all persons interested—jurisdiction over whom is obtained by service of summons either personally or by publication (the proceeding being "in rem"), and the allegations of the complaint may be traversed by any defendant. The local procedure varies widely, being generally conformed to the general procedure of the locality. In addition to the usual forms of service, the summons must be posted upon the property except in California, Minnesota, Oregon, Colorado, and Washington. If there be a contest—a hearing is had in the usual form and in due course a decree is entered by the court directing (or denying) registration of the title subject to whatever encumbrances may have been found existent, and a certificate and duplicate is thereupon issued by the Registrar. The decree after a varying period becomes absolute and conclusive. The time is thirty days in Massachusetts and the Philippines; ninety days in Colorado and Washington; six months in Minnesota, two years in Illinois and Oregon and five years in California. The title so registered is, generally speaking, indefeasible, the exceptions being by private parties for fraud, for varying periods and under varying conditions becoming absolutely indefeasible for this cause in Massachusetts, the Philippines, and Hawaii after one year. It is indefeasible as to boundaries except in Illinois, Minnesota, Oregon, Colorado, and Washington, and in those States where the adjacent property owners have been "brought in." It is also defeasible as to unrecorded leases not required by the law to be recorded. Such a title is defeasible in actions by the State or Federal Government, as for eminent domain, taxes, etc. It is stated to be indefeasible as to adverse possession in Oregon and the Philippines and by implication in the others.

In order to protect the indefeasible quality of the title held under registration, provision has been generally made for an "Assurance Fund," the proceeds of which are used for the reimbursement of any one injured (that is deprived of his property or his rights) by reason of the decree upon which the registration was based. Such a person must bring suit within a fixed period—in Hawaii and Massachusetts within six years; in Minnesota, the Philippines, Colorado, and Washington, six years, and in case of any disability an additional two years after its removal; in Illinois and Oregon within ten years, with the same disability clause. North Carolina and Indiana have also adopted the system. Constitutional amendment submitted in 1915 in Pennsylvania provided that new courts be established for carrying the system into effect. The Torrens bill was before the Legislature in Michigan in 1915.

THE LAW IN NEW YORK.

Chapter 444 of the laws of 1908, known as the "Land Title Registration law," became a law May 20, 1908, with the approval of the Governor. It became effective February 1, 1909. Stated in brief, it prescribes: Sec. 2. Any property or interest therein permitted to be registered may be brought under the operation of the act by filing a complaint, as provided by the Code of Civil Procedure; a natural person, a corporation, or person non sui juris may apply under the usual representation. Sec. 3. The application shall be made to the Supreme Court, Special Term (of the county where the land is situated), and the proceedings shall be "in rem." On an issue raised, trial is had in Special Term, but an issue of fact may be tried by jury as provided by the Code of Civil Procedure. Sec. 4. Should the business require a "Part" may be assigned as the "Title Part" of the Special Term, the Appellate Division shall formulate rules of practice before such part. Sec. 4. The various county clerks, or where there are "registrars" then those officials shall be "Registrars" of titles in their respective counties. The Registrars shall be county officers. Sec. 9. Before application is made for the registration of a title it must be examined and certified by an "official examiner of title," who must be a duly admitted attorney and counsellor-at-law in the courts of record of the State or a corporation duly incorporated under the laws of the State and duly authorized to guarantee or insure titles to real property in this State. The Court of Appeals shall prescribe rules for ascertaining the fitness of applicants for the office of examiners. An applicant is licensed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. He may be required to give a bond. In counties of not over 300,000 the examiner's certificate may be based upon searches and abstracts made by a domestic corporation organized to make and certify to searches and abstracts of title, such corporation to be not less than two years old.

Sec. 10. Any person or persons holding or claiming a fee simple or some right therein, or holding or claiming a contract to purchase such an estate, or who have or claim the power of appointing or disposing of such an estate, may make application for registry of his title. No lien upon an estate and no estate less than a fee may be registered unless the fee is first registered. All lesser estates to which the fee is found subject must be noted on the certificate.

Sec. 11. The complaint must name all parties having or claiming an interest or lien upon the property as shown by the examiner's certificate of title and such other parties as the court may direct, with their addresses; facts as to marriage age, etc., must be shown; "the People of the State of New York" must be made a defendant; the examiner's certificate is attached to the complaint as an exhibit.

Sec. 12. The examiner's certificate must be sworn to and if the examiner be a corporation, a policy of insurance of the title must accompany it, and shall be recoverable upon for ten years because of any error, fraud, omission or misdescription in the certificates. The certificate shall set forth the exact state of the title to be registered, with names and addresses and rights and interests of all persons in the property or in that adjoining same. Minutiae of title must be filed, those affecting property not to be registered being subsequently withdrawn on filing certified copies. The certificate shall include a description, which, after approval by the court, shall be used in the summons, etc. Sec. 13 provides also for a map by a competent surveyor showing adjacent lands and highways; it must be verified.

Sec. 14 provides for the filing of the usual "lis pendens" or notice of pendency of the action, with the usual effect of that notice. Sec. 15. Any person may file a "caution" (in the Registrar's office) requiring notice to him of any application for registration of the title to any piece of property showing his claimed right, in which case he must be served. The Registrar shall keep a locality index of all "cautions" so filed. Sec. 16. A non-resident may apply through an agent duly appointed.

Sec. 17. On the application and the examiner's certificate, if the court determines that plaintiff's title should be registered (for which determination he may require another examination of the title), it shall make an order directing the issuance of the summons and notice, which shall be served in manner as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure. Sec. 21. Any person interested may appear and defend, whether named as a defendant or not. Sec. 22. The court may find and decree in whom the title is vested; may remove clouds from the title; may determine as to the validity of liens, etc., etc., and may direct the Registrar to register such title either absolutely or as subject to any encumbrance. Sec. 23. The title to be registered must be free from reasonable doubt and the judgment is conclusive against the world, including infants, lunatics and those not yet in being. Sec. 24. Any registration may be set aside for fraud (except in the hands of an innocent purchaser) within ten years, but otherwise not after six months.

Sec. 25. The Registrar after final judgment shall register the title and issue a certificate and (Sec. 27) enter same in his records, issuing a duplicate (Sec. 28) to the owner.

Sec. 32. The person holding such a certificate, holds the property described free from all encumbrances except those noted thereon and any of the following: Liens, etc., of the United States not required to be of record; taxes, water rates, etc., laid after initial registration; leases not over one year and actual occupation; easements or servitudes accruing after initial registration and not requiring record. Property registered shall not be subject to adverse possession (33). When once registered property must remain registered. Registered property is transferred by ordinary deed to be filed with the Registrar and a "memorial" agreed on by vendor and vendee entered upon the original certificate, and he shall make out a new original and duplicate certificate certifying the ownership in the vendee; where the parties fail to agree on a statement to the Registrar, he shall not issue a new certificate. Provision is made (39) for the sale of a part only. A fee having been duly registered a mortgagee (48) may present a subsequently executed mortgage and have it registered (upon an agreed statement between the mortgagor and himself) upon the proper certificate in the registration book and upon the owner's duplicate. Judgments, decrees, attachments, executions, mechanics' or other liens must, on filing a transcript with the Registrar (49), be memorialized by the Registrar.

Assignments of mortgages, leases, etc., and releases are similarly treated (50-51). Procedure in foreclosure remains practically the same. Upon the death of the registered owner his heirs-at-law or devisees may obtain a new certificate on a final decree establishing the will or the intestacy and a proceeding, analogous to that for initial registration but relating back only to the time of the death of the former owner (Sec. 55).

The law establishes an assurance fund (Sec. 58) and upon each original registration there shall be paid to the Registrar one-tenth of one per centum of the value as shown by last local taxation, but if applicant takes registry without recourse to such fund, such tax shall not be exacted. Any person damaged (Sec. 59) by the order of registration may bring an action to recover from this fund; such action to be brought within six years (Sec. 61). To fraudulently procure or assist in procuring the registry of a title (or anything incident thereto) is made a felony, punishable by a fine of not exceeding $500, or imprisonment for five years, or both. The fees of the Registrar are not greatly in excess of the usual court fees in New York County. The Court of Appeals, in addition, requires a bond of $5,000, to run ten years, from the Examiners of Title. Up to this but few applications have been made for registration.

BRITISH INCOME-TAX PAYERS.

(American Consular Report, May, 1915.)

It is probable that the total number of income-tax payers in Great Britain is somewhat under 1,000,000, many workmen escaping payment of the tax because of the difficulty of obtaining an accurate record of individual earnings. In 1914 there were 709,356 assessments on individuals with incomes between £160 and £10,000 ($730 and $48,665) and 390 whose incomes exceeded the latter figure, the gross income of the 709,746 individuals being $1,228,226,600. Classified by incomes these tax payers numbered:

Pension at certain ages on account of service in the civil and Mexican wars. Act of May 11, 1912.

Any person who served ninety days or more in the military or naval service of the United States during the late civil war, and who has been honorably discharged therefrom, and who has reached the age of sixty-two years or over, on making proof of such facts is entitled to receive a pension as follows: Age sixty-two years—For a service of 90 days, $13.00 per month; 6 months, $13.50; 1 year, $14.00; 1½ years, $14.50; 2 years, $15.00; 2½ years, $15.50, and 3 years and more, $16.00. Age 66 years—For a service of 90 days, $15.00 per month; 6 months, $15.50; 1 year, $16.00; 1½ years, $16.50; 2 years, $17.00; 2½ years, $18.00, and 3 years and more, $19.00. Age 70 years—For a service of 90 days, $18.00 per month; 6 months, $19.00; 1 year, $20.00; 1½ years, $21.50; 2 years, $23.00; 2½ years, $24.00, and 3 years and more, $25.00. Age 75 years—For a service of 90 days, $21 per month; 6 months, $22.50; 1 year, $24.00; 1½ years, $27.00, and 2 years and more, $30.00. And such pension shall commence from the date of filing the application in the Bureau of Pensions. Any person who served sixty days or more in the war with Mexico, and who received an honorable discharge, is entitled to $30.00 per month. Any person who was wounded in battle or in line of duty in the civil war, and is now unfit for manual labor by reason thereof, or who from disease or other causes incurred in line of duty resulting in his disability, is now unable to perform manual labor, is entitled to $30.00 per month.

PASSPORT REGULATIONS.

1. AUTHORITY TO ISSUE—Section 4075 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended by the act of Congress approved June 14, 1902, provides that "the Secretary of State may grant and issue passports, and cause passports to be granted, issued, and verified in foreign countries by such diplomatic or consular officers of the United States, and by such chief or other executive officers of the insular possessions of the United States, and under such rules as the President shall designate and prescribe for and on behalf of the United States." The following rules are accordingly prescribed for the granting and issuing of passports in the United States:

2. BY WHOM ISSUED AND REFUSAL TO ISSUE—No one but the Secretary of State may grant and issue passports in the United States (Revised Statutes, sections 4075, 4078), and he is empowered to refuse them in his discretion.

Passports are not issued by American diplomatic and consular officers abroad, except in cases of emergency; and a citizen who is abroad and desires to procure a passport must apply therefor through the nearest diplomatic or consular officer to the Secretary of State.

Applications for passports by persons in Porto Rico or the Philippines should be made to the Chief Executives of those islands. The evidence required of such applicants is similar to that required of applicants in the United States.

3. FEE—By act of Congress approved March 23, 1888, a fee of one dollar is required to be collected for every citizen's passport. That amount in currency or postal money order should accompany each application made by a citizen of the United States. Orders should be made payable to the Disbursing Clerk of the Department of State. Drafts or checks will not be accepted.

4. APPLICATIONS—A person who is entitled to receive a passport, if within the United States, must submit a written application, in the form of an affidavit, to the Secretary of State. The application should be made by the person to whom the passport is to be issued, and signed by him, as it is not proper for one person to apply for a passport for another.

The affidavit must be made before a clerk of a Federal or State Court within the jurisdiction of which the applicant or his witness resides, and the seal of the court must be affixed.

If the applicant signs by mark, two attesting witnesses to his signature are required. The applicant is required to state the date and place of his birth, his occupation, the place of his permanent residence, and within what length of time he will return to the United States with the purpose of residing and performing the duties of citizenship. He is also required to state the names of the foreign countries which he expects to visit, and the objects of his visits thereto. The latter statement should be brief and general in form, thus: "Commercial business;" (*) "to attend to the settlement of an estate;" "to bring wife and children to this country."

The applicant must take the oath of allegiance to the United States.

The application must be accompanied by a description of the person applying, and should state the following particulars, viz.: Age, —; stature, — feet — inches (English measure); forehead, —; eyes, —; nose, —; mouth, —; chin, —; hair, —; complexion, —; face, —; special identifying marks, if any (scars, birthmarks, etc.).

The application must also be accompanied by duplicate photographs of the applicant, on thin paper, unmounted, and not larger in size than three by three inches. One must be attached to the back of the application by the clerk of court before whom it is made, with an impression of the seal of the court so placed as to cover part of the photograph, but not the features, and the other sent loose, to be attached to the passport by the department (7). Photographs on cardboard or postcards will not be accepted.

The application must be supported by an affidavit from at least one credible witness that the applicant is the person he represents himself to be, and that the facts stated in the application are true to the best of the witness' knowledge and belief. This affidavit must be made before the clerk of court before whom the application is executed, and the witness must be an American citizen, who resides within the jurisdiction of the court. The applicant or his witness must be known to the clerk of court before whom the application is executed, or must be able to satisfy such officer as to his identity and the bona fides of the application.

5. NATIVE CITIZENS—An application containing the information indicated by rule 4 will be sufficient evidence in the case of native citizens; except that a person born in the United States in a place where births are recorded will be expected to submit a birth certificate with his application.

A person of the Chinese race, alleging birth in the United States, must obtain from the Commissioner of Immigration or Chinese inspector in charge at the port through which he proposes to leave the country a certificate upon his application, under the seal of such officer, showing that there has been granted to him by the latter a return certificate in accordance with rule 16 of the Chinese Regulations of the Department of Labor. For this purpose special blank forms of application for passports are provided.

Passports issued by the Department of State or its diplomatic or consular representatives are intended for identification and protection in foreign countries, and not to facilitate entry into the United States, immigration being under the supervision of the Department of Labor.

6. A PERSON BORN ABROAD WHOSE FATHER WAS A NATIVE CITIZEN OF THE UNITED STATES—In addition to the statements required by rule 4, his application must show that his father was born in the United States, resided therein, and was a citizen at the time of the applicant's birth. The department may require that this affidavit be supported by that of one other citizen acquainted with the facts.

7. NATURALIZED CITIZENS—In addition to the statements required by rule 4, a naturalized citizen must transmit his certificate of naturalization, or a duly certified copy of the court record thereof, with his application. It will be returned to him after inspection. He must state in his affidavit when and from what port he emigrated to this country, what ship he sailed on, where he has lived since his arrival in the United States, when and before what court he was naturalized, and that he is the identical person described in the certificate of naturalization. The signature to the application should conform in orthography to the applicant's name as written in his certificate of naturalization, or an explanation of the difference should be submitted.

8. WOMAN'S APPLICATION—If she is unmarried, in addition to the statements required by rule 4, she should state that she has never been married. If she is the wife or widow of a native citizen of the United States the fact should be made to appear in her application, which should be made according to the form prescribed for a native citizen, whether she was born in this country or abroad. If she is the wife or widow of a naturalized citizen, in addition to the statements required by rule 4, she must transmit for inspection her husband's certificate of naturalization, or a certified copy of the court record thereof, must state that she is the wife (or widow) of the person described therein, and must set forth the facts of his birth, emigration, naturalization, and residence, as required in the rules governing the application of a naturalized citizen. She should sign her own Christian name with the family name of her husband (thus: Mary Doe, not Mrs. John Doe). A married woman's citizenship follows that of her husband. It is essential, therefore, that a woman's marital relations be indicated in her application for a passport, and that in the case of a married woman her husband's citizenship be established.

9. THE CHILD OF A NATURALIZED CITIZEN CLAIMING CITIZENSHIP THROUGH THE NATURALIZATION OF THE PARENT—In addition to the statements required by rule 4, the applicant must state that he or she is the son or daughter, as the case may be, of the person described in the certificate of naturalization, which must be submitted for inspection, and must set forth the facts of emigration, naturalization, and residence, as required in the rules governing the application of a naturalized citizen.

10. A RESIDENT OF AN INSULAR POSSESSION OF THE UNITED STATES WHO OWES ALLEGIANCE TO THE UNITED STATES—In addition to the statements required by rule 4, he must state that he owes allegiance to the United States and that he does not acknowledge allegiance to any other Government; and must submit affidavits from at least two credible witnesses having good means of knowledge in substantiation of his statements of birth, residence, and loyalty. No fee is required for the issuance by the department of an insular passport.

11. EXPIRATION AND RENEWAL OF PASSPORT—A passport expires six months from the date of its issuance. A new one will be issued upon a new application accompanied by the old passport, and if the applicant be a naturalized citizen, the old passport will be accepted in lieu of a certificate of naturalization, if the application upon which it was issued is found to contain sufficient information as to the naturalization of the applicant. Passports are not renewed by the department, but a person abroad holding a passport issued by the department may have it renewed for a period of six months upon presenting it to a diplomatic or principal consular officer of the United States when it is about to expire, with a sworn statement of the names of the countries which he expects to visit and the objects of his visits thereto. No passport shall be renewed more than twice.

12. WIFE, MINOR CHILDREN, AND SERVANTS—When the applicant is accompanied by his wife, minor children, and maid-servant, who is a citizen of the United States, it will be sufficient to state the fact, giving their names in full, the dates and places of their births, and the allegiance of the servant, when one passport will suffice for all. For a man-servant or any other person in the party a separate passport will be required. A woman's passport may include her minor children and maid-servant under the above-named conditions. (The term "maid-servant" does not include a governess, tutor, pupil, companion, or person holding like relation to the applicant for a passport.)

13. TITLES—Professional and other titles will not be inserted in passports.

14. BLANK FORMS OF APPLICATION—They will be furnished by the department free of charge to persons who desire to apply for passports. Supplies of blank applications are also furnished by the department to clerks of courts.

15. ADDRESS—Communications should be addressed to the Department of State, Bureau of Citizenship, and each communication should give post-office address of the person to whom the answer is to be directed.

16. ADDITIONAL REGULATIONS—The Secretary of State is authorized to make regulations on the subject of granting and issuing passports additional to these rules and not inconsistent with them.

* An applicant who states that he is going abroad on commercial business must submit with his application a letter from the head of the concern which he represents. † The loose photograph must be signed across its face by the applicant, and the signature thereon must correspond to the applicant's signature affixed to the application.

THE WHITE HOUSE, February 1, 1915.

WOODROW WILSON.

PASSPORTS FOR AMERICAN CITIZENS RESIDING IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES NOW AT WAR.

The department, since the outbreak of the European war, has received many inquiries from American citizens concerning the matter of obtaining passports for their wives and children residing in foreign countries now at war. An American citizen, temporarily abroad, should apply for a passport through an embassy, legation, or consulate of the United States, which will forward the application to the department. In cases of urgent necessity emergency passports, good for six months, may be obtained from embassies or legations, or from consulates situated in countries in which there are no American diplomatic representatives. A person claiming citizenship through naturalization in his own right, or through naturalization of husband or parent, should be provided with the certificate of naturalization to accompany the application. A person claiming citizenship through his own birth in this country, or through the birth in the United States of husband or parent, should submit a birth certificate with the application. If it is impossible to obtain a birth certificate, the department will consider affidavits of two or more reputable American citizens who have knowledge of the birth in this country of the applicant abroad or the person through whose American origin citizenship is claimed. In cases of urgent necessity, if the husband in this country so desires, and will forward to the department documentary evidence of his American citizenship, as indicated above, it will consider the matter of sending telegraphic instructions to the appropriate American diplomatic or consular officer abroad, informing him of the American citizenship of the husband and instructing him to advise the wife to apply through his office for a passport. The department should be informed of the names of any minor children with the wife abroad, and the dates and places of their births, and should be furnished with the birth certificates of such of them as may have been born in the United States. In the cases of foreign-born children of naturalized American citizens the department should also be informed concerning the periods, if any, of their residence in the United States.

A telegram in a case of the kind mentioned above must be sent at the expense of the person making the request, who will be informed of the cost of the telegram after it has gone out. The department cannot undertake to say in advance what the cost of such a telegram will be.

It is understood that passports are ordinarily required of persons entering or leaving Russia, and that those who enter with Russian passports are required to use the same documents in leaving.

The department cannot, of course, give an assurance that diplomatic or consular officers will be able to reach, by mail, telegraph, or otherwise, persons who are residing in places at or near which military operations are now being carried on.

It is not customary for the department to accept funds for transmission abroad. Such funds should be sent by postal money order or through a bank or express company carrying on an international exchange business.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, August 9, 1915.

SPECIAL RESTRICTIONS UPON TRAVEL IN BELLIGERENT COUNTRIES.

American citizens going directly to France from the United States are required to bear passports visaed by French diplomatic or consular officers in the United States. An application for a visa should be made to the French consulate in this country within the jurisdiction of which the applicant resides. The application should be made at least three days before it is necessary to obtain the visa. An American citizen who does not go directly from this country to France, but sojourns in some other foreign country before visiting France, should inquire of the American or French diplomatic representative in such foreign country concerning the special formalities which it will be necessary for him to fulfil before entering French territory.

It is understood that German military authorities now require that each person, except a minor under 10 years of age accompanied by his parents, entering Germany be supplied with an individual passport, and that a wife or minor child over 10 years of age cannot enter upon a passport held by husband or parent. A servant, accompanying his employer, is also required to have a separate passport.

Under British regulations all persons over 14 years of age accompanying an alien into Great Britain, and included in his passport, must have their photographs attached thereto. This includes the wife and minor children of the bearer. All persons entering the United Kingdom are required to register with the appropriate local authorities within 28 days after arrival.

The department has also been informed that rigid restrictions have been placed upon all travel between England and the Continent of Europe.

PASSPORT REGULATIONS—Continued.

Admission to Belgium from Holland is understood to be practically forbidden to travellers from England. The department is informed that the Italian authorities now require that each person entering Italy, who is over 16 years of age, be supplied with an individual passport. Thus a wife or a child over 16 years of age cannot enter Italy on the passport of the husband or parent.

For further and more authentic information concerning restrictions upon travel in foreign countries, it is necessary to apply to diplomatic or consular representatives of those countries.

The Department of State cannot undertake in general to advise Americans as to the routes which they should follow in travelling abroad.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, August 12, 1915.

NOTE—The Department of State has been recently informed that passports are required of all persons entering Newfoundland, but are not required of persons entering Canada.

LIABILITY FOR MILITARY SERVICE IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES OF PERSONS RESIDING IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE Department of State has recently received numerous inquiries from foreign-born persons residing in this country as to whether they may be compelled to perform military service in their native lands and as to what penalties, by way of fines, confiscation of property, or imprisonment in case of return, they will incur if they fail to report to the authorities of their countries of origin for military service. Some of the inquiries refer to persons who have obtained naturalization as citizens of the United States, others to persons who have made declarations of intention to become American citizens, and still others to persons who have taken no steps toward acquiring American citizenship. Misconception and confusion concerning this matter appear to be current.

The United States is not a party to any treaties under which persons of foreign origin residing in this country may be compelled to return to their countries of origin for military service, nor is there any way in which persons may be forced into foreign armies against their will so long as they remain in the United States.

The department cannot undertake to give authentic, official information either, in general, as to the requirements of the military service laws of foreign countries and the penalties provided therein for evasion of military service, or, in particular, as to the status and present or future liabilities of individuals under such laws. Information of this kind must be obtained from officials of the foreign countries concerned.

The department issues printed circulars concerning the status in their native lands of naturalized citizens of the United States, natives of certain European countries, and these will be furnished to interested persons upon request. It is specifically stated in these circulars that the information contained in them is not to be considered as official so far as it relates to the laws and regulations of foreign countries.

The United States has concluded treaties of naturalization with the following European countries: Austria-Hungary, Belgium, Denmark, the German States, Great Britain, Norway and Sweden. Copies of these treaties are to be found in "Treaties, Conventions, etc., between the United States of America and Other Powers" (Government Printing Office, 1910), and separate copies may be furnished by the department upon request. Under these treaties the naturalization of persons concerned as citizens of the United States and the termination of their former allegiance are recognized, with the reservation, in most of them, that such persons remain liable to trial and punishment in their native lands for offences committed prior to emigration therefrom, including offences of evasion of military duty. The United States holds that no naturalized citizen of this country can rightfully be held to account for military liability to his native land accruing subsequent to emigration therefrom, but this principle may be contested by countries with which the United States has not entered into treaties of naturalization. The latter countries may hold that naturalization of their citizens or subjects as citizens of other countries has no effect upon their original military obligation, or may deny the right of their citizens or subjects to become naturalized as citizens of other countries, in the absence of express consent or without the fulfilment of military obligations. More specific information as to the department's understanding of the laws of these countries concerning nationality and military obligations may be found in the department's circulars mentioned above.

It is important to observe that an alien who declares his intention to become a citizen of the United States does not, at the time of making such declaration, renounce allegiance to his original sovereign, but merely declares that he intends to do so. Such person does not, by his declaration of intention, acquire the status of a citizen of the United States.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, August 14, 1914.

AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR JUDICIAL SETTLEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL DISPUTES.

The American Society for Judicial Settlement of International Disputes was formed in 1910 for the purpose of promoting the establishment of a judicial tribunal which would perform for the nations of the civilized world a similar service to that which is given by ordinary courts to individuals, and of encouraging recourse to such a tribunal after its establishment.

During this period annual conferences have been held, the printed proceedings of which have been a valuable acquisition to libraries and to all interested in the development of judicial settlement and of international law; men of distinguished ability and unquestioned influence contributed the papers, some of which have been voluntarily translated into French, German, Italian, and Spanish.

Quarterly pamphlets, each containing an appropriate monograph by some acknowledged authority on subjects tending to advance the purpose of the society, have been issued, not only to members, but to a carefully selected list of 30,000 names, including the leading law schools and universities throughout the world.

A copy of all publications is sent to the foreign office of every nation and to the heads of foreign legations in Washington.

There is a widespread and growing interest in the work of the society; hardly a day passes without requests, not only from America but from many parts of the world for copies of the pamphlets, which are always sent free of charge. The officers and Executive Committee are much gratified at the interest awakened by their efforts, but are obliged to issue an earnest appeal for contributing members in order to continue the work on the present scale.

The object of the founders of the society was to give it a large following, and so there were three classes of membership established (life, sustaining, and annual), with equal privileges, leaving each member to determine what he would give, and in order that it might be beyond the reach of none, the subscription for annual membership was fixed at one dollar. At the same time, in order to obtain a more adequate income, a sustaining membership at ten dollars a year was established.

President—Theodore Marburg, Baltimore Md. Vice-President—Elihu Root, New York. Secretary—James B. Scott, Washington, D. C. Assistant Secretary—Tunstall Smith, Baltimore, Md. Treasurer—J. G. Schmidlapp, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Life membership, $100; sustaining membership, $10 a year; annual membership, $1 a year.

NATURALIZATION.

THE following paraphrase and condensation of the naturalization laws of the United States have been revised by the Commissioner of Naturalization of the Department of Labor, and includes such minor changes in the law as were provided by the amendments embodied in the acts of Congress, approved June 25, 1910, and June 30, 1914.

The following courts alone have the power to naturalize aliens: United States District Courts now existing, or which may hereafter be established by Congress in any State, United States District Courts for the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska, also all courts of record in any State or Territory now existing, or which may hereafter be created, having a seal, a clerk and jurisdiction in actions at law or equity, or law and equity, in which the amount in controversy is unlimited.

The power to naturalize, conferred upon the above mentioned courts, is limited to persons residing within the geographical limits over which their respective jurisdiction extends.

DECLARATION OF INTENTION.

Any alien who is a white person, or of African nativity or African descent, is required, if he desires to become naturalized, to file a declaration of intention in the clerk's office of any court having jurisdiction over the place in which he lives, and such declaration may not be filed until the alien has reached the age of eighteen years. This declaration must contain information as to the name, age, occupation, time and place of arrival in the United States, and must further show that it is the declarant's bona fide intention to become a citizen of the United States and to renounce forever all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state or sovereignty, and particularly to the one of which he may be at the time a citizen or subject.

Aliens of the age of twenty-one years and upward, who have been honorably discharged from service in the armies of the United States, either regular or volunteer, are not required to make a declaration of intention.

Any alien, of the age of twenty-one years and upward, who has served five consecutive years in the United States Navy or one enlistment in the United States Marine Corps, may be admitted to citizenship (under the act of July 26, 1894) without any previous declaration of intention.

Under the act approved June 30, 1914, any alien of the age of twenty-one years and upward, who may under existing law become a citizen, who has served one enlistment of not less than four years in the United States Navy or Marine Corps, or who has completed four years in the Revenue Cutter Service, and received an honorable discharge or an ordinary discharge with recommendation for re-enlistment, or has completed four years of honorable service in the naval auxiliary service, is admissible to citizenship, upon his petition, without a previous declaration of intention, and without proof of residence on shore.

The widow and children who are under age at the time that an alien who has made his declaration of intention has died, without having secured a certificate of naturalization, are also exempted from the necessity of filing a declaration of intention.

By act of June 25, 1910, any person who on May 1, 1905, was an inhabitant for five years and qualified to become a citizen of the United States and who for the five years preceding May 1, 1910, had resided in the United States continuously and who, because of misinformation in regard to his citizenship, had in good faith exercised the rights and duties of a citizen of the United States because of wrongful information and belief, may, upon proof of these facts satisfactory to a court having jurisdiction to naturalize aliens, petition for naturalization without filing the required declaration of intention upon compliance with the other requirements of the law.

PETITIONS FOR NATURALIZATION.

Not less than two years after an alien has filed his declaration of intention, and after not less than five years' continuous residence in the United States, he may file a petition for citizenship in any one of the courts above stated which has jurisdiction over the place in which he resides, provided he has lived at least one year continuously, immediately prior to the filing of such petition, in the State or Territory in which such place is located. This petition must be signed by the petitioner in his own handwriting and shall give his full name, place of residence, occupation, place of birth and the date thereof, the place from which he emigrated, and the date and place of his arrival in the United States. If such arrival occurred subsequent to the passage of the act of June 25, 1906, he must secure a certificate from the Department of Labor showing the fact of such arrival and the date and place thereof, for filing with the clerk of the court to be attached to his petition. If he is married he must state the name of his wife and, if possible, the country of her nativity and her place of residence at the time of the filing of his petition, and, if he has children, the name, date and place of birth and present place of residence of each living child. The petition must set forth that he is not a disbeliever in or opposed to organized government, or a member of or affiliated with any organization or body of persons teaching disbelief in or opposition to organized government; that he is not a polygamist or a believer in the practice of polygamy, and that he absolutely and forever renounces all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign country of which he may, at the time of filing such petition, be a citizen or subject. This petition must be verified at the time it is filed by the affidavit of two credible witnesses, who are citizens of the United States and who shall state that they have known the petitioner during his entire residence (not exceeding five years) in the State in which the petition is filed, which must be not less than one year, and that they have known him to be resident of the United States continuously during the five years immediately preceding the filing of the petition; that during such time he acted as a man of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same. If a portion of the five years has been passed by the petitioner in some other State than that in which he resides at the time of filing his petition the affidavit of the witnesses may verify so much of the petitioner's residence as has been passed in the State (not less than one year), and the portion of said five years' residence out of the State may be shown by depositions at the time of hearing on the petition.

No petition may be heard until the expiration of at least ninety days after it is filed nor within thirty days preceding a general election. At the hearing upon a petition, which shall be at a date fixed by order of the court, the witnesses are required to again attend and testify in open court so that the Judge or Judges thereof may be satisfied that the petitioner is qualified and that he has complied with all the requirements of the law.

Any alien who has borne an hereditary title or been a member of an order or nobility must renounce such title or position expressly before becoming naturalized. No alien may become naturalized, if physically capable, who does not speak the English language.

Aliens who are admitted to citizenship by order in open court will be required to take the oath of allegiance and thereafter will be entitled to a certificate of naturalization.

The law also provides as to those persons, who though not citizens owe permanent allegiance to the United States, and who may become residents of any State or organized Territory of the United States, that they may be naturalized upon compliance with all the requirements of the law, except that they will not be called upon to renounce allegiance to any foreign sovereignty.

At the time of filing his declaration of intention an alien is required to pay to the clerk of the court a fee of one dollar. At the time of filing a petition for naturalization a petitioner is required to pay to the clerk of the court a fee of four dollars. This latter fee is for the cost of recording the petition and hearing the case, as well as for the issuance, if the petition is granted, of the certificate of naturalization.

CHINESE.

The naturalization of Chinamen is expressly prohibited by sec. 14, chap. 126, Laws of 1882.

THE NATIONAL PURE FOOD LAW.

THE Pure Food act, approved June 30, 1906, is entitled "An act for preventing the manufacture, sale, or transportation of adulterated or misbranded or poisonous or deleterious foods, drugs, medicines and liquors, and for regulating traffic therein, and for other purposes." It took effect by its terms on January 1, 1907.

The first section of the act makes it unlawful for any person to manufacture within the District of Columbia or any Territory any article of food or drug which is adulterated or misbranded, under a penalty not to exceed $500, or one year's imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court, for the first offence, and not less than $1,000 or one year's imprisonment, or both, for each subsequent offence.

Sec. 2 of the act makes it applicable to food or drugs introduced into any State from any other State, and from or to any foreign country.

Sec. 3. That the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall make uniform rules and regulations for carrying out the provisions of this act, including the collection and examination of specimens of foods and drugs manufactured or offered for sale in the District of Columbia, or in any Territory of the United States, or which shall be offered for sale in unbroken packages in any State other than that in which they shall have been respectively manufactured or produced, or which shall be received from any foreign country, or intended for shipment to any foreign country, or which may be submitted for examination by the chief health, food, or drug officer of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or at any domestic or foreign port through which such product is offered for interstate commerce, or for export or import between the United States and any foreign port or country.

Sec. 4. That the examinations of specimens of foods and drugs shall be made in the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, or under the direction and supervision of such bureau, for the purpose of determining from such examinations whether such articles are adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this act; and if it shall appear from any such examination that any of such specimens is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this act, the Secretary of Agriculture shall cause notice thereof to be given to the party from whom such sample was obtained. Any party so notified shall be given an opportunity to be heard, under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed as aforesaid, and if it appears that any of the provisions of this act have been violated by such party, then the Secretary of Agriculture shall at once certify the facts to the proper United States District-Attorney, with a copy of the results of the analysis or the examination of such article duly authenticated by the analyst or officer making such examination, under the oath of such officer. After judgment of the court, notice shall be given by publication in such manner as may be prescribed by the rules and regulations aforesaid.

Sec. 5. That it shall be the duty of each District-Attorney to whom the Secretary of Agriculture shall report any violation of this act, or to whom any health or food or drug officer or agent of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall present satisfactory evidence of any such violation, to cause appropriate proceedings to be commenced and prosecuted in the proper courts of the United States, without delay, for the enforcement of the penalties as in such case herein provided.

The sections descriptive of the articles which come within the scope of the act are as follows:

"Sec. 6. That the term 'drug,' as used in this act, shall include all medicines and preparations recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary for internal or external use, and any substance or mixture of substances intended to be used for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease of either man or other animals. The term 'food,' as used herein, shall include all articles used for food, drink, confectionery or condiment by man or other animals, whether simple, mixed or compound.

"Sec. 7. That for the purposes of this act an article shall be deemed to be adulterated:"

In case of drugs:

"First. If, when a drug is sold under or by a name recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary, it differs from the standard of strength, quality or purity, as determined by the test laid down in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary official at the time of investigation: Provided, That no drug defined in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary shall be deemed to be adulterated under this provision if the standard of strength, quality or purity be plainly stated upon the bottle, box or other container thereof, although the standard may differ from that determined by the test laid down in the United States Pharmacopoeia or National Formulary.

"Second. If its strength or purity fall below the professed standard or quality under which it is sold."

In the case of confectionery:

"If it contain terra alba, barytes, talc, chrome yellow, or other mineral substance or poisonous color or flavor, or other ingredient deleterious or detrimental to health, or any vinous, malt or spirituous liquor or compound or narcotic drug."

In the case of food:

"First. If any substance has been mixed and packed with it so as to reduce, or lower, or injuriously affect its quality or strength.

"Second. If any substance has been substituted wholly or in part for the article.

"Third. If any valuable constituent of the article has been wholly or in part extracted.

"Fourth. If it be mixed, colored, powdered, coated, or stained in a manner whereby damage or inferiority is concealed.

"Fifth. If it contain any added poisonous or other added deleterious ingredient which may render such article injurious to health: Provided, That when in the preparation of food products for shipment they are preserved by any external application applied in such manner that the preservative is necessarily removed mechanically, or by maceration in water, or otherwise, and directions for the removal of said preservatives shall be printed on the covering or the package, the provisions of this act shall be construed as applying only when said products are ready for consumption.

"Sixth. If it consists in whole or in part of a filthy, decomposed, or putrid animal or vegetable substance, or any portion of an animal unfit for food, whether manufactured or not, or if it is the product of a diseased animal, or one that has died otherwise than by slaughter.

"Sec. 8. That the term 'misbranded,' as used herein, shall apply to all drugs, or articles of food, or articles which enter into the composition of food, the package or label of which shall bear any statement, design, or device regarding such article, or the ingredients or substances contained therein which shall be false or misleading in any particular, and to any food or drug product which is falsely branded as to the State, Territory, or country in which it is manufactured or produced.

"That for the purposes of this act an article shall also be deemed to be misbranded."

In case of drugs:

"First. If it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the name of another article, in whole or in part, and the contents of the package as originally put up shall have been removed, the package fail to bear a statement on the label of the quantity or proportion of any alcohol, morphine, opium, cocaine, heroin, alpha or beta eucaine, chloroform, cannabis indica, chloral hydrate or acetanilide, or any derivative or preparation of any such substances contained therein.

"Third. If its package or label shall bear or contain any statement, design, or device regarding the curative or therapeutic effect of such article or any of the ingredients or substances contained therein, which is false and fraudulent."

In the case of food:

"First. If it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article.

"Second. If it be labelled or branded so as to deceive or mislead the purchaser, or purport to be a foreign product when not so, or if the contents of the package as originally put up shall have been removed in whole or in part and other contents shall have been placed in such package, or if it fail to bear a statement on the label of the quantity or proportion of any morphine, opium, cocaine, heroin, alpha or beta eucaine, chloroform, cannabis indica, chloral hydrate, or acetanilide, or any derivative or preparation of any such substance contained therein.

"Third. If in package form, the quantity of the contents be not plainly and conspicuously marked on the outside of the package in terms of weight, measure, or numerical count: Provided, however, That reasonable variations shall be permitted, and tolerances and also exemptions as to small packages shall be established by rules and regulations made in accordance with the provisions of Section 3 of this act. (The act of March 3, 1913, provides that no penalty of fine, imprisonment, or confiscation shall be enforced for any violation of its provisions as to domestic products prepared or foreign products imported prior to eighteen months after its passage.)

"Fourth. If the package containing it or its label shall bear any statement, design or device regarding the ingredients or the substances contained therein, which statement, design or device shall be false or misleading in any particular: Provided, That an article of food which does not contain any added poisonous or deleterious ingredients shall not be deemed to be adulterated or misbranded in the following cases:

"First. In the case of mixtures or compounds which may be now or from time to time hereafter known as articles of food, under their own distinctive names, and not an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article, if the name be accompanied on the same label or brand with a statement of the place where said article has been manufactured or produced.

"Second. In the case of articles labelled, branded or tagged so as to plainly indicate that they are compounds, imitations or blends, and the word 'compound,' 'imitation' or 'blend,' as the case may be, is plainly stated on the package in which it is offered for sale: Provided, That the term 'blend' as used herein shall be construed to mean a mixture of like substances, not excluding harmless coloring or flavoring ingredients used for the purpose of coloring and flavoring only: And provided further, That nothing in this act shall be construed as requiring or compelling proprietors or manufacturers of proprietary foods which contain no unwholesome added ingredients to disclose their trade formulas, except in so far as the provisions of this act may require to secure freedom from adulteration or misbranding.

"Sec. 9. That no dealer shall be prosecuted under the provisions of this act, when he can establish a guaranty signed by the wholesaler, jobber, manufacturer or other party residing in the United States, from whom he purchases such articles, to the effect that the same is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this act, designating it."

The remaining provisions of the act provide the methods of prosecuting offenders and destroying goods imported or offered for import which are adulterated or falsely labelled.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

During the fiscal year 1914, 11,911 samples of foods and drugs shipped in interstate commerce were collected and examined; 436 cases were transmitted to the Department of Justice for prosecution, in 87 of which criminal proceedings, and in 349 of which seizure proceedings were recommended; 407 criminal cases and 369 seizures, in all 776 cases, were terminated in the courts; 14,275 import shipments were examined at the Import Laboratories and 4,524 were denied entry.

ABOLISHING GUARANTY LEGEND AND SERIAL NUMBER ON FOOD AND DRUGS.

The legend "Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs act" is held to be misleading and deceptive, and the use of a serial number on food and drugs is prohibited after May 1, 1916, by a food inspection decision signed May 29, 1914, by the Secretaries of the Treasury, Agriculture and Commerce. The new regulation will take effect May 1, 1916, in order to give manufacturers an opportunity to use up their present stocks of labels. After that date guaranties of compliance with the law should be given by manufacturers directly to dealers, and should be incorporated in the invoice or bill of sale specifying the goods covered. This guaranty should not appear on the label or package of the product.

THE SOUTHERN COMMERCIAL CONGRESS.

President—Duncan U. Fletcher, Jacksonville, Fla. First Vice-President—Thomas S. Southgate, Norfolk, Va. Second Vice-President—Albert P. Bush, Mobile, Ala. Managing Director—Clarence J. Owens, Riverdale Park, Md. Treasurer and Resident Director—William H. Saunders, Washington, D. C.

The headquarters of the Congress is at the Southern Building, Fifteenth and H Streets, Washington, D. C.; Clarence J. Owens, Managing Director.

Among the purposes of the organization are the following:

(a) To promote and develop the interests of the following sixteen States of the United States known as the "Southern States," to wit: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia.

(b) To collect and disseminate information regarding the resources and conditions of the said States and the opportunities and advantages offered in them for the safe and profitable investment of capital; the attractions offered in the South to the homeseeker, artisan and laborer, and the importance to the National Government of enacting proper legislation looking to the conservation of the natural resources of the South and the improvement of its rivers, harbors and transportation facilities.

(c) To encourage, promote and foster the development of the resources of the South with its own capital and by its own inhabitants.

(d) To encourage and obtain the establishment in the South of commercial, manufacturing, industrial and other enterprises, and to foster those already existing therein.

(e) To encourage, foster and promote the creation and establishment of institutions and organizations whose energies shall be principally directed toward the development of the material resources of the South.

(f) To promote and develop proper immigration to the South and to promote and foster the establishment of such organizations as may bring about the development of desirable immigration to the South.

(g) To encourage the movement for the construction of good roads and for the extension of railroad and trolley transportation.

(h) To encourage, foster and develop patriotic and National sentiments throughout the South and elsewhere in the nation, and particularly to promote, encourage and foster the feeling and desire for a greater nation through a greater South.

(i) To promote the improvement of educational and other conditions which tend to develop the material resources and happiness of the residents of the South.

PATENT OFFICE PROCEDURE.

THE following statement has been revised by the Patent Office for THE WORLD ALMANAC:

Patents are issued in the name of the United States, and under the seal of the Patent Office, to any person who has invented or discovered any new and useful art, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter or any new and useful improvement thereof, or any new, original and ornamental design for an article of manufacture, not known or used by others in this country before his invention or discovery thereof, and not patented or described in any printed publication in this or any foreign country, before his invention or discovery thereof or more than two years prior to his application, and not in public use or on sale in the United States for more than two years prior to his application, unless the same is proved to have been abandoned; upon payment of the fees required by law and other due proceedings had.

Every patent contains a grant to the patentee, his heirs or assigns, for the term of seventeen years, except in the case of design patents, of the exclusive right to make, use, and vend the invention or discovery throughout the United States and the Territories, referring to the specification for the particulars thereof.

If it appear that the inventor, at the time of making his application, believed himself to be the first inventor or discoverer, a patent will not be refused on account of the invention or discovery, or any part thereof, having been known or used in any foreign country before his invention or discovery thereof, if it had not been before patented or described in any printed publication.

Joint inventors are entitled to a joint patent; neither can claim one separately. Independent inventors of distinct and independent improvements in the same machine cannot obtain a joint patent for their separate inventions, nor does the fact that one furnishes the capital and another makes the invention entitle them to make application as joint inventors; but in such case they may become joint patentees by means of a deed of assignment.

No person otherwise entitled thereto will be debarred from receiving a patent for his invention or discovery, by reason of its having been first patented or caused to be patented by the inventor or his legal representatives or assigns in a foreign country, unless the application for said foreign patent was filed more than twelve months prior to the filing of the application in this country, and four months in cases of designs, in which case no patent shall be granted in this country.

APPLICATIONS.

If an inventor wishes to file an application for patent, a copy of the Rules of Practice, containing forms and instructions, will be sent upon request. It is advisable, however, in every case, that the services of a competent registered patent attorney be secured, as the value of patents depends largely upon the skillful preparation of the specification and claims. The Patent Office cannot recommend any particular attorney or firm, but advises applicants to avoid doing business with those who advertise the possession of unusual facilities for obtaining patents.

Applications for patents must be made in writing to the Commissioner of Patents. The applicant must file in the Patent Office a written description of the invention or discovery, and of the manner and process of making, constructing, compounding, and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any persons skilled in the art or science to which it appertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make, construct, compound, and use the same; and in case of a machine, he must explain the principle thereof, and the best mode in which he has contemplated applying that principle, so as to distinguish it from other inventions, and particularly point out and distinctly claim the part, improvement, or combination which he claims as his invention or discovery. The specification and claim must be signed by the inventor.

When the nature of the invention admits of drawings, the applicant must furnish a drawing of the required size, signed by the inventor or his attorney in fact. The applicant, if required by the Patent Office, shall furnish a model of convenient size to exhibit advantageously the several parts of his invention or discovery, but a model should not be sent unless first called for by the Patent Office.

The applicant shall make oath that he verily believes himself to be the original and first inventor or discoverer of the art, machine, manufacture, composition, or improvement for which he solicits a patent; that he does not know and does not believe that the same was ever before known or used, and shall state of what country he is a citizen and where he resides, and whether he is the sole or joint inventor of the invention claimed in his application. In every original application the applicant must distinctly state under oath that the invention has not been patented to himself or to others with his knowledge or consent in this or any foreign country for more than two years prior to his application, or on an application for a patent filed in any foreign country by himself or his legal representatives or assigns more than twelve months prior to his application in this country, or four months in cases of designs. If any application for patent has been filed in any foreign country by the applicant in this country or by his legal representatives or assigns, prior to his application in this country, he shall state the country or countries in which such application has been filed, giving the date of such application, and shall also state that no application has been filed in any other country or countries than those mentioned; that to the best of his knowledge and belief the invention has not been in public use or on sale in the United States nor described in any printed publication or patent in this or any foreign country for more than two years prior to his application in this country. Such oath may be made before any person within the United States authorized by law to administer oaths, or, when the applicant resides in a foreign country, before any Minister, Chargé d'Affaires, Consul, or commercial agent holding commission under the Government of the United States, or before any notary public, Judge or Magistrate having an official seal and authorized to administer oaths in that country whose authority shall be proved by a certificate of a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States, except that no acknowledgment may be taken by any attorney appearing in the case.

On the filing of such application and the payment of the fees required by law, if, on examination, it appears that the applicant is justly entitled to a patent under the law, and that the invention is sufficiently useful and important, the Commissioner will issue a patent therefor.

Every patent or any interest therein shall be assignable in law by an instrument in writing; and the patentee or his assigns or legal representatives may, in like manner, grant and convey an exclusive right under his patent to the whole or any specified part of the United States.

REISSUES.

A reissue is granted to the original patentee, his legal representatives, or the assignees of the entire interest when, by reason of a defective or insufficient specification, or by reason of the patentee claiming as his invention or discovery more than he had a right to claim as new, the original patent is incomplete or invalid, provided the error has arisen from inadvertence, accident, or mistake, and without any fraudulent or deceptive intention. Reissue applications must be made and the specifications sworn to by the inventors, if they be living.

FEES.

Fees must be paid in advance, and are as follows: On filing each original application for a patent, $15. On issuing each original patent, $20. In design cases: For three years and six months, $10; for seven years, $15; for fourteen years, $30. On every application for the reissue of a patent, $30. On filing each disclaimer, $10. For certified copies of patents and other papers in manuscript, ten cents per hundred words and twenty-five cents for the certificate; for certified copies of printed patents, eighty cents. For uncertified printed copies of specifications and drawings of patents, five cents each. For recording every assignment, agreement, power of attorney, or other paper, of three hundred words or under, $1; of over three hundred and under one thousand words, $2; for each additional thousand words, or fraction thereof, $1. For copies of drawings, the reasonable cost of making them. The Patent Office is prepared to furnish positive photographic copies of the drawings of pending, patented or abandoned cases, in sizes and at rates as follows: Large size, 10x15 inches, twenty-five cents; medium size, 8x12½ inches, fifteen cents. Negative photographic copies of specifications and drawings of foreign patents, or of any page or part of page of any printed publication in the possession of the office, will be furnished on paper 7x11 inches, for fifteen cents per sheet. Stamps cannot be accepted by the Patent Office in payment of fees. Stamps and stamped envelopes should not be sent to the office for replies to letters, as stamps are not required on mail matter emanating from the Patent Office.

PATENT OFFICE STATISTICS.

The receipts of the Patent Office during the year ending December 31, 1914, were $2,251,892, and expenditures $2,000,770. Receipts over expenditures, $251,122. Total net surplus to December 31, 1914, $7,548,175.

REGISTRATION OF TRADE-MARKS*IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE following are extracts from the new "Act to authorize the registration of trade-marks used in commerce with foreign nations, or among the several States or Indian tribes, and to protect the same," approved February 20, 1905, and later amendatory acts.

"The owner of a trade-mark used in commerce with foreign nations, or among the several States, or with Indian tribes, provided such owner shall be domiciled within the territory of the United States, or resides in or is located in any foreign country, which, by treaty, convention, or law, affords similar privileges to the citizens of the United States, may obtain registration for such trade-mark by complying with the following requirements: First, by filing in the Patent Office an application therefor, in writing, addressed to the Commissioner of Patents, signed by the applicant, specifying his name, domicile, location, and citizenship; the class of merchandise and the particular description of goods comprised in such class to which the trade-mark is appropriated; a statement of the mode in which the same is applied and affixed to goods, and the length of time during which the trade-mark has been used; a description of the trade-mark itself shall be included, if desired by the applicant or required by the Commissioner, provided such description is of a character to meet the approval of the Commissioner. With this statement shall be filed a drawing of the trade-mark, signed by the applicant, or his attorney, and such number of specimens of the trade-mark, as actually used, as may be required by the Commissioner of Patents. Second, by paying into the Treasury of the United States the sum of ten dollars, and otherwise complying with the requirements of this act and such regulations as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Patents.

"A certificate of registration shall remain in force for twenty years, except that in the case of trade-marks previously registered in a foreign country such certificates shall cease to be in force on the day on which the trade-mark ceases to be protected in such foreign country, and shall in no case remain in force more than twenty years, unless renewed. Certificates of registration may be, from time to time, renewed for like periods on payments of the renewal fees required by this act, upon request by the registrant, his legal representatives, or transferees of record in the Patent Office, and such request may be made at any time not more than six months prior to the expiration of the period for which the certificates of registration were issued or renewed. Certificates of registration in force at the date at which this act takes effect shall remain in force for the period for which they were issued, but shall be renewable on the same conditions and for the same periods as certificates issued under the provisions of this act, and when so renewed shall have the same force and effect as certificates issued under this act.

"The registration of a trade-mark under the provisions of this act shall be prima facie evidence of ownership. Any person who shall, without the consent of the owner thereof, reproduce, counterfeit, copy, or colorably imitate any such trade-mark and affix the same to merchandise of substantially the same descriptive properties as those set forth in the registration, or to labels, signs, prints, packages, wrappers, or receptacles intended to be used upon or in connection with the sale of merchandise of substantially the same descriptive properties as those set forth in such registration, and shall use, or shall have used, such reproduction, counterfeit, copy, or colorable imitation in commerce among the several States, or with a foreign nation, or with the Indian tribes, shall be liable to an action for damages therefor at the suit of the owner thereof; and whenever in any such action a verdict is rendered for the plaintiff, the court may enter judgment therefor for any sum above the amount found by the verdict as the actual damages, according to the circumstances of the case, not exceeding three times the amount of such verdict, together with the costs."

No trade-mark will be registered which consists of or comprises immoral or scandalous matter, or which consists of or comprises the flag or coat of arms or other insignia of the United States, or any simulation thereof, or of any State or municipality, or of any foreign nation, or which consists of or comprises any design or picture that has been adopted by any fraternal society as its emblem, or of any name, distinguishing mark, character, emblem, colors, flag, or banner adopted by any institution, organization, club, or society which was incorporated in any State in the United States prior to the date of the adoption and use by the applicant; Provided, That said name, distinguishing mark, character, emblem, colors, flag, or banner was adopted and publicly used by said institution, organization, club, or society prior to the date of adoption and use by the applicant; unless it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Patents that the mark was adopted and used as a trade-mark by the applicant or applicant's predecessors, from whom title is derived, at a date prior to the date of its adoption by such fraternal society as its emblem, or which trade-mark is identical with a registered or known trade-mark owned and in use by another, and appropriated to merchandise of the same descriptive properties, or which so nearly resembles a registered or known trade-mark owned and in use by another, and appropriated to merchandise of the same descriptive properties as to be likely to cause confusion or mistake in the minds of the public, or to deceive purchasers; or which consists merely in the name of an individual, firm, corporation, or association, not written, printed, impressed, or woven in some particular or distinctive manner or in association with a portrait of the individual, or merely in words or devices which are descriptive of the goods with which they are used, or of the character or quality of such goods, or merely a geographical name or term; no portrait of a living individual will be registered as a trade-mark, except by the consent of such individual evidenced by an instrument in writing; and no trade-mark will be registered which is used in unlawful business, or upon any article injurious in itself, or which has been used with the design of deceiving the public in the purchase of merchandise, or which has been abandoned.

Any mark, used in commerce with foreign nations or among the several States or with Indian tribes, may be registered if it has been in actual and exclusive use as a trade-mark of the applicant, or his predecessors from whom he derived title, for ten years next preceding the passage of the act of February 20, 1905.

By act of Congress approved February 18, 1909, the second section of the trade-mark act was amended so as to read as follows:

"The application prescribed in the foregoing section, in order to create any right whatever in favor of the party filing it, must be accompanied by a written declaration verified by the applicant, or by a member of the firm or an officer of the corporation or association applying, to the effect that the applicant believes himself or the firm, corporation, or association in whose behalf he makes the application to be the owner of the trade-mark sought to be registered, and that no other person, firm, corporation, or association, to the best of the applicant's knowledge and belief, has the right to use such trade-mark in the United States, either in the identical form or in such near resemblance thereto as might be calculated to deceive; that such trade-mark is used in commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, or with Indian tribes, and that the description and drawing presented truly represent the trade-mark sought to be registered. If the applicant resides or is located in a foreign country, the statement required shall, in addition to the foregoing, set forth that the trade-mark has been registered by the applicant, or that an application for the registration thereof has been filed by him in the foreign country in which he resides or is located, and shall give the date of such registration, or the application thereof, as the case may be, except that in the application in such cases it shall not be necessary to state that the mark has been used in commerce with the United States or among the States thereof. The verification required by this section may be made before any person within the United States authorized by law to administer oaths, or, when the applicant resides in a foreign country, before any Minister, Charge d'Affaires, Consul, or commercial agent holding commission under the Government of the United States, or before any notary public, Judge, or Magistrate having an official seal and authorized to administer oaths in the foreign country in which the applicant may be whose authority shall be proved by a certificate of a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States."

A fee of $10.00 is required by law to be paid with each application for the registration of a trade-mark, and this fee will include the certificate of registration, if the trade-mark be determined to be registrable.

TRADE-MARK TREATIES WITH FOREIGN NATIONS.

The following is a list of the Governments with which conventions for the reciprocal registration and protection of trade-marks have been entered into by the United States—Austria-Hungary, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain (including colonies), Italy, Japan (including China and Korea), Luxemburg, Mexico, Roumania, Servia, Spain. The laws of Switzerland and the Netherlands being so framed as to afford reciprocal privileges to the citizens or subjects of any Government which affords similar privileges to the people of those countries, the mere exchange of diplomatic notes, giving notice of the fact, accomplishes all the purposes of a formal convention.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.
A FEDERATION OF COMMERCIAL ORGANIZATIONS. NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

ORGANIZED at the National Commercial Conference called by the President of the United States and held at Washington, D. C., April 22 and 23, 1912.

President—John H. Fahey, Boston, Mass. Vice-Presidents—Henry L. Corbett, Portland, Ore., for Western States; Robert F. Maddox, Atlanta, Ga., for Southern Central States; Samuel MacRoberts, New York, N. Y., for Eastern States, and Joseph H. Defrees, Chicago, Ill., for Northern Central States. Treasurer—John Joy Edson, Washington, D. C. Chairman Executive Committee—R. G. Rhett, Charleston, S. C. General Secretary—Elliot H. Goodwin, Washington, D. C. Assistant Secretary—D. A. Skinner, Washington, D. C.

PURPOSES—To encourage and promote the organization of associations of business in all parts of the country. To study the work of existing organizations and their value to their respective trades and communities, and to clear the information thus acquired for the benefit of all organizations desiring to increase their efficiency. To advocate the standardization of association methods and of association effort, and to urge the adoption of those standards which have been found most effective in so far as they may be applicable to local or trade conditions.

To study the work performed by all Government Bureaus in any way related to the commerce of the country, to encourage and support appropriation measures for their further development, and to utilize the data which they gather by directing it into the channels to which it is immediately applicable.

To carefully analyze all statistics with regard to the production and distribution of our manufactures at home and abroad; to be watchful of every influence calculated to retard our commercial development, and to become a source of information with respect to new opportunities for trade expansion, especially in foreign markets.

When debatable policies affecting our National commerce are advocated by the Federal authorities, there should be a recognized organization capable of expressing the business opinion of the entire country available for conference, alike to the executive and legislative branches of the Government. It is the purpose of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America to act in this capacity—not to originate legislation, nor to be unnecessarily critical of legislation proposed by others, but rather to assume that the National Government desires to act in harmony with the commercial interests of the country and will accept our co-operation in an endeavor to make all business legislation constructive.

There are three great wealth-producing factors in our National life—Commerce, labor, and agriculture. Labor, through its State and National organizations, strives for legislation in its own interest and presents its demands with the united voice of two million union workers. Agriculture likewise presents its demands through its National organization, and these are heeded in both State and National Legislatures. Commerce has been organized into local and trade groups, but not as an effective National unit, and it is to provide such a unit, as powerful as those enjoyed by labor and agriculture, that the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America is now organized. These three great factors, through their National organizations, may find a means for co-operation on many subjects in which there is a vital joint interest.

ORGANIZATION MEMBERSHIP—Every commercial or manufacturers' association not organized for private purposes shall be eligible for membership in the chamber. Such associations shall be of two classes: First—Local or State commercial or business organizations whose chief purpose is the development of the commercial and industrial interests of a single State, city or locality.

Second—Local, State, interstate or National organizations whose membership is confined to one trade or group of trades.

REPRESENTATION—Each member of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America shall be entitled to one delegate and one vote for the first twenty-five members, and one delegate and one vote for each additional two hundred members in excess of twenty-five, but no member shall be entitled to more than ten delegates and ten votes. Organizations having less than twenty-five members may be admitted to membership if in the judgment of the Board of Directors their importance would justify their admission, and these shall be entitled to one delegate and one vote.

The organization membership at the present time consists of over 650 commercial and trade organizations representing over 275,000 corporations, firms, and individuals, among which every State in the Union is represented, as well as Hawaii, Alaska, Porto Rico, the Philippines, and the American Chambers of Commerce in foreign countries.

INDIVIDUAL MEMBERSHIP—Persons, firms, and corporations who are members in good standing of any organization admitted to the chamber are eligible for election as individual members. Individual members receive the regular publications of the chamber and they may avail themselves of the facilities of the National headquarters; may attend all regular and special meetings of the chamber and, subject to the rules of such meetings, may have the privilege of the floor, but they are not entitled to vote except as duly accredited delegates of organization members. Individual membership is limited to 5,000, and at the present time consists of more than 2,700 individuals, firms, or corporations representing merchants, manufacturers, lawyers, bankers, engineers, railroad officials, and other business men in all parts of the country.

SERVICE—The Legislative Bulletin, issued weekly during the sessions of Congress, constitutes a thorough digest of current and National legislation published for business men.

The Business Bulletins give members prompt and accurate notice of all Government activities affecting the business of the country, announcements regarding the Federal Reserve Board, the income tax, the Interstate Commerce Commission, moratoria, contraband, embargo, etc.

The Federal Trade Commission bulletins contain accurate information in regard to the activities of the Federal Trade Commission.

The Nation's Business, published monthly, contains up-to-date facts in regard to National questions affecting commerce and industry.

The Division of Information is maintained under the direction of business and legal experts. Through this division members are furnished direct with advice or data from official or other first-hand sources available in the Government departments, the Library of Congress, or elsewhere in Washington.

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY OF CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONS.

President—F. E. Doty, Los Angeles, Cal. Vice-Presidents—J. E. Campbell, Pueblo, Col.; Henry Moskowitz, New York City; Joseph C. Mulholland, Minneapolis, Minn. Secretary-Treasurer—John T. Doyle, 1724 F Street N. W., Washington, D. C.

The assembly was organized in 1906. The objects are to enable all those charged with the administration of civil service laws to become acquainted and exchange ideas. To promote co-operation, uniformity and perfection of methods of the different commissions. To enable the commissions to profit by exchange of ideas with officers who are directing departments and to give such officers broader opportunity to inform themselves on the methods of the merit system.

UNITED STATES EXECUTIVE CIVIL SERVICE.

(Revised for this issue of THE WORLD ALMANAC by the Secretary of the Civil Service Commission.)

The purpose of the Civil Service act, as declared in its title, is "to regulate and improve the Civil Service of the United States." It provides for the appointment of three Commissioners, a chief Examiner, a Secretary, and other employees, and makes it the duty of the Commissioners to aid the President as he may request in preparing suitable rules for carrying the act into effect; to make regulations to govern all examinations held under the provisions of the act, and to make investigations and report upon all matters touching the enforcement and effect of the rules and regulations. The address of the commission is Washington, D. C.

PROVISIONS OF THE RULES.

The act requires the rules to provide, as nearly as the conditions of good administration will warrant, for open competitive practical examinations for testing the fitness of applicants for the classified service; for the filling of all vacancies by selections from among those graded highest; for the apportionment of appointments at Washington among the States upon the basis of population, for a period of probation before absolute appointment; that no person in the public service shall be obliged to contribute service or money for political purposes; that persons in the competitive service, while retaining the right to vote as they please or to express privately their political opinions, shall take no active part in political campaigns, and that no person in said service has any right to use his official authority or influence to coerce the political action of any person or body.

EXTENT OF THE SERVICE.

There were on June 30, 1914, 482,721 positions in the Executive Civil Service, 60 per cent. of which, or about 292,460, were subject to competitive examination. The expenditure for salaries in the Executive Civil Service is over $200,000,000 a year. The Civil Service act does not require the classification of persons appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate or of persons employed merely as laborers or workmen. Many positions are excepted in part from the provisions of the rules for various reasons.

APPLICATIONS.

Persons seeking to be examined must file an application blank. The blank for the Departmental Service at Washington, Railway Mail Service, the Indian School Service, and the Government Printing Service should be requested directly of the Civil Service Commission at Washington. The blank for the Customs, Postal, or Internal Revenue Service should be requested of the Civil Service Board of Examiners at the office where service is sought.

Applicants for examination must be citizens of the United States and of the proper age. No person using intoxicating liquors to excess may be appointed. No discrimination is made on account of sex, color, or political or religious opinions. The limitations of age vary with the different services, but do not apply to any person honorably discharged from the military or naval service of the United States by reason of disability resulting from wounds or sickness incurred in the line of duty.

EXAMINATIONS.

The examinations are open to all persons qualified in respect to age, citizenship, legal residence, character, and health. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914, 41,206 persons were appointed. Of those appointed, 2,595 were rural letter-carriers, 7,030 were mechanics and workmen at navy yards appointed on registration tests of fitness given by a board of labor employment at each yard. Several hundred different kinds of examinations were held, each one of which involved different tests. Three hundred and sixty-four of these examinations contained educational tests, the others being for mechanical trades or skilled occupations and consisting of certificates of employers or fellow-workmen. Examinations are held twice a year in each State and Territory, the places and dates being publicly announced.

APPOINTMENTS.

In case of a vacancy not filled by promotion, reduction, transfer, or reinstatement, the highest three of the sex called for on the appropriate register are certified for appointment, the apportionment being considered in appointments at Washington. In the absence of eligibles, or when the work is of short duration, temporary appointments, without examination, are permitted. The number of women applying for ordinary clerical places is greatly in excess of the calls of appointing officers. The chances of appointment are good for teachers, matrons, seamstresses, and physicians in the Indian Service, for male stenographers and typewriters, draughtsmen, patent examiners, civil, mechanical, and electrical engineers, and for technical and scientific experts.

PREFERENCE CLAIMANTS.

Persons who served in the military or naval service of the United States, and were discharged by reason of disabilities resulting from wounds or sickness incurred in the line of duty, are, under the Civil Service rules, given certain preferences. They are released from all maximum age limitations, are eligible for appointment at a grade of 65, while all others are obliged to obtain a grade of 70, and are certified to appointing officers before all others. Subject to the other conditions of the rules, a veteran of the rebellion or of the war with Spain, or the widow of any such person, or any army nurse of either war, may be reinstated without regard to the length of time he or she has been separated from the service.

INSULAR POSSESSIONS.

Examinations are also held for positions in the Philippines, Porto Rico, and Hawaii, and also for the Isthmian Canal service.

THE UNCLASSIFIED SERVICE.

Under an executive order unclassified laborers are appointed after open, competitive examination upon their physical condition. This action is outside the Civil Service act.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE COMMISSION.

Among the publications of the commission for free distribution are the following: Manual of Examinations, giving places and dates of examinations, rules by which papers are rated, descriptions of examinations, specimen questions, and general information.

The Civil Service act and rules.

The Annual Reports of the commission, showing its work. These annual reports may be consulted at public libraries.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF LETTER CARRIERS.

THE objects of the association are: First, to unite fraternally all letter carriers in the United States for their mutual benefit. Second, to obtain and secure rights as Government employes and to strive at all times to promote the welfare of every member. Third, to create and establish the United States Letter Carriers' Mutual Benefit Association, as defined in the Constitution and General Laws governing said association. Fourth, in conjunction with the Post-Office Department, to strive for the constant improvement of the service. Fifth, to create and establish the United States Letter Carriers' National Sick Benefit Association. The association has a membership of 35,000. The dues are $1.50 per annum.

CIVIL SERVICE RULES IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

SYNOPSIS of regulations governing the admission of persons into the civil service of the city of New York. Information may also be had by applying to the Secretary of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, Municipal Building, 14th floor.

Under the White Civil Service law, Chapter 370, Laws of 1899, April 19, the rules apply to all positions in the service of the city of New York except officers elected by the people, all legislative officers and employes, heads of any department, or superintendents, principals, or teachers in a public school, academy, or college. This requires "examinations, wherever practicable, to ascertain the fitness of applicants for appointment to the civil service of said city." The Constitution requires that these examinations shall be competitive, "so far as practicable."

APPLICATIONS.

Applications are received only for such positions and during such dates as advertised in the "City Record."

Applications of competitors for positions must be addressed to the "Secretary of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, New York City," and must set forth:

First—The affidavit of the applicant showing his age, whether a citizen of the United States, giving his place of residence, with the street and number thereof, if any; the place, nature, and extent of his education, and of his business training and experience, and stating whether he has ever been in the civil service of the city of New York, or in the military or naval service of the United States, and if so, when and where.

Second—A statement whether such application is limited to any particular office in the service.

Third—The certificate of four reputable persons of the city of New York, that they have been personally acquainted with the applicant for at least one year, and believe him to be of good moral character, of temperate and industrious habits, and in all respects fit for the service he wishes to enter, and that each of them is willing that such certificate should be published for public information, and will upon request give such further information concerning the applicant as he may possess.

In examinations for positions requiring experience, applicants must file with their application an experience paper. In some examinations applicants receiving less than the minimum passing mark on this paper are barred from the remainder of the examination.

Applicants for the following positions must, before being admitted to examination, present satisfactory evidence as to the following facts:

First—If the position to be filled be that of physician, surgeon, medical officer, medical superintendent, or medical inspector, that the applicant is duly authorized by the laws of the State of New York to practise medicine and surgery.

In positions where the duties are professional, technical, or expert, the candidates will be required to present evidences of the preliminary training or technical education they have undergone to qualify them for such situations before they can be admitted to examination.

In all examinations for professional positions, or positions requiring technical knowledge, no person shall be placed on the eligible list who obtains a rating in technical knowledge of less than 75.

CONDUCT OF EXAMINATIONS.

Applicants shall be admitted to examination upon the production of the official notification to appear for that purpose.

All paper upon which examinations are to be written shall be furnished to the applicants by the examining board and shall bear some suitable official indorsement, stamp, or mark, for the purpose of identifying the same.

All examinations shall be in writing, except such as refer to expertness or physical qualities, and except as herein otherwise provided.

The sheets of questions shall be numbered and shall be given out in the order of their numbers, each, after the first, being given only when the competitor has returned to the examiners the last sheet given to him. In general, no examination shall extend beyond five hours without intermission; and no questions given out at any session, to any candidate, shall be allowed to be answered at another session.

Each examiner shall exercise all due diligence to secure fairness and prevent all collusion and fraud in the examinations.

The time allowed for completing the examination shall be announced before the first paper is given out.

The following municipal departments and offices come under jurisdiction of Civil Service rules:

NATIONAL STATUARY HALL.

WORKS of art in the Capitol Building, Washington, have been acquired by gift from private individuals interested in the preservation of the historical, biographical, or pictorial art of the nation; by the gift from States, as instanced by the statues of distinguished citizens forming the collection in Statuary Hall; and by purchase by the Government. A general supervision of the art works of the Capitol is exercised by the Joint Committee on the Library. This committee also has charge of accessions to the art works of the Capitol Building, except as otherwise provided by law.

Statuary Hall, formerly the hall of the House of Representatives, was established as Statuary Hall by act of Congress of July 2, 1864. By this legislation a National Hall of Statuary was created, and the President was authorized to invite each State to contribute to the collection to be formed; two statues, in either marble or bronze, of deceased citizens of the State whom "for historic renown or from civil or military services" the State should consider as worthy of commemoration in this National Hall of Statuary.

The following is a list of statues presented by the States and the dates of the works:

PROSECUTION OF TRUSTS BY THE UNITED STATES.

THE following is the status on October 1, 1915, of the cases brought by the United States under the terms of the Sherman Anti-Trust act:

United States vs. Great Lakes Towing Company et al.—Petition filed June 19, 1910, in the Circuit Court, Northern District of Ohio, against an alleged combination of towing facilities on the Great Lakes. A decision in favor of the Government was handed down February 11, 1913. Final decree entered February 13, 1915, from which the Government has appealed to the Supreme Court.

United States vs. American Sugar Refining Company et al.—Petition filed November 28, 1910, in the Circuit Court, Southern District of New York, alleging a combination in restraint of trade and praying for its dissolution. Demurrer was overruled December 11, 1911. Taking of testimony formally closed April 3, 1915. After argument of motion to have case set for hearing, the Court fixed the first Monday in October, 1915.

United States vs. Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt Actien Gesellschaft and others—Petition filed January 4, 1911, in the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, to dissolve a combination of steamship lines regulating steamer traffic on the Atlantic Ocean. Demurrers were overruled December 20, 1911. The case was argued in April, 1914, and a decision adverse to the Government was handed down on October 13, 1914. The Government has appealed to the Supreme Court. Set for argument October 12, 1915.

United States vs. Edward E. Hartwick et al.—Petition filed August 31, 1911, in the Circuit Court, Eastern District of Michigan, alleging conspiracy and unlawful restraint of trade on the part of members of the Michigan Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, The Scout Publishing Company, and the Lumber Secretaries' Bureau of Information. Issues joined and taking of testimony completed. Trial deferred, awaiting decision in case against Hollis and others.

United States vs. The Colorado and Wyoming Lumber Dealers' Association and The Lumber Secretaries' Bureau of Information—Petition filed September 25, 1911, in the Circuit Court, District of Colorado, for injunction against defendants for conspiracy to restrain trade in lumber and its products. The taking of testimony has been completed. Trial deferred, awaiting decision in case against Hollis et al.

United States vs. Willard G. Hollis et al.—Petition in equity filed October, 1911, in the Circuit Court, District of Minnesota, against the Lumber Secretaries' Bureau of Information, the Lumberman Publishing Company and certain individuals, alleging conspiracy and combination in the lumber trade. The taking of testimony has been completed. Case argued in December, 1914, and decision of Supreme Court awaited.

United States vs. United States Steel Corporation and others—Petition filed October 27, 1911, in District Court for District of New Jersey, alleging a combination in restraint of interstate commerce in iron and steel and their products and an attempt to monopolize the same. Taking of testimony completed. Case argued before the Circuit Judges in October, 1914. Decision adverse to Government handed down June 3, 1915. Decree dismissing petition entered September 10, 1915, from which the Government will appeal to the Supreme Court.

United States vs. National Cash Register Company et al.—Petition filed December 4, 1911, in Circuit Court, Southern District of Ohio, alleging conspiracy and monopoly in the manufacture, sale and shipment of cash registers and other registering devices. Issue joined and taking of testimony pending. Delay due to prosecution of criminal case against Patterson et al.

United States vs. United Shoe Machinery Company et al.—Petition in equity filed December 12, 1911, in Circuit Court, District of Massachusetts, alleging combinations and conspiracies in restraint of interstate and foreign trade in shoe machinery, and praying for perpetual restraining order, dissolution of company and restoration of normal conditions. Taking of testimony completed. Case argued in June, 1914. Decision adverse to the Government and dismissing petition handed down March 18, 1915. Case appealed to Supreme Court.

United States vs. The Keystone Watch Case Company et al.—Petition filed December 20, 1911, in the Circuit Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania, alleging unlawful contracts, combinations, and conspiracies to monopolize trade in filled watch cases and watches, and praying for a permanent decree ordering the dissolution of the company and enjoining defendants from further committing the unlawful acts complained of. Argued in June, 1914, and on January 2, 1915, a decision partly favorable and partly adverse to the contentions of the Government was handed down. Decree entered June 4, 1915, from which the Government will appeal to the Supreme Court.

United States vs. John H. Patterson et al.—Indictment returned February 22, 1912, in the Southern District of Ohio, against John H. Patterson, President, and 29 other officials and employees of the National Cash Register Company, alleging a conspiracy in restraint of interstate trade and commerce in cash registers, resulting in an unlawful monopoly of the industry. Demurrer overruled June 26, 1912. Trial resulted in a verdict of guilty as to 29 of the 30 defendants and fines aggregating $135,000 and jail sentences ranging from nine months to one year were imposed, from which the defendants appealed. In a decision handed down March 13, 1915, the Court of Appeals reversed the judgment of the lower court. The Government made application to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari, which was denied on June 14, 1915.

United States vs. American-Asiatic Steamship Company et al.—Petition in equity filed March 30, 1912, in Southern District of New York, charging defendants with combining and conspiring, entering into unlawful contracts and pooling agreements, and allowing rebates, for the purpose of securing a monopoly of the business of transporting freight between ports on the Atlantic Coast of the United States and ports in the Philippine Islands, Japan, China, and the Far East. Issue joined. Taking of testimony completed. A decision in the main adverse to the contentions of the Government was handed down on February 3, 1915. The Government has appealed to the Supreme Court.

United States vs. International Harvester Company et al.—Petition filed April 30, 1912, in the District Court, District of Minnesota, alleging the acquisition and maintenance of a monopoly in harvesting and agricultural machinery and implements and twine. Testimony taken, expediting certificate filed, and case argued before three Circuit Judges at St. Paul during November, 1913. Decision favorable to the Government filed August 12, 1914. The defendants appealed to the Supreme Court, where the case was argued during the early part of April, 1915. June 2, 1915, restored to docket for re-argument at Fall term of court, 1915.

United States vs. Prince Line (Limited) et al.—Petition filed June 5, 1912, in the District Court, Southern District of New York, charging defendants, as common carriers of freight and passengers, between ports of the United States and ports in the Republic of Brazil, with acquiring and maintaining a substantial monopoly by means of contracts, rebates, and other unlawful acts, and praying for an annulment of said contracts and agreements. Issue joined and taking of testimony completed. A decision in the main adverse to the contentions of the Government was handed down on February 3, 1915. The Government has appealed to the Supreme Court.

United States vs. Associated Billposters and Distributors of the United States and Canada et al.—Petition filed August 3, 1912, in the District Court, Northern District of Illinois, charging defendants with engaging in a combination and conspiracy to place unlawful restraints upon interstate and foreign trade and commerce in posters. Demurrer overruled. Trial completed in July, 1915, and the decision of the court is awaited.

United States vs. Motion Picture Patents Company et al.—Petition filed August 15, 1912, in the District Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania, to remove the restraints which defendants have imposed upon interstate and foreign trade and commerce in machines, appliances, and apparatus relating to the motion-picture art, and upon persons engaged in such trade and commerce. The taking of testimony completed. Case argued in December, 1914, and a decision is awaited.

United States vs. Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Company et al.—Petition filed December 26, 1912, in the Eastern District of Michigan, alleging that the business policy of the defendant company in fixing and enforcing resale prices on Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes is unlawful and tends to restrain and monopolize interstate commerce in said product. The defendants filed a motion to strike out and dismiss, and the Government filed a motion to amend. The several motions were argued in July, 1914, and a decision favorable to the Government was handed down April 14, 1915. The department is not advised as to whether the defendants will appeal.

United States vs. United Shoe Machinery Company of New Jersey et al.—Petition filed February 8, 1913, in the District Court at Trenton, N. J., seeking to have annulled an alleged unlawful contract involving "inseam trimming machines." Pending.

United States vs. Board of Trade of the city of Chicago et al.—Petition filed February 11, 1913, in the District Court at Chicago, Ill., attacking rule 33 of the Chicago Board of Trade, by virtue of which it is alleged the price of all corn, oats, wheat, and rye arriving in Chicago at times when the Board of Trade is not in session is arbitrarily determined. Motion to strike out certain portions of defendants' answer has been granted. Argued in January, 1915. Decided in favor of the Government September 8, 1915, and the form of decree to be entered is now under consideration.

United States vs. The Cleveland Stone Company et al.—Petition filed February 12, 1913, in the District Court at Cleveland, Northern District of Ohio, charging defendants with establishing and maintaining a practical monopoly of the stone business. Case awaiting trial.

United States vs. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company and The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal Company—Petition filed February 13, 1913, in the District Court at Trenton, N. J., charging defendants with transporting coal in which it had an interest in violation of the commodities clause of the Interstate Commerce act, and with entering into an unlawful contract whereby the coal company acquired a monopoly of the sale of anthracite coal produced along the line of the railroad company, in violation of the Anti-Trust act. Taking of testimony completed. Argued in January, 1914, and a decision adverse to the Government was handed down April 7, 1914. The Government appealed to the Supreme Court and the case was argued in December, 1914. Decided in favor of Government June 21, 1915. Final decree entered August 11, 1915.

United States vs. Corn Products Refining Company et al.—Petition filed March 1, 1913, in the District Court at New York City, charging defendants with monopolizing interstate trade and commerce in corn products, and praying for the dissolution of the combination. Issue joined, and taking of testimony is in progress.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S ADMINISTRATION, MARCH 4, 1913.

United States vs. Eastern Kodak Company et al.—Petition filed June 9, 1913, in the District Court at Buffalo, Western District of New York, alleging that defendants have acquired a monopoly of the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing photographic supplies. Demurrer sustained April 13, 1915.

NATIONAL SECURITY LEAGUE

CONVINCED that something should be done to arouse the public to a realization of our unpreparedness a group of prominent citizens of New York decided to call a public meeting for the purpose of devising the best means of placing before the people the facts concerning the condition of our defences.

The meeting was held in New York, December 1, 1914, in response to a call issued by S. Stanwood Menken, Herbert Barry, George Haven Putnam, Lawrence F. Abbott, J. Mayhew Wainwright, Charles E. Lydecker and Franklin G. Brown. Ways and means of bringing home to the people the lessons of the European War and a realization of our own defencelessness were discussed, and it was decided to organize a new league on grounds broad enough to embrace all branches of our military establishment and on strictly non-political and non-partisan lines. Officers were elected and resolutions were adopted defining the purpose of the league as follows:

"Whereas, It has been the general policy of our Government to avoid entering into entangling alliances or international relations that would be likely to involve war responsibilities; and, with a natural reliance upon our geographical position and the well tested courage and public spirit of our citizens to rest the defence of the country upon a minimum of military and naval forces and upon the calculation that it should prove possible in an emergency to bring into organization with sufficient promptness a citizens' defensive force; and

"Whereas, It is the opinion of the citizens here assembled that, under the changed conditions of international relations, it may not be wise to continue to intrust our National defence to hurried emergency measures;

"Now, To the end that popular sentiment may be aroused and public opinion may be organized throughout the entire breadth of the land for the purpose of insuring the enactment by Congress and by other legislative bodies of the measures required for National security, and as the first step toward such general action, to procure a proper inquiry on the part of the Administration and of Congress, and to make preparations for whatever action the results of such inquiry may seem to render essential;

"Resolved, 1. That we now constitute an association which shall be called "The National Security League."

"II. That a Committee of Fifty be appointed by the Chairman, with power to add to its members; to create an executive committee and such other committees as may be found advisable; to adopt suitable by-laws for the governance and for the extension of the league; to take steps to secure the creation of branch leagues or associated leagues throughout the United States, with a central body which shall have the general control of the business of the league; and to take all measures that may be found desirable for the purpose of maintaining the security of the Nation and for developing the opinion of our citizens in regard to the conditions on which National security must be based; and to secure such legislation as may be required for those patriotic purposes.

"III. To enroll in its membership, with such conditions as may be found advisable, all citizens who are in accord with the purposes and the work of this league."

The following principles were adopted: 1. There is no assurance that we will not again become involved in war. 2. That a peaceful policy, even when supported by treaties, is not a sufficient guarantee against war, and that the United States cannot safely intrust the maintenance of its institutions and nationality to them. 3. That until a workable plan for a world alliance has been evolved and agreed to by the principal nations with proper guarantees of good faith, the United States must maintain adequate military preparations for its defence. 4. That we are not adequately prepared to maintain our National policies. 5. That the present defenceless condition is due not only to the failure to follow the carefully considered plans of our naval and military advisers, but also to provide any reasonable measure for gradually putting such plans into practice.

In the first place, it is the purpose of the league to lay before the country the plans of defence which have been carefully and scientifically prepared by our military advisers—the General Staff of the Army and the General Board of the Navy—and which have been approved by the successive administrations of the War and Navy Departments; and then it is purposed to urge citizens to co-operate in insisting that Congress enact such legislation as may be necessary:

- |                                                                                              |                                                                                      |
| 1. For correcting the present wasteful methods of military appropriations and disbursements. | 4. For a larger standing army.                                                       |
| 2. For the adoption of a definite military policy.                                           | 5. For a larger and better National Guard.                                           |
| 3. For a stronger and better balanced navy.                                                  | 6. For the creation of an organized reserve for each branch of our military service. |

Early in May, 1915, an open letter, signed by Messrs. Choate, Parker, Stimson, and Menken, was made public, calling upon the public to support the programme of the league. On June 14 and 15 a nation-wide congress was held, under the auspices of the league, in New York City. This congress was attended by delegates from more than twenty-five States, and speakers included the leading civilian experts of the country, and was attended by over 10,000 people.

The league has been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, and the following officers chosen: Honorary President—Joseph H. Choate. Honorary Vice-President—Alton B. Parker. President—S. Stanwood Menken. Secretary—Herbert Barry. Treasurer—E. H. Clark. Executive Secretary—Henry L. West. Headquarters, 31 Pine Street, New York City.

THE SHERMAN LAW.

THE following is the text of the Sherman law concerning Trusts:
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SEC. 1. Every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract, or engage in any such combination or conspiracy, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments in the discretion of the Court.

SEC. 2. Every person who shall monopolize, or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the Court.

SEC. 3. Every contract, combination in form or trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce in any Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia, or in restraint of trade or commerce between any such Territory and another, or between any such Territory or Territories and State or States or the District of Columbia, or with foreign nations, or between the District of Columbia and any State or States or foreign nations, is hereby declared illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract, or engage in any such combination or conspiracy, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments in the discretion of the Court.

SEC. 4. The several Circuit Courts of the United States are hereby invested with jurisdiction to prevent and restrain violations of this act; and it shall be the duty of the several District Attorneys of the United States, in their respective districts, under the direction of the Attorney-General, to institute proceedings in equity to prevent and restrain such violations. Such proceedings may be by way of petition setting forth the case and praying that such violation shall be enjoined or otherwise prohibited. When the parties complained of shall have been duly notified of such petition the Court shall proceed, as soon as may be, to the hearing and determination of the case; and pending such petition and before final decree, the Court may at any time make such temporary restraining order or prohibition as shall be deemed just in the premises.

SEC. 5. Whenever it shall appear to the Court before which any proceeding under sec. 4 of this act may be pending, that the ends of justice require that other parties should be brought before the Court, the Court may cause them to be summoned, whether they reside in the district in which the Court is held or not; and subpoenas to that end may be served in any district by the marshal thereof.

SEC. 6. Any property owned under any contract or by any combination, or pursuant to any conspiracy (and being the subject thereof) mentioned in sec. 1 of this act, and being in the course of transportation from one State to another, or to a foreign country, shall be forfeited to the United States, and may be seized and condemned by like proceedings as those provided by law for the forfeiture, seizure and condemnation of property imported into the United States contrary to law.

SEC. 7. Any person who shall be injured in his business or property by any other person or corporation by reason of anything forbidden or declared to be unlawful by this act may sue therefor in any Circuit Court of the United States in the district in which the defendant resides or is found, without respect to the amount in controversy, and shall recover threefold the damages by him sustained, and the costs of suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee.

SEC. 8. That the word "person" or "persons" wherever used in this act shall be deemed to include corporations and associations existing under or authorized by the laws of either the United States, the laws of any of the Territories, the laws of any State or the laws of any foreign country.

Approved July 2, 1890.

NOTE—Two or more sections of the Clayton Trust bill (of 1914) amend the Sherman law; the other sections of the bill, as well as sec. 5 of the Federal Trade Commission law, are supplemental to the Sherman act.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION.

Chairman—Joseph E. Davies, Wisconsin. Vice-Chairman—Edward N. Hurley, Illinois; William J. Harris, Georgia; Will H. Parry, Washington; George Rublee, New Hampshire. Secretary—

THE Federal Trade Commission is composed of five Commissioners appointed by the President. Not more than three of the Commissioners can be members of the same political party. The first Commissioners appointed continue in office for terms of three, four, five, six, and seven years respectively, the term of each to be designated by the President, but their successors will be appointed for terms of seven years, except that any person chosen to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the Commissioner whom he shall succeed, and no Commissioner shall engage in any other business, vocation, or employment. A vacancy in the commission does not impair the right of the remaining Commissioners to exercise all the powers of the commission. The Commissioners receive a salary of $10,000 a year, and the secretary $5,000.

SEC. 3 provides: That upon the organization of the commission and election of its Chairman, the Bureau of Corporations and the offices of Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner of Corporations cease to exist; and all pending investigations and proceedings of the Bureau of Corporations are continued by the commission.

The principal office of the commission is in Washington, but it may meet and exercise all its powers at any other place. The commission may, by one or more of its members, or by such examiners as it may designate, prosecute any inquiry necessary to its duties in any part of the United States.

SEC. 5 provides: That unfair methods of competition in commerce are declared unlawful. The commission is empowered and directed to prevent persons, partnerships, or corporations, except banks, and common carriers subject to the acts to regulate commerce, from using unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Whenever the commission shall have reason to believe that any such person, partnership, or corporation has been or is using any unfair method of competition in commerce, and if it shall appear to the commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the interest of the public, it shall issue and serve upon such person, partnership, or corporation a complaint stating its charges in that respect, and containing a notice of a hearing upon a day and at a place therein fixed at least thirty days after the service of said complaint. The person, partnership, or corporation so complained of shall have the right to appear at the place and time so fixed and show cause why an order should not be entered by the commission requiring such person, partnership, or corporation to cease and desist from the violation of the law so charged in said complaint. Any person, partnership, or corporation may make application, and upon good cause shown may be allowed by the commission, to intervene and appear in said proceeding by counsel or in person. The testimony in any such proceeding shall be reduced to writing and filed in the office of the commission. If upon such hearing the commission shall be of the opinion that the method of competition in question is prohibited by this act, it shall make a report in writing in which it shall state its findings as to the facts and shall issue and cause to be served on such person, partnership, or corporation an order requiring such person, partnership, or corporation to cease and desist from using such method of competition. Until a transcript of the record in such hearing shall have been filed in a Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States, as hereinafter provided, the commission may at any time, upon such notice and in such manner as it shall deem proper, modify or set aside, in whole or in part, any report or any order made or issued by it under this section.

If such person, partnership, or corporation fails or neglects to obey such order of the commission while the same is in effect, the commission may apply to the Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States, within any circuit where the method of competition in question was used or where such person, partnership, or corporation resides or carries on business, for the enforcement of its order, and shall certify and file with its application a transcript of the entire record in the proceeding, including all the testimony taken and the report and order of the commission. Upon such filing of the application and transcript the court shall cause notice thereof to be served upon such person, partnership, or corporation and thereupon shall have jurisdiction of the proceeding and of the question determined therein, and shall have power to make and enter upon the pleadings, testimony, and proceedings set forth in such transcript a decree affirming, modifying, or setting aside the order of the commission. The findings of the commission as to the facts, if supported by testimony, shall be conclusive.

SEC. 6 provides: To investigate, from time to time, trade conditions in and with foreign countries where associations, combinations, or practices of manufacturers, merchants, or traders, or other conditions, may affect the foreign trade of the United States, and to report to Congress thereon, with such recommendations as it deems advisable.

SEC. 10. Any person who shall neglect or refuse to attend and testify, or to answer any lawful inquiry or to produce documentary evidence, if in his power to do so, in obedience to the subpoena or lawful requirement of the commission shall be guilty of an offence and upon conviction thereof by a court of competent jurisdiction shall be punished by a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 11. Nothing in this act, approved September 26, 1914, shall be construed to prevent or interfere with the enforcement of the provisions of the Anti-Trust acts or the acts to regulate commerce, nor shall anything contained in the act be construed to alter, modify, or repeal the said Anti-Trust acts or the acts to regulate commerce or any part or parts thereof.

The commission is authorized to enforce compliance with sections 2, 3, 7, and 8 of the act approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton act, as printed in vol. 1915 of THE WORLD ALMANAC), by persons and corporations respectively subject thereto, except common carriers, banks, banking associations, and trust companies.

THE PILGRIMS.

The Pilgrims was organized in London during coronation year, 1902. It was born of a desire on the part of a few Anglo-Americans, who foregathered in London at that time, to have a society that would stand for the promotion of good fellowship and friendship between Britons and Americans as individuals.

The British Pilgrims has a membership of 400. The American Pilgrims was organized in 1903 and has a membership of 600, which is the limit specified in the rules. There is a long waiting list of applicants.

The society takes no part in politics or affairs of state or church, but simply and solely the cementing of friendship between citizens of the United States and its dependencies and the subjects of the British Empire. It exists for the one purpose of fostering by social means a friendly understanding between the people of the United States and those of Great Britain, and to bring distinguished visitors from Great Britain into contact with leading citizens of New York and the most eminent men of the country.

The citizens of the United States and its dependencies and subjects of the British Empire, and others prominent for their sympathy with the objects of the society, are eligible for membership, and membership in one society ipso facto constitutes membership in the other.

The officers and Executive Committee of the Pilgrims of Great Britain are as follows:

President—

Vice-Presidents—The Archbishop of Canterbury; Field-Marshal Lord Grenfell, G. C. B.; Admiral the Hon. Sir Hedworth Lampton Meux, K. C. V. O.

The fastest day's run was made by the Mauretania of the Cunard line, January, 1911—676 knots, or 27.04 knots per hour.

United States battleship speed record made by the Wyoming, July 19, 1912. On the twenty-first standardization run she made a speed of 22.045 knots. The torpedo boat destroyer McDougal broke all mile speed records for her type in standardization trials off Rockland, Me., in May, 1914. She ploughed the water at the rate of 32.07 knots an hour on her fastest mile. The average of her five full speed runs was 31.516 knots.

1905 record.—Allen line's turbine Steamer Virginian passed Cape Race June 13, 11 A. M., inward bound, having left Mobile on the afternoon of June 9, thus crossing in less than four days.

On March 19, 1914, the freighter Santa Cruz (oil burner) steamed into San Francisco from New York via the Straits of Magellan. The distance is approximately 13,000 miles and the time consumed was 47 days and 4 hours.

SHIP REGISTRY.

AN act to provide for the admission of foreign-built ships to American registry for the foreign trade, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the words "not more than five years old at the time they apply for registry" in section 5 of the act entitled "An act to provide for the opening, maintenance, protection, and operation of the Panama Canal and the sanitation and government of the Canal Zone," are hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. That the President of the United States is hereby authorized, whenever in his discretion the needs of foreign commerce may require, to suspend by order, so far and for such length of time as he may deem desirable, the provisions of law prescribing that all the watch officers of vessels of the United States registered for foreign trade shall be citizens of the United States.

Under like conditions, in like manner, and to like extent the President of the United States is also hereby authorized to suspend the provisions of the law requiring survey, inspection, and measurement by officers of the United States of foreign-built vessels admitted to American registry under this act.

SEC. 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

UNITED STATES BOARD OF MEDIATION AND CONCILIATION.

Commissioner—William L. Chambers. Assistant Commissioner—G. Wallace W. Hanger. Members of Board—William L. Chambers and Martin A. Knapp.

(Created by act of Congress, Approved July 15, 1913.)

The purpose for which the board was established is to settle by mediation, conciliation and arbitration all controversies concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment that may arise between any common carrier or carriers engaged in the transportation of passengers or property wholly by railroad, or partly by railroad and partly by water, for a continuous carriage or shipment from one State or Territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, to any other State or Territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, or from any place in the United States to an adjacent foreign country, or from any place in the United States through a foreign country to any other place in the United States, and their employes, which includes all persons actually engaged in any capacity in train operation or train service of any description, whether the cars upon or in which they are employed are owned or held and operated by the carrier under lease or other contract.

The Commissioner is appointed by the President for a term of seven years, salary $7,500, and is the executive officer of the board, which consists of the Commissioner and not more than two other officials of the Government, who are designated by the President. The Assistant Commissioner is appointed by the President, salary $5,000 per annum.

Since the organization of the board and up to September 20, 1915, forty-seven controversies between railroads and their employes engaged in train operation have reached the stage where an appeal for the services of the Board of Mediation and Conciliation was made. In all of these cases an adjustment of the controversy was secured by the board, thirty-nine cases having been settled by mediation alone, while eight were settled by arbitration.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF CREDIT MEN.

The National Association of Credit Men has for its object the improving and safeguarding of the conditions under which credit is extended through the co-operation of its 13,300 members. It aims to secure the enactment of laws beneficial to the honest debtor and creditor. It strives for better mercantile agency service, the prevention of commercial fraud, the bettering of credit department methods, the dissemination of literature of general interest to credit men and the education of its customers in the use of the financial statement, observance of discount terms, etc.

The work is done through a number of standing committees appointed by the national organization, which work with the co-operation of similar committees appointed by one hundred and twelve affiliated branches. A number of the local branches operate bureaus for the exchange of credit information between their members, and bureaus for the friendly adjustment of insolvent estates.

UNITED STATES COAST GUARD.

HEADQUARTERS, TREASURY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE United States Coast Guard was created by the act of January 28, 1915, which provided that "There is hereby established in lieu of the existing Revenue Cutter Service and the Life-Saving Service, to be composed of those two existing organizations, the Coast Guard, which shall constitute a part of the military forces of the United States and which shall operate under the Treasury Department in time of peace, and operate as a part of the Navy, subject to the orders of the Secretary of the Navy, in time of war or when the President shall so direct." The original Revenue Cutter Service was organized by act of Congress approved August 4, 1790. The Life-Saving Service was originally operated under the Revenue Cutter Service, but on June 20, 1874, Congress created it a separate service to operate under the Treasury Department. The officers of the Coast Guard are on the same footing in rank and pay as officers of the Army and Navy. Appointments to cadetships are made after competitive examinations conducted by boards of commissioned officers of the Coast Guard. The cadets are educated at the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Ct. The course covers three years and embraces professional and academic subjects. Candidates for cadetships must not be less than 18 nor more than 24 years old, citizens of the United States, and unmarried. A class of cadets is appointed each year. Appointments as Cadet Engineers are made after competitive examinations conducted by boards of engineer officers of the Coast Guard. Candidates for Cadet Engineers must not be less than 20½ years of age and serve a probationary term of not less than one year before being commissioned Third Lieutenants of Engineers. No person can be commissioned Third Lieutenant of Engineers who is less than 21 or more than 26 years of age.

This branch of the Government is under the charge of Captain Commandant E. P. Bertholf; Senior Captain D. P. The authorized personnel is 255 commissioned officers and 3,886 warrant officers, petty officers, and enlisted men.

The Coast Guard stations are divided into thirteen districts, embracing the Atlantic, Gulf, Great Lakes, and Pacific Coasts, including Alaska. There are 279 Coast Guard stations and houses of refuge. One station is at the Falls of the Ohio, near Louisville, Ky.

OPERATIONS OF THE COAST GUARD FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDED JUNE 30, 1915.

The beneficial work performed by the Coast Guard in the interests of the public covers a wide and diversified scope. Its principal functions are the saving of life and property from destruction on the seas, but there are many other lines of endeavor where its potentiality and activities are exerted which benefit mankind and which cannot be expressed statistically. The following tabulated statement of appraisable work performed during the past year will, however, give an idea of the accomplishments of this humanitarian branch of the Federal service:

Number of accidents resulting in loss of life, 190, a decrease of 42 from previous year. Decrease in number of lives lost from previous year, 214. (During the year 307,348,008 passengers were carried on vessels that are required by law to report the number of passengers carried. Dividing this number by 107, the total number of passengers lost, shows that 2,872,411 passengers were carried for each passenger lost.)

NATIONAL WOMEN'S LIFE-SAVING LEAGUE.

ORGANIZED for work among women and children. Its purposes are: To encourage swimming by women and children; to co-operate with other organizations, whenever advisable, in the dissemination of knowledge on life saving from drowning and "first aid" to the injured; to encourage interest and promote efficiency in swimming and life saving by the holding of annual competitions for medals, prizes and the like; to encourage and advocate simplicity and rationalism in bathing and swimming costumes; to establish an athletic branch for the supervision of athletics, for women by women, in order to raise the dignity of such branch of outdoor sports so that all women may participate in the healthful and instructive exercises of swimming and life saving; to advocate the general adoption of swimming and life saving—rescue and resuscitation—as a branch of elementary education.

It conducts free classes of instruction in swimming, free competitions for the entertainment and benefit of its members, and public exhibition drills for the purpose of public instruction. The dues of the league are 50 cents a year, to cover postage and incidentals, bringing membership in the organization within the reach of all working women.

UNITED STATES BUREAU OF WAR RISK INSURANCE.

(William C. De Lanoy, Director (Salary $5,000); J. B. B. Parker, Assistant Director. Headquarters, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.)

THE Bureau of War Risk Insurance was created by Act of Congress September 2, 1914, to cover American ships and their cargoes against the risks of war. During the first year of its operation it has covered war risk insurance on many vessels and cargoes where the market was small, and without the assistance which was granted by the Bureau, many of these vessels could not have sailed.

On September 2, 1915, there had been issued 1,245 policies, covering $82,709,689 amount insured, and $2,004,695 premiums received. The bureau has been run very economically, the total expenses (for which an appropriation of $100,000 was made) for organizing, printing, stationery, salaries, etc., amounting to but $17,711. The losses paid aggregate $720,653, being for the Evelyn, Carib, Greenbrier, and William P. Frye. Salvage of $25,232 has been received for "Evelyn" cotton.

Owing to the exceptional hazards involved, the bureau will consider these ports only when application is made: All United Kingdom ports. All ports on the Continent of Europe other than Spanish or Portuguese ports. All ports of Asia Minor. All African ports in the Mediterranean Sea. All colonial possessions of Germany and Turkey. (Subject to change without notice.)

SUBMARINE CABLES OF THE WORLD.

(From report issued by the Bureau International de l'Union Telegraphique.)

The following table sets forth the entire system of submarine cables of the world, including those along the shores and in the bays, gulfs, and estuaries of rivers, but excepting those in lakes and the interior watercourses of continents. The list includes all cables operated by private companies, and in addition thereto under the name of each nation is given the list of cables operated by the government of that nation.

TELEGRAPH RATES—Continued.

On January 1st, 1912, a reduced rate on cable messages in plain language, taken on a delay basis, was inaugurated, and is now in effect between most countries. Deferred cable messages must be written in plain language of the country of origin or destination, must bear the declaration LCO (language country of origin), LCD (language country of destination), or LCF (language country French, as an international language), and are subordinated to full-rate messages in the order of transmission until an accumulated delay of 19 hours has occurred, when they take their turn with fully paid traffic. The tariff is generally one-half the regular rate, but on deferred messages between the United States or Canada and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland the tariff is 3 cents less than half rates.

In December, 1911, the Western Union Telegraph Company inaugurated two new forms of cable service. These new services, known as cable letters and week-end letters, are the cable equivalent of night letters in the domestic telegraph service, in that they are predicated on the use of facilities that otherwise would be idle at night, and on delivery the following day. Unlike all other forms of cable service, the tolls on which invariably are charged on a word basis, cable and week-end letters are charged on a message basis. The minimum charge on cable letters is, for 13 words (including a necessary prefix), and in week-end letters for 25 words (including a necessary prefix). The tariff varies according to distance, but between New York City and London is 75 cents and $1.15 for cable and week-end letters respectively.

The independent telephone companies of the United States, which are owned and operated entirely apart from the Bell organization, are represented in the National Independent Telephone Association, with headquarters in the Colorado Building, Washington, D. C., and the Independent Telephone Association of America, with headquarters in Chicago. According to the United States Census of 1912, there were 1,740 independent telephone companies with over $5,000 annual income, and 2,239,721 stations. Many of these companies connect with the Bell system. The capital invested is approximately $300,824,000 and the income is about $48,950,000 per annum. The independent companies, which are for the most part financed in the territories which they cover, are particularly strong throughout the middle and far West. They are established in nearly every large city in the United States except those on the Atlantic Coast.

ELECTRICAL PROGRESS.

A REVIEW of the industry specially prepared for the Engineering Department of the Society for Electrical

IN GENERAL.

To appreciate the rate of progress in the electrical field one needs to have a perspective. Hence, a brief review of striking advances during the fifteen years of the new century.

In 1900 the largest dynamo was of 4,600-kilowatt capacity—to-day 35,000-kilowatt, a 760% increase in size. A single dynamo of this size has a capacity of 1,750,000 16-candle power incandescent lamps of modern type. The improvement in maximum efficiency of incandescent lamps has increased 1,000%.

Hydro-electric power developed in the United States in 1900 totalled 150,000 kilowatts (200,000 horse-power); to-day 1,350,000 kilowatts (1,800,000 horse-power), a 900% increase. A stupendous saving of our coal resources.

Maximum distance transmitted in 1900—85 miles at 40,000 volts; now 245 miles at 150,000 volts pressure, an increase of 375% in voltage and 350% in distance.

In the field of transportation the advance has been extraordinary. New York in 1900 had just done away with steam locomotives on the elevated. In 1914 the street cars, elevated, and subways in Greater New York carried by means of electric traction 2,150,000,000 passengers and with such a degree of safety that it is now the practice of the accident insurance companies to pay double benefit in case of injury or death while riding on these cars, and this practice is based on the degree of risk and not on sentiment.

To handle this traffic large power plants were needed. As an example of progress, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company has found it good economy to replace the 5,000-kilowatt electric generating units installed only a short time before by new steam turbo-generators of 30,000-kilowatt capacity, occupying the same space as the former ones of one-sixth the power. This station has recently excelled all records in economy of water consumption, using only 11½ pounds of water per kilowatt hour at bus bars. In small plants up to three times this consumption is not unusual.

The evidence of the reliability of electric traction service to-day can be cited the record of the New York, Westchester and Boston Railroad, a multiple unit electric car system with overhead trolley. In the operation of all trains on the system in 1914, 99.2% were on time—a record excelling that of any steam road.

The Waterside Plant, one of the stations of the New York Edison Company, which furnishes light and power in Manhattan, is of 215,000 kilowatts (286,000 horse-power capacity), and is now the largest steam plant in the world.

In the home, electricity, used formerly only for lighting, and then only to a limited extent, is now a recognized household servant. A recent partial canvass of the manufacturers of electrical devices used in the home shows that over eight million appliances have been purchased by the public in the last few years. Of this figure, over 3,000,000 represents electric flatirons, the other large items being toasters, coffee percolators, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, and fans. In the West there is a very extensive use of the electric range, notably in the smaller communities. At a rate of 5 cents per kilowatt hour and less, these compare favorably in economy with coal ranges, with added advantage of better cooking and great saving of labor.

Electricity has greatly changed the methods of warfare. The telegraph and telephone, both wire and wireless, the searchlight, the range finder are controlling factors. All gasoline driven engines for aeroplanes, hydroplanes, autos, and tractors used for transportation are dependent upon electricity for the ignition.

The submarine could not run submerged without the storage battery. Large modern guns are fired by an electrically heated wire set in a bed of gun cotton in place of the old percussion cap, and are aimed by signals electrically transmitted from the fire control points, sometimes miles away.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS OF 1915.

Much of the electrical apparatus of to-day has reached such a high state of efficiency, that there is left little room for improvement, and marked advance can only be expected by radical invention. However, new applications are constantly being found for electric power, and many important lines of work have been successfully developed during 1915.

TRANSPORTATION: PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD—A number of the locomotives operating under the North and East Rivers at New York have now run from 90,000 to 112,000 miles each without requiring the turning down of tires or any general repair work, and have operated on an average nearly 15,000 miles for every minute of detention. They are called upon to start and move trains of up to 850 tons on grades reaching 1.93%.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul completed, October 1, the electrification of the first 113 miles of the Montana Division, from Three Forks to Deer Lodge, Mont., in addition to another 100 miles in operation January 1, 1916. A further 200 odd miles will be completed during 1916, and it is expected to ultimately operate the entire 850 miles from Harlowton to the Coast by electricity.

There have been provided 21 freight and passenger locomotives to operate with 3,000 volts direct current supplied by overhead ("Catenary") conductors. The electric engines will weigh 520,000 pounds each, have 16 drivers of 52 inches with a tractive effort of 85,000 pounds, and a horse-power equivalent for continuous service of 3,000. There are eight 375-H. P. motors connected to separate axles. Electric regenerative brakes will be used capable of holding the train without the use of air except in emergency. Electric power has been contracted for to .00536 cent per kilowatt hour on a 60% load factor. This cost is considerably less than is now expended for coal.

On the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad electric traction is being widely extended. Recent tests have proved very successful with steel reinforced mercury vapor rectifiers on the locomotive to change high tension alternating current from trolley to direct current for the motor.

A car having four 225-horse-power 600-volt motors has been operated for months by means of these rectifiers. This is an important development not only for this low tension work, but is available for rectifying high tension alternating current either on locomotives or in stationary sub-stations. This may determine in future the use of high tension direct current motors in railway practice, as they have many points of advantage over the alternating current motor.

The Norfolk and Western Railroad has equipped its lines during 1915 with 12 freight locomotives, with weight of 540,000 pounds, sixteen 62-inch drivers, tractive effort 90,000 pounds, continuous horse-power 3,000. They will operate with 11,000 volts single phase. These locomotives have greater capacity than the largest Mallet type of steam locomotive and twice the speed.

The Anaconda and Butte Railroad, which hauls ore from Anaconda to Butte and maintains the lowest freight rate in the country, is saving $20,000 a month since its electrification.

The New York Central Railroad, a pioneer in this country in electrification, has largely increased its service.

New heavy service electric railway from Grand Rapids to Kalamazoo and Battle Creek. This is the first 2,400-volt direct current overrunning third-rail line constructed in this country, where the lines leave the fenced-in right of way, the Catenary overhead system of distribution is used. The 50-mile run is made in from 70 to 85 minutes.

There has been electrified to date over 2,500 miles of single track of steam railroads in the United States.

The use of electrically operated (air) brakes on the separate units of a train has made much more rapid stopping possible, and will greatly increase safety and economy in railroading. Heretofore appreciable time was lost in communicating the impulse (the air pressure) from the engine to the different cars of a long train.

The most northerly railway in the world, starting at a point 87 miles north of the Arctic Circle, has just been electrified. It is a section of the Swedish State Railway and is used largely for carrying iron ore from mines to the Norwegian frontier. The power is transmitted 155 miles at 80,000 volts. The speed has increased train capacity 40% and the system 50%.

In the railway field there is also a wonderful achievement in the use of 5,000 to 7,000 volts direct current on an interurban car line. For some months experiments have been conducted on the branch of the Michigan United Traction Company's line running from Grass Lake to Wolf Lake. The line is twelve miles long. While running in the town limits the motors, of which there are four, run on 600 volts. They are of a distinctively new type, each motor having two armatures one above the other, each wound for 2,400 volts. After leaving the town limits the current is supplied from an overhead line, delivered at a potential of 5,000 volts. In other words, in the city limits the motors are running parallel and outside in series. Direct current at this pressure is secured by use of mercury vapor rectifiers referred to in an earlier paragraph of this report. For over three months the car has run without a single interruption in service due to car equipment. Considering the considerable increase in voltage over anything previously undertaken and the small size of the motor, the result is remarkable.

At the Panama Canal electric towing engines are taking the vessels through the great locks. Four locomotives are used for each ship, two forward and two back. At Gatun the vessel enters a series of three locks and is raised 85 feet to the level of Gatun Lake. At the central lock of Pedro Miguel it is lowered three feet to the level of Miraflores Lake. At Miraflores it is again lowered 55 feet through two locks to the Pacific channel. Rack rails are used on the steep grades. There will be a normal pull of 25,000 pounds exerted on the tow line by the electric locomotive. The wheel base is 12 feet, over all length 32 feet. In addition to the running gear each locomotive has a winding engine to keep a uniform pull on the tow line; speed 2 miles an hour.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER DEVELOPMENTS—The Canadian interests are planning to develop 600,000 horse-power on the northern side of the Niagara River below the Falls, and the American interests have even more ambitious projects for the American side.

The Federal Government is now working with the various States to establish rules and the enactment of laws covering the rights to water power in the Union. Secretary Lane is quoted as saying that the granting of properly guarded permits would immediately bring about large developments of these unused resources to the extent of over $100,000,000, with the consequent saving of our coal resources. He refers to the fact that in Billings, Mont., there are hundreds of houses lighted and heated with electricity where a fire has never been built, over 600 electric ranges being installed.

In Utah the development of hydro-electric power has given an important impetus to farming. Of the 600,000 horse-power of hydro-electric development in California, 150,000, or one-quarter, is utilized for agriculture; 11,000,000 acres of land in the State are susceptible to intensive cultivation by the use of electricity for irrigation.

New England is now utilizing her water power to the extent of over 600,000 horse-power, thus saving annually the consumption of 3,000,000 tons of coal worth $15,000,000.

Electrical energy from the great Keokuk plant on the Mississippi is now being sold at St. Louis at $18.00 per H. P. per year.

It is predicted that within the next ten years in the "blackland belt" of Texas, of 37,000 square miles' extent, nearly every farm house and rural community will be served by electricity.

WIRELESS—Since the last issue of the ALMANAC almost uninterrupted communication has been carried on between Tuckerton, N. J., or Sayville, L. I., and stations in Germany, and messages transmitted between the Eiffel Tower in Paris and Washington. The Eiffel Tower, built for the Paris Exposition in 1890 and long considered useless, has now become the antennae of France in her military operations.

The Hammond system of complete wireless control of a torpedo boat at a distance is now being considered by the Navy Department. Also the reported control of large aerial torpedoes discharged by aircraft by means of wireless current has provoked much interest in scientific circles.

Wireless signalling from aeroplanes has made scouting in the European war an effective means of locating enemy troops and batteries and has practically revolutionized warfare.

During 1915 telephone communication between the Atlantic Coast cities and San Francisco has been commercially established, and in railroading the wireless telephone has been successfully operated on moving trains of the Lackawanna road.

It is intended to use the system on not only limited trains for the convenience of the public but in signal work on freight trains to avoid the necessity of stopping for orders, each unnecessary stop of a long freight train representing a loss to the railroad of between $20.00 to $30.00.

On September 29, 1915, the human speaking voice was successfully transmitted between the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts, and regular telephone lines were used from New York to Arlington, Va., and relayed by wireless from there to the Mare Island Navy Yard, near San Francisco, Cal. This was the first successful transmission of the human speaking voice by wireless over a gap of 2,500 miles. The conversation took place between Theodore N. Vail and John J. Carty, who were able to recognize each other's voices.

On September 30, 1915, the human voice was transmitted from Arlington, Va. (Washington, D. C.), to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and was distinctly heard, the distance being over 4,600 miles.

The Great Lakes radio plant at Lake Bluff, near Chicago, one of the most powerful units in the United States Government, was formally opened on September 29, 1915.

X-RAY—Both in the European war and in the peaceful occupation of industry the X-ray has in the last twelve months established its economic value. In the field and in the hospital it is extensively used to locate bullets and bits of shrapnel, and in industry and commerce it is utilized to locate flaws in castings and forgings, also in searching for foreign matter or contraband by the Customs officials.

Many a large iron or steel casting or forging has received costly machining only to be found later that some radical hidden flaw made the work useless. Now the raw material can be pronounced sound before work is started. In the hospital service, bullets and pieces of shrapnel can be accurately located and removed by large electro-magnets without the use of surgical instruments. The improved Coolidge tube, which permits the directing of a concentrated ray to the affected part without danger of burning or affecting adjacent tissue or the operating surgeon, is the latest word in this department. Very recently the experiments of Dr. Stanley in his demonstration of a new ray of high power and without burning effect promises much in surgery and therapeutics.

The Stanley ray differs from the Röntgen ray (generally known as the X-ray) in that it is produced by a full cycle instead of by a half-cycle. The X-ray sets up disturbances in the blood streams which retard or prevent the germination of the phagocyte wave by which nature supplies food to the functioning of all cells of the human body. The waves are produced by the intersecting of the erythrocytes and senko-cytes, the red and white corpuscles. This action can be compared to the waves thrown off by the intersection of electrons and ions. These artificial waves being more powerful than those of the body, exert a control over them.

The Stanley tube has three cathodes with no outside anode connection. By special apparatus two circuits of different potentials different phase and different cycle supply current to the tube. There are three wires leading to the tube. Two carry an alternating current of 60 cycles and from 60,000 to 250,000 volts. The other wire transmits a current at pressure as high as a million volts and a cycle of several millions. This effects a complete intersecting of ions and electrons, permitting the use of a far smaller current than with the X-ray and also providing a ray more penetrating, yet free from any burning effect. In other words, Stanley has attempted to secure rays of higher harmonics to correspond and tune with those produced in the human body.

Exposure of the body to these rays for many hours at a time shows them free from the harmful (i.e., burning) quality of the X-ray. It is hoped that this new ray will prove of great value in surgery and therapeutics. In surgery the rays could be maintained throughout the complete operation, and in the treatment of cancer without the destruction of healthy tissues. An electrically operated saw is also being used by surgeons.

One of the intensely interesting developments of the year has been the phonopticon of Dr. F. C. Brown of the State University of Iowa by an apparatus using selenium crystals, making it possible for the totally blind to read print.

Light waves are practically transformed into sound waves. The image from a lens moving slowly across a printed page illuminated by a narrow ray of light acts upon from two to four parallel selenium crystals, creating an electrical response, which, acting on each crystal (as the arm of a Wheatstone bridge), operates while the metal so produced is very brittle, by annealing at 900° Centigrade a very soft, tough iron is secured, especially valuable for extra thin tubing and sheets, with extremely high magnetic values. The cost of production is estimated at from $40.00 to $45.00 per ton.

A successful electric furnace for smelting refractory zinc ores has been perfected by W. Mc. A. Johnson and a commercial unit is being constructed at Keokuk, Iowa, where cheap electric power is available.

Over 150,000,000 pounds* of aluminum are produced annually by electricity. The Hall patents having expired, other plants with large capacity are being built, one in Whitney, N. C., of 10,000 tons (20,000,000 pounds) annual capacity. In Norway one of 4,000,000 pounds.

Foreign water-power plants are producing power at $7.00 to $15.00 per H. P. year as against $15.00 to $30.00 in the United States for power delivered at the manufacturing plant transformer. This is due largely to the lower cost in development of the water power and to their proximity to industries.

Commercial success in the production of steel in electric furnaces will depend on the proximity of cheap power to the raw material required.

On the Pacific Slope, for example, where electrical energy is available at cheap rates, the cost of scrap metal approximates $15.00 a ton, which with cost of other materials, labor, and power, even at the low cost of 2 mills per kilowatt hour, would bring the cost price of the finished steel up to $30.00 a ton, or about the figure at which Eastern billet steel can be delivered.

A short ton of average coal has almost the same number of heat units as has an electrical horse-power year. As in even the most favored localities in the United States such electrical energy unit is valued at $16.00 and over, this form of heating energy could not compete generally with coal were it not for the fact that there is great waste in heat units in the combustion of coal in furnaces and a further serious injury to metals from the products of combustion.

The thermal efficiency of electric heat, however, often more than makes up for its greater theoretical cost for many metallurgical uses. This is notably true of its use in melting brass.

For mechanical purposes, however, in the production of not only iron and steel, but other metals, electricity already plays an important part. In steel mills in the United States it is stated that of the machine drive, 85% is already electrically operated.

NAVIGATION.—Submarines, which of necessity must be operated by electricity when submerged, have been greatly improved during the year under review. Vessels of this type of 1,000 tons displacement have been put in commission during 1915, with surface speeds up to 20 knots and submerged speed of 14 knots. Their radius of action has been largely increased. At least one has made the trip from a German port without tender to the Dardanelles, and two fleets of five each have journeyed from Canada to England. In this connection it is interesting to note that in addition to its use for propulsion, electricity is utilized on submarines both for lighting, for fans, for wireless, to run the gyroscope, and to cook all meals for the crew.

on a telephone receiver in place of the usual galvanometer, double magnets being used in two telephone receivers where four crystals are used.

In series with the telephone receivers is an interrupting device giving a definite frequency, and a resonating arrangement gives a different pitch for each crystal. A change in intensity of these pitches occurs when different letters are brought into range of the illuminated band, permitting the letter to be "read" by sound.

ELECTRO-METALLURGY.—Electrolytic iron has been produced on a commercial scale during 1915. At Grenoble, France, a current density of 1,000 amperes per square metre is used.

Taking a cast iron containing—

The battleship California, the keel of which was recently laid in the New York Navy Yard, and which is to cost $16,000,000, will be the first electrically driven battleship built. At 21 knots the power plant is designed to provide 32,000 shaft horse-power. This will be done probably by the use of four motors on two propeller shafts, though this point has not yet been publicly announced. A big advantage claimed for the new power is that it permits great saving in both weight and space, amounting to 40% when compared to the old style of reciprocating engines.

The turbines of the California will run at a speed of 2,200 revolutions per minute. Great economy of power will be effected in running at cruising speed, with ability to quickly increase the speed and even to reverse the power. This economy in power is strikingly brought out by Mr. Emmett of the General Electric Company in his estimate that a vessel of the Mauretania type could be electrically propelled at an annual saving of $150,000 in fuel cost.

The installation on warships and vessels of the merchant marine of the gyro-compass, the invention of Elmer A. Sperry, has marked a great advance in navigation. Previous to this invention the magnetic type of compass had to be relied upon. This not only did not indicate the true North, but was sensitive to many magnetic influences. The shifting of iron masses on board ship affected it, and even to a greater extent by the operation of electric machinery on board.

The Sperry gyro-compass not only points to the true North at all times, but has 290 times the directive force of the old-fashioned needle. The gyroscopic stabilizer is even more wonderful in its operation. It has been possible with a hydro-aeroplane with 4 gyros of 2½ pounds each running at 12,000 revolutions, to remain on an even keel in the air while the observer walked out one-third of the way on the plane. A Sperry motor-driven gyro-stabilizer, weighing only 1¼% of the tonnage of the vessel, has held a 1,000-ton torpedo boat destroyer on an even keel in a heavy sea not only when driving into waves, but also when running in the trough of the sea. One weighing 80 tons is now being placed on a 10,000-ton battleship. An electric sounding device has been successfully used on shipboard.

ELECTRO-CULTURE.—Much progress has been made in electro-culture both by illumination by electric lights and by the passing of electric current through the soil. This latter may be done by either constituting the soil as electrolyte of a voltaic cell by burying two plates of dissimilar metal connected by a conductor, by conducting atmospheric electricity from an elevated collector to an electrode in the soil, or by the production of a glow discharge through the air from overhead antennae to the soil.

Rain-making by sending out electric waves from captive balloons is another interesting possibility.

Telephotographic apparatus perfected during the year by George Rignoux permits the sending of visible forms by electricity.

The investigation of the interior of the earth by means of electric waves and oscillations gives promise of interesting results.

The photographing of projectiles to permit the study of ballistics has been made possible by the invention of apparatus which uses the light of the electric spark created by the passing of bullets through wires or wire nets electrically connected to the camera. Not only the trajectory has been shown, but the head waves and eddy currents of air are indicated in the photographs so produced.

Both the ultra-violet ray and ozone are now being utilized as germ destroyers in purifying water and milk. Much practical work has been done in this direction during 1915.

The purification or sterilization of milk electrically is new. A dairy company at Stamford is now operating a machine which purifies 1,000 quarts per hour. The milk is not allowed to exceed a temperature of 160° Fahrenheit, the thorough sterilization being accompanied by electrical energy (ultra-violet rays produced at a potential of 2,200 volts).

This treatment completely destroys disease carrying organisms without affecting the digestive and nutritive quality of the milk.

FARMING—In Kansas, near Wichita, farmers installed during 1914-1915 many electrically driven pumps for irrigating alfalfa fields. By two waterings for each of the five crops over five tons of alfalfa per acre were cut during the season. The first year's excess crop more than paid for the irrigating equipment.

Dr. F. C. Cottrell has added to the debt which the public owes him for his invention of the electrical precipitation of gas, smoke, and dust from chimneys and furnace stacks, by devising a method of separating water from oil as it comes from the oil wells. In the past many great producing oil wells were rendered almost valueless by the presence of water. By the use of a small current of high tension he has succeeded in eliminating water even up to 25%, at a cost of 1 to 3 cents per barrel of oil.

Electric heating coils have been used in deep oil wells with paraffin base to induce greater flow and melt out accumulations of heavy oils.

FINANCIAL—Extension of the use of electricity has been adversely influenced by the scarcity of money for new enterprises, but operating companies have generally more than held their own, and the securities of both manufacturing and public utility companies have increased in popularity with the investing public.

The banks of the United States have about 10½% of their investments in public utility bonds. Central station earnings from the supply of current for lighting and power equalled nearly $500,000,000 in 1915.

While commercial central stations represent 70% of the total, compared with 30% for the municipally owned plants, their income is over 92% of the total. The Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago leads all others in size with maximum load of over 300,000 kilowatts (400,000 horse-power). The aggregate of the ten leading stations totals over 1,350,000 kilowatts, with a yearly output of 6,502,965,328 kilowatt hours.

Much advance has been made during 1915 not only in lighting units but also in the knowledge of illumination. The study of eye-strain caused by exposure to the direct rays of illuminants of high intensity has demonstrated the value of indirect and semi-indirect methods, and this study has also developed a far greater knowledge of the reflecting value of various colors and textures.

The new non-vacuum incandescent lamp commonly known as the "gas-filled lamp" or "Mazda type C" has improved the efficiency of the incandescent electric about 100% during 1915.

INDUSTRIAL HEATING—One of the large central stations has recently organized an industrial heating department, and two of the applications of electric heat are novel and noteworthy.

The ovens for enamelling motor frames have heretofore been slow and unreliable, great difficulty having been found in maintaining the proper heat. An electric enamelling oven, with a connected load of approximately 7,500 horse-power with a demand of over 4,000, has recently been installed by a large manufacturing company. The lower part of the oven walls have been transformed into radiators, the radiant heat therefrom penetrating the air and the semi-liquid enamel, thus heating the solid portion of the product first and gradually conducting the heat to the enamel. The enamel closest to the steel being heated first and solidified from the inside out makes a much more lasting article as well as gives the product an exceptionally good finish. The output of the oven has also been practically doubled.

In another case a manufacturer of automobile starting devices found it necessary to quickly double the capacity of his armature-making equipment. Heretofore twelve hours were required to bake them in ovens. By introducing electric units the time was reduced to six hours. With the electric heating system it was possible to greatly increase the volume of heat without any increase in actual temperature which would have caused destruction of insulation or would have melted the solder. This is due to the fact that electric heat is essentially dry, and that by proper circulation this air absorbs and carries away the moisture in the armature. The heat can be regulated to a nicety, which was not possible with heat derived from fuel. This indicates the future possibilities of electricity for industrial heating.

The Panama-Pacific Exposition has brought out many novel applications of illumination, and the Tower of Jewels, with its 125,000 suspended cut glass gems of every hue flashing colors from the sunlight in the daytime, and even more beautifully by projected electric lights at night, is perhaps the most notable example of beautiful illumination the world has ever seen. Each crystal has a small mirror suspended at its apex, and when the light from fifty great searchlights is turned on the tower the blaze of light and color is wondrous.

As a closing comment or compliment to electricity in 1915 may be mentioned the fact that whereas every great exposition of recent years has had a notable electrical building, at the Panama-Pacific Exposition this was considered uncalculated for, as each and every building, being electrically lighted and operated, was a tribute to this great industry.

BUREAU OF MUNICIPAL RESEARCH.

This bureau was organized for the purpose of "getting the business of the city (New York) done with the highest degree of efficiency."

EXPRESS RATES.

(Statement of Interstate Commerce Commission.)

The United States is divided into 950 blocks, each formed by one degree of latitude and longitude embracing approximately 3,500 square miles. Each block is designated by number. Rates are stated from one block to all others, and apply from all express stations within the initial block to all stations in the destination block. A directory of express stations shows the number of the block in which the station is located, also indicates those stations at which collection and delivery service is performed.

Express traffic is divided into three classes: First class includes all merchandise other than articles of food and drink, which, with few exceptions, fall within the second class, and certain printed matter, such as books, pamphlets and advertising matter, falling within the third class. Second-class rates are 75% of the first class, and third class are one-half cent per ounce; minimum charge, 15 cents.

When perishable shipments contain ice, an allowance of 25% from the gross weight is made, except during December, January and February, when 15% is allowed.

The express classification, containing rules with which the shipping public should be familiar, also the tariffs, are posted in express offices and depots and may be inspected at any time during business hours.

Express rates are based upon the carriers' risk to the limit of the stated value, one being applicable to property of a value not in excess of $50 and a higher rate applying when the value is in excess of $50.

A uniform express receipt is used by all express companies.

IMPORTANT TUNNELS OF THE WORLD.

- Alberg—Under the Alps at the Arl Mountain, and extends from Langen to St. Anton, 6½ miles; opened 1884.
- Andes Mountains—See "Trans-Andine."
- Big Bend—Drains the Feather River in California, 2 miles; opened 1886.
- Bitter Root Mountains (Montana and Idaho)—10,100 feet long.
- Blackwell—Under River Thames, England, 1½ miles; opened 1897.
- Cascade Mountain—Through the Cascade Mountains in Washington, 3 miles.
- Continental Divide, fed the Denver and Salt Lake R. R., 6.4 miles long (under construction).
- Cumberland—Under Cumberland Mountains, Tennessee, 8,000 feet long.
- Detroit (Michigan Central Ry.)—Under Detroit River.
- Gunnison—Southwestern Colorado, 6 miles; opened 1909.
- Hoosac—Through Hoosac Mountains, Mass., 4¾ miles; opened 1873.
- Khojak Pass—Inda, from Quetta to Kandahar, 2 miles.
- Loetschberg—Through the Alps, in Oberland, Switzerland, 9¼ miles; opened June 20, 1913, costing nearly $10,000,000.
- Mt. Roberts—From the shore of Gastineau Channel at Juneau, Alaska, into Silver Bow Basin, 1-3 miles.
- Mont d'Or—Between France and Switzerland, was bored through October 2, 1913. The tunnel pierces the Jura Mountains from Fresno to Vallorbe, and is 3¾ miles long.
- Mont Cenis—Italy to France, under the Col de Frejus, 8 miles; opened 1871.
- New Croton—Supplies water to New York City, 33 1-3 miles; opened 1888.
- Otira—In New Zealand, 5 1-3 miles.
- Roger Pass—Under the Selkirk Mountains penetrating Mount Macdonald in British Columbia, 5 miles long; cost more than $10,000,000; now building, and to be opened in 1916.
- Rothschonberg—Drains the Felberg mines, Saxony, 31¼ miles; opened 1877.
- St. Clair—Under St. Clair River, from Sarnia, Ont., to Port Huron, Mich., 2 miles; opened 1891.
- St. Gothard—Through the Alps, connects Goschenen with Alrolo, in Switzerland, 9 1-3 miles; opened 1881.
- Severn—From Monmouthshire to Gloucestershire, England, 4½ miles; opened 1886.
- Simplan—Through the Alps, 12½ miles; opened 1905.
- Strawberry—Through the Wasatch Mountains, Sutro—Drains the Comstock Lode in Nevada, 4½ miles; opened 1879.
- Trans-Andine Ry. tunnel—5 miles long, 12,000 feet above sea level and affords direct communication between Valparaiso and Buenos Ayres; opened April 5, 1910.
- Wasserfluh—In the Alps, between Bunnadern and Lichtensteig, Switzerland, 2 miles; opened 1909.
- Woodhead—Between Manchester and Sheffield, England, 3 miles.

TUNNELS IN AND ABOUT NEW YORK CITY.

(For Subways in and about New York City, see Index).

- PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD SYSTEM—Tunnels under Hudson River extend from Pennsylvania Railroad Station, New York, to Weehawken, N. J. There is no station at Weehawken, the electric trains from the Pennsylvania Station run to Manhattan Transfer, near Newark, N. J., without a stop. Work started April 1, 1904; completed in 1910. Two tubes of cast iron rings, 23 feet outside diameter and 21 feet 2 inches inside diameter; subaqueous portion 6,118 feet long.
- Manhattan Cross-Town Tunnels from the Pennsylvania Railroad station, mentioned above, across New York under 32d and 33d Sts. to First Ave. Started July, 1905, completed in 1910. There are two tunnels, each with two tracks. The tunnels are built of concrete with the crown about 60 feet below the surface of the street.
- East River Tunnels connect with the Cross-Town Tunnels and extend under the East River to Long Island City. Started September, 1904; completed in 1910. Four separate tubes with rings 23 feet outside diameter, each tube from the Manhattan shaft to the Long Island City shaft, 3,900 feet long.
- HUDSON AND MANHATTAN RAILROAD SYSTEM—North tunnels under the Hudson River from Jersey City to Morton St., New York. Started November, 1874; the first in New York, officially opened February 25, 1908. Two single track tubes, with a minimum inside diameter of 15 feet 3 inches, and approximately 5,700 feet long.
- Up-town tunnels connect with north tunnels at Morton St. and extend to Christopher St. thence to Sixth Ave. and up Sixth Ave. to 33d St. Started March, 1904, completed in 1910. Section from Morton to 12th Sts. shield construction, remainder cut and cover.
- South tunnels under Hudson River from Jersey City to the Church St. Terminal Buildings (Cortlandt, Church and Fulton Sts.), New York. Started May, 1905; opened for traffic July, 1909. Two tubes about 5,950 feet long with cast iron rings, 16 feet 7 inches outside diameter and 15 feet 3 inches inside diameter.
- Tunnels from Whitehall St., Manhattan, to Montague St., Brooklyn, from Old Slip, Manhattan, to Clark St., Brooklyn, and from 14th St., Manhattan, to North 7th St., Brooklyn, are under construction, all of which are part of the new subway system in New York.
- Tunnels (consisting of two single track tubes) extend from the Hoboken terminal of the Lackawanna Railroad to Washington St., Jersey City, with connections to the north tunnels and to the Erie Railroad station. At Washington St. a branch runs to the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Jersey City, where connections are made with the south tunnels. West from Washington St. to a point east of Summit Ave. is a double track concrete tunnel with a centre wall dividing the tracks. Work started March, 1906; completed in July, 1911.
- BELMONT TUNNEL under the East River from 42d St., New York, to Long Island City. Subaqueous portion two single track tubes with cast-iron rings 16 feet 10 inches outside diameter, and a clear inside diameter of 15 feet 6 inches. Through rock a horseshoe shaped concrete section is used and in other places a rectangular double track cross section with reinforced concrete lining. Construction started by New York and Long Island Railroad, July 12, 1905; practically completed January 1, 1908. (Commonly known as the Steinway Tunnel).
- RAPID TRANSIT TUNNEL under the East River from the Battery, New York, to Joralemon St., Brooklyn, connecting the New York and Brooklyn Subways. Started April, 1903; trains running January 9, 1908. Two tubes, 6,784 feet long, with a finished inside diameter of 15 feet 6 inches.
- BERGEN CUT of Erie Railroad through Bergen Hill, Jersey City, parallel to the present tunnel, which is 4,700 feet long. The Bergen cut was started March, 1906, and completed July 1, 1910. It has five four-track tunnels with open cuts between the tunnels, making a total length of 4,300 feet. Tunnel sections 58 feet wide at the bottom and 21 feet high.
- LACKAWANNA RAILROAD TUNNEL through Bergen Hill, Jersey City. Started February 28, 1906; completed February 14, 1909. Parallel to and 24 feet away from old tunnel and of the same length, viz., 4,283 feet. New tunnel is double tracked, lined with concrete, having inside dimensions 23 feet high by 30 feet wide. Bush track construction used.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE LAW.

The following is a synopsis of the provisions of the Interstate Commerce law and acts amendatory thereof, prepared for the Official Congressional Directory:

Under "An act to Regulate Commerce," approved February 4, 1887; as amended March 2, 1889; February 10, 1891; February 8, 1895; the "Elkins act" of February 19, 1903, and the amending act approved June 29, 1906, the Interstate Commerce Commission is composed of seven members, each receiving a salary of $10,000 per annum. The regulating statutes apply to all common carriers engaged in the interstate transportation of oil or other commodity, except water and except natural or artificial gas, by means of pipe lines, or partly by pipe line and partly by rail, or partly by pipe line and partly by water, and to common carriers engaged in interstate transportation of passengers or property wholly by railroad (or partly by railroad and partly by water when both are used under a common control, management, or arrangement for a continuous carriage or shipment). Only traffic transported wholly within a single State is excepted.

The commission has jurisdiction on complaint, and, after full hearing, to determine and prescribe reasonable rates, regulations, and practices, and order reparation to injured shippers; to require any carriers to cease and desist from unjust discrimination, or undue or unreasonable preference, and to institute and carry on proceedings for enforcement of the law. The commission may also inquire into the management of the business of all common carriers subject to the provisions of the regulating statutes, and it may prescribe the accounts, records, and memoranda which shall be kept by the carriers, and has authority through its special agents and examiners to inspect the same. The carriers must file annual reports with the commission, and such other reports as may from time to time be required. Various other powers are conferred upon the commission. Carriers failing to file and publish all rates and charges, as required by law, are prohibited from engaging in interstate transportation, and penalties are provided for failure on the part of carriers or of shippers to observe the rates specified in the published tariffs.

The commission appoints a secretary, who is its chief administrative and executive officer; an assistant secretary, and such attorneys, examiners, special agents, and clerks as are necessary to the proper performance of its duties.

By amendment of June 18, 1910 ("Mann-Elkins law"), telegraph, telephone, and cable companies are made subject to the commission. The jurisdiction of the commission is increased as to through routes and joint rates, freight classification, switch connections, long and short hauls, filing or rejection of rate schedules, investigation on own motion, making reasonable rates, suspension of proposed rates, and other matters. An important section authorized the President to appoint a special commission to investigate issuance of railroad stocks and bonds.

The act of February 11, 1903, provides that suits in equity brought under the act to regulate commerce, wherein the United States is complainant, may be expedited and given precedence over other suits, and that appeals from the Circuit Court lie only to the Supreme Court. The act of February 19, 1903, commonly called the Elkins law, penalizes the offering, soliciting, or receiving of rebates, allows proceedings in the courts by injunction to restrain departures from published rates, and makes the Expediting act of February 11, 1903, include cases prosecuted under the direction of the Attorney-General in the name of the commission.

Under the act of August 7, 1888, all railroad and telegraph companies to which the United States have granted any subsidy in lands or bonds or loan of credit for the construction of either railroad or telegraph lines are required to file annual reports with the commission and such other reports as the commission may call for. The act also directs every such company to file with the commission copies of all contracts and agreements of every description existing between it and every other person or corporation whatsoever in reference to the ownership, possession, or operation of any telegraph lines over or upon the right of way, and to decide questions relating to the interchange of business between such Government-aided telegraph company and any connecting telegraph company. The act provides penalties for failure to perform and carry out within a reasonable time the order or orders of the commission.

The act of March 2, 1893, known as the "Safety Appliance act," provides that railroad cars used in interstate commerce must be equipped with automatic couplers and standard height of drawbars for freight cars, and have grab irons or hand holds in the ends and sides of each car. A further provision is that locomotive engines used in moving interstate traffic shall be fitted with a power driving-wheel brake and appliances for operating the train-brake system, and a sufficient number of cars in the train shall be equipped with power or train brakes. The act directs the commission to lodge with the proper District-Attorneys information of such violations as may come to its knowledge. The commission is authorized upon full hearing and for good cause to extend the period within which any common carrier shall comply with the provisions of the statute. By amendment of March 2, 1903, amended this act so as to make its provisions apply to Territory and the District of Columbia, and to all locomotives, cars, and other equipment of any railroad engaged in interstate traffic, except logging cars and cars used upon street railways, and also to power or train brakes used in railway operation.

By act of April 14, 1910, the safety appliance acts were supplemented so as to require railroads to equip their cars with sill steps, hand brakes, ladders, running boards and grab irons, and the commission was authorized to designate the number, dimensions, location and manner of application of appliances.

The act of Congress approved July 15, 1913, provides for mediation, conciliation, and arbitration in controversies between railroads and their employees in the following sections of the act: Sec. 2. That whenever a controversy concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment shall arise between an employer or employers and employees subject to this act interrupting or threatening to interrupt the business of said employer or employers to the serious detriment of the public interest, either party to such controversy may apply to the Board of Mediation and Conciliation created by this act and invoke its services for the purpose of bringing about an amicable adjustment of the controversy; and upon the request of either party the said board shall use all practicable expedients put itself in communication with the parties to such controversy and shall use its best efforts, by mediation and conciliation, to bring them to an agreement; and if such efforts to bring about an amicable adjustment through mediation and conciliation shall be unsuccessful, the said board shall at once endeavor to induce the parties to submit their controversy to arbitration in accordance with the provisions of this act.

In any case in which an interruption of traffic is imminent and fraught with serious detriment to the public interest, the Board of Mediation and Conciliation may, if in its judgment such action seems desirable, proffer its services to the respective parties to the controversy.

In any case in which a controversy arises over the meaning or the application of any agreement reached through mediation under the provisions of this act either party to the said agreement may apply to the Board of Mediation and Conciliation for an expression of opinion from such board as to the meaning or application of such agreement, and the said board shall upon receipt of such request give its opinion as soon as may be practicable.

Sec. 3. That whenever a controversy shall arise between an employer or employers and employees subject to this act, which cannot be settled through mediation and conciliation in the manner provided in the preceding section, such controversy may be submitted to the arbitration of a board of six or, if the parties to the controversy prefer so to stipulate, to a board of three persons, which board shall be chosen in the following manner: In the case of a board of three, the employer or employers and the employees, parties respectively to the agreement to arbitrate, shall each name one arbitrator; and the two arbitrators thus chosen shall select the third arbitrator; but in the event of their failure to name the third arbitrator within five days after their first meeting, such third arbitrator shall be named by the Board of Mediation and Conciliation. In the case of a board of six, the employer or employers and the employees, parties respectively to the agreement to arbitrate, shall each name two arbitrators, and the four arbitrators thus chosen shall, by a majority vote, select the remaining two arbitrators; but in the event of their failure to name the two arbitrators within fifteen days after their first meeting the said two arbitrators, or as many of them as have not been named, shall be named by the Board of Mediation and Conciliation.

In the event that the employees engaged in any given controversy are not members of a labor organization, such employees may select a committee which shall have the right to name the arbitrator, or the arbitrators, who are to be named by the employees as provided above in this section.

The act of March 3, 1901, "requiring common carriers engaged in interstate commerce to make reports of all accidents to the Interstate Commerce Commission," makes it the duty of such carrier to monthly report, under oath, all collisions and derailments of its trains and accidents to its passengers and to its employees while on duty in its service, and to state the nature and causes thereof. The act prescribes that a fine shall be imposed against any such carrier failing to make the report so required.

By act of May 6, 1910, the prior Accident Reports law was repealed and a new statute passed giving more power to the commission as to investigating accidents, and is more comprehensive than the former law.

The act of March 4, 1907, makes it the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission to enforce the provisions of the act wherein it is made unlawful to require or permit employees engaged in, or connected with, the movement of trains to be on duty more than a specified number of hours in any twenty-four.

The act of May 30, 1908, directs the Interstate Commerce Commission to make regulations for the safe transportation of explosives by common carriers engaged in interstate commerce. A penalty is provided for violations of such regulations.

By act of May 30, 1908, it is made the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission to enforce the provisions of the act wherein it is provided that after a certain date no locomotive shall be used in moving interstate or foreign traffic, etc., not equipped with an ash pan which can be emptied without requiring a man to go under such locomotive. A penalty is provided for violation of this act.

Public resolution No. 46, approved June 30, 1906, and the Sundry Civil Appropriation act of May 27, 1908, direct the commission to investigate and report on the use and need of appliances intended to promote the safety of railway operation.

The act of February 17, 1911, confers jurisdiction upon the commission to enforce certain provisions, compelling railroad companies to equip their locomotives with safe and suitable boilers and appurtenances thereto.

The Panama Canal act of August 24, 1912, amends sections 5 and 6 of the act to regulate commerce by conferring upon the commission jurisdiction to enforce a provision prohibiting a railroad company subject to the act, after July 1, 1914, from owning, leasing, operating, controlling or having any interest in competing water carriers operating through the Panama Canal or elsewhere. Jurisdiction is conferred upon the commission to determine questions of fact as to competition, after full hearing, on the application of any railroad company or other carrier, and to extend beyond July 1, 1914, the time during which such ownership or operation of vessels plying elsewhere than through the Panama Canal may continue, when it is found to be in the interest of the public and is of advantage to the convenience and commerce of the people, and not in restraint of competition. This amendment gives the commission power to establish physical connection between the lines of a rail carrier and the dock of a water carrier; authorizes the commission to establish through routes and joint rates over rail and water lines, and to determine all the terms and conditions under which such rail and water routes shall be operated; authorizes the commission to establish maximum proportional rates by rail to and from ports to which traffic is brought by water carriers; authorizes the commission, where a rail carrier has entered into arrangements with a water carrier operating from a port in the United States to a foreign country, for the handling of through business, to require the railway company to enter into similar arrangements with other water lines.

The Post-Office Appropriation act of August 24, 1912, empowers the commission to co-operate with the Postmaster-General in reforming, from time to time, the classification, weight limit, rates, zones, or conditions, in order to promote the parcel post service created by the act, and requires the commission to furnish data to a Congressional committee appointed to investigate the subject of a general parcel post.

By the act approved March 1, 1913, amending the act to regulate commerce, the commission is directed to investigate, ascertain, and report the value of all the property owned or used by every common carrier subject to the provisions of the act.

Jurisdiction is conferred upon the commission to enforce certain provisions of the act approved October 15, 1914, to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraint and monopolies in so far as such provisions relate to carriers subject to the act to regulate commerce. The act prohibits, with certain exceptions, carriers from discriminating between purchasers in sales of commodities and from making leases or sales of commodities, and from acquiring stock or capital of other corporations engaged in commerce, tending to substantially lessen competition or create a monopoly; makes it a felony for a President or other specified officers to misappropriate a carrier's funds; and provides that after two years from the approval of the act no carrier shall have dealings in securities or supplies, or contract for construction or maintenance to the amount of more than $50,000 in the aggregate in any one year, with another corporation or organization when, by reason of common officers or otherwise, there exists a community of interest between the carrier and such other corporation or organization, except as a result of free competitive bidding under regulations to be prescribed by the commission. The commission is further authorized to investigate violations of the act by carriers and to require the guilty parties to cease therefrom, and its findings of fact in such investigations shall be conclusive when supported by testimony.

The act approved March 4, 1915, which became effective June 2, 1915, makes common carriers liable for all damage to property caused by them, and forbids, with certain exceptions, limitations of liability.

Under the act of October 22, 1913, the Commerce Court was abolished from and after December 31, 1913, and the jurisdiction vested in the Commerce Court transferred to the District Courts of the United States. This act also provides the procedure to enforce, suspend, or set aside, in whole or in part, any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

RAILROAD STATISTICS.

(From Report of Interstate Commerce Commission for fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, and made from the annual reports of carriers having gross operating revenues of $100,000 or more for the year.)

On June 30, 1914, the roads covered by this report represented 217,397.59 miles (single track) of line operated, including 11,298.83 miles used under trackage rights. The aggregate mileage of railway tracks of all kinds covered by these roads was 377,102.45 miles, an increase of 7,522.65 miles over corresponding returns for 1913.

Of the total number (64,760) of locomotives, 14,612 were classified as passenger, 38,752 freight, 10,081 switching, and 1,315 unclassified.

The total number of cars of all classes was 2,503,822 (or 58,314 more than on June 30, 1913), as follows: Passenger service, 53,466; freight, 2,325,647; companies' service, 124,709.

Investment in road and equipment—The figures include returns for investment in road and equipment, shown by the operating roads, as well as by their subsidiary non-operating roads (leased, operated under contract, etc.).

Investment to June 30, 1913, $16,424,359,514; investment to June 30, 1914, $16,936,697,840; increase 1914 over 1913, $512,338,326.

CAPITALIZATION OF RAILWAY PROPERTY.

On June 30, 1914, according to the annual reports submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission by roads having gross operating revenues of $100,000 or more, together with returns made in reports filed in behalf of their non-operating subsidiary lines, the par value of the amount of railway capital outstanding was $20,247,301,257. This amount includes capital held by the railway companies concerned, as well as by the public. Of the total amount of such capital outstanding there existed as stock $8,680,759,704, of which $7,304,479,846 was common and $1,376,279,858 was preferred; the remaining part, $11,566,541,553, representing funded debt, consisted of mortgage bonds, $8,496,370,538; collateral trust bonds, $1,182,683,530; plain bonds, debentures, and notes, $1,142,016,070; income bonds, $254,230,505; miscellaneous funded obligations, $72,700,640, and equipment trust obligations, $18,540,270.

Of the total capital stock outstanding for the roads under consideration, $3,019,020,981, or 34.78 per cent., paid no dividends. The amount of dividends declared during the year (by both operating and non-operating companies represented in this statement) was $451,263,197, being equivalent to 7.97 per cent. on dividend-paying stock. The average rate of dividends paid on all stocks outstanding pertaining to the roads under consideration was 5.20 per cent. No interest was paid on $1,331,581,452, or 11.94 per cent., of the total amount of funded debt outstanding (other than equipment trust obligations).

| France, (state).....  | 3.16            | 2.34             | 1.54              | Italy, (state).....     | 3.60            | 2.52             | 1.62              |
| " (private).....      | 3.48            | 2.36             | 1.54              | United Kingdom, (priv.) | 4.76            | 3.18             | 1.78              |

In Italy the rate per mile is higher than on any other state-owned road, though a differential tariff offers some advantages that tend to reduce the price and to make the long-distance journeys as cheap as in other countries.

UNITED STATES BUREAU OF MINES.

Director—Van H. Manning, Washington, D. C. ($6,000).

THE general purpose of the Bureau of Mines of the Department of the Interior is to conduct, in behalf of the public welfare, fundamental inquiries and investigations into the mining industry. Two phases of the industry of greatest National concern are safety and efficiency—safeguarding the lives of our miners and insuring the most efficient and least wasteful development and use of our mineral resources.

and technical research, and investigations are also being carried out in the field of the safeguarding of the life of the individual miner nor the promotion of the interests of the individual mine owner or operator, but seek the development of methods that will increase the safety of all miners and will promote the upbuilding and permanence of the whole mineral industry. Yet, although the advancement of the public welfare is the primary purpose of this work, it is obvious that broad fundamental inquiries and researches cannot fail to confer benefits on the individual mine and the individual mine owner. Hence, the function of the work is to promote the safety of the miner, the health of the miner, the safety of the mine, and the purpose the improvement of health conditions, and the increase of safety, efficiency, and economic development in the mining, quarrying, metallurgical and miscellaneous mineral industries of the country.

NUMBER OF MEN EMPLOYED AND NUMBER OF MEN KILLED AND INJURED IN THE MINERAL INDUSTRIES OF THE UNITED STATES DURING THE CALENDAR YEAR 1914 (EXCLUDING THE IRON BLAST FURNACES AND STEEL PLANTS).

RAILWAYS OF AMERICA "GROUPED" BY CAPITALISTS.

The great railroad systems of the United States have been reduced to a few "groups" by means of consolidation and reconsolidation. The following is a list of these groups, which comprise three-quarters of all the railroad lines of the country:

| GROUPS.            | Mileage. | Stocks.         | Bonds.          |

* In December, 1912, the U. S. Supreme Court held that ownership by the Oregon Short Line Railroad on behalf of the Union Pacific Railroad (controlled by the Harriman interests) of $126,650,000 of Southern Pacific Co. stock was in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law act, and Oregon Short Line has disposed of its interest in the Southern Pacific, which system is now an independent line.

† October 1, 1914, companies sold $40,000,000 one-year notes to a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

‡ October 1, 1915, eighty-two railroads, operating 41,988 miles of line and with a total capitalization of $2,264,000,000, in hands of receivers. This is more than one-sixth of the railway mileage of the country.

OPERATIONS OF BRITISH RAILWAYS.

(Report of U. S. Vice-Consul-General, London.)

Government returns show that during 1913 the railways of the United Kingdom carried 1,228,316,000 passengers and 371,571,000 tons of freight. The passengers were divided into classes as follows: First, 26,025,000; second, 12,088,000; third, 933,498,000, and workmen, 256,705,000. The number of season-ticket holders is estimated to have been about 595,000.

The length of the lines, reduced to single track, was 55,438 miles. The gross receipts of the companies were $677,674,724, of which $277,044,978 was derived from passenger traffic, $324,191,630 from freight traffic, and $76,438,115 from other sources, mainly subsidiary businesses. The gross expenditure was $424,563,193, of which $383,494,799 was devoted to operating expenses, leaving a net income of $253,111,531.

The gross revenue and trading profit of the minor businesses are a matter of much interest and they are also shown:

Sir Edgar Speyer, presiding at a meeting September 19, 1914, of the underground electric railways in London, said 900,000,000 passengers had been carried without a single fatality since the opening of the tube and the electrification of the district railway.

NATIONAL RIVERS AND HARBORS CONGRESS.

THE objects of this congress shall be the collection and preparation of all obtainable data touching the scientific improvement, development and uses of the rivers and harbors of the nation; these data to include findings of the Board of United States Engineers and other scientific facts dealing with questions of waterway transportation and allied subjects.

To disseminate to as many of the people of the United States as possible the scientific knowledge collected and prepared, through the publications of this association, its news bureau and its field representatives—to the end that the people may be educated to the importance of waterway development, and that the greatest good to the greatest number may be had through the scientific improvement and maintenance of our lakes, rivers, harbors and canals for navigation and commerce.

The membership of this congress shall consist of commercial, manufacturing and kindred organizations, waterway improvement associations, corporations, companies, and individual citizens engaged or interested in commercial or industrial enterprises, who may subscribe to its Constitution and contribute to the support and prosecution of the objects of the congress. President—Hon. Joseph E. Ransdell, Lake Providence, La. Secretary-Treasurer—S. A. Thompson, Washington, D. C.

CORPORATION PENSIONS IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE following table shows the estimated number of employes on the following roads now having pension systems in force. In general all the roads here shown base their pensions on a percentage of the employe's wages, multiplied by the number of years that he has been in service. For example, the rate on the Pennsylvania is 1 per cent. A man having worked 40 years received a pension equal to 40 per cent. of his average salary for the 10 years preceding retirement. Most companies include in their rules a reservation of the right to vary the rate of pensions if the total requirements of any one year shall demand more than a predetermined gross amount. All of the companies in counting time include years of service under other companies bought by or consolidated with the present one. Short breaks in the service not due to any fault of the employe, or due to a minor fault involving suspensions, are generally overlooked.

American Telephone and Telegraph Company (entire Bell system), with 155,978 employes, paid in 1914 to 184 pensioners the sum of $110,964.

The U. S. Steel Corporation dedicated $8,000,000 for a fund with which to pension superannuated and disabled employes. This fund has been consolidated with the $4,000,000 fund created by Andrew Carnegie after he sold out his holdings in the Carnegie Steel Company to the U. S. Steel Corporation. The fund is known as "The United States Steel and Carnegie Pension Fund."

The Western Union Telegraph Company, on January 1, 1913, established a Plan for Employes' Pensions, Disability Benefits and Insurance, setting aside a fund of $1,000,000 for the purpose. Pensions are classified according to age and length of service. The minimum pension is $20 per month, except when otherwise directed. In cases of disability from sickness, full pay and half pay are allowed for various periods, depending upon length of service; provision is also made for disability resulting from accidents and for life insurance benefits, the amount of insurance depending upon length of service.

ARMY LEAGUE OF THE UNITED STATES.

A committee decided to form an Army League of the United States, a non-partisan, patriotic society which shall represent no class or commercial interest and to which all citizens of the United States of good repute, both men and women, are eligible as members. Its purposes are, broadly speaking: (1) To collect and make public information respecting the condition, organization and equipment of the United States Army and the Organized Militia; (2) to make known the truth concerning them and the points wherein they require to be bettered, in order to constitute a military force such as the American Nation ought to possess; (3) to arouse public interest and to induce co-operation in all matters tending to aid, improve or develop the efficiency of the land forces of the United States, whether regular, militia, volunteer or reserve.

President—William C. Endicott. Secretary—Frederic L. Huidekoper. Treasurer—William B. Hibbs. Office—Wilkins Building, 1512 H Street, Washington, D. C.

The fastest time on record for a distance of over 440 miles was made by the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern R.R. from Buffalo to Chicago, in June, 1905, noted above. The fastest long-distance run less than 440 miles was on the New York Central R.R. September 11, 1895, from New York to Buffalo, 435 1-2 miles, in 407 minutes actual time. Average speed, 64 1-3 miles an hour, with two stops and 28 slow-ups, and on January 1, 1903, from Albany to Buffalo, 302 miles, in 295 minutes.

Among the fastest regular trains in the United States, for a shorter distance, are believed to be the New York Central "Empire State Express," between New York and Albany, 143 miles in 115 minutes, and the "Congressional Limited," on the Pennsylvania Railroad, which makes the run from Jersey City to Washington in 4 hours 45 minutes, a distance of 227 miles. The "Pennsylvania Special" over P. R. R., which runs from Jersey City to North Philadelphia, 84 miles in 83 minutes; from Jersey City to Harrisburg, Pa., 194 miles in 196 minutes. The "Royal Blue Line" from New York to Philadelphia (Reading Terminal) 91.1 miles in 1 hour 50 minutes. On November 25, 1912, a special train, consisting of a locomotive and two cars, ran from Washington, D. C., to Jersey City, 227 miles, in four hours, the fastest trip ever made between the two cities.

On August 15, 1895, on P. & R. and C. R. R. of N. J., "Royal Blue Line," between Elizabeth, N. J., and Jaukintown, a distance of 69 miles, in 51 minutes, including 2 slow-ups, some of the miles being traversed in 38 seconds.

Other notable long-distance fast runs: February 14-15, 1897-Pennsylvania Railroad and C. B. and Q., Jersey City to Denver, 1,937 miles, in 48 hours; average speed, 40.3 miles per hour. August 29-31, 1891-Canadian Pacific, Vancouver to Brockville, 2,802 miles, in 77 hours 9 minutes; average speed, 36.32 miles per hour.

The Jarrett and Palmer special theatrical train, Jersey City to Oakland (San Francisco), 3,311 miles, June, 1876, 83 hours 45 minutes; average speed, 39.53 miles per hour.

In October, 1905, the "Harriman Special" made the run from Oakland to Jersey City (3,239 miles) in 73 hours 12 minutes, or 41.30 miles per hour. In May, 1906, the "Harriman Special" made the run from Oakland, Cal., to New York City in 71 hours 27 minutes.

The "Scott Special" left Los Angeles, Cal., July 9, 1905, and arrived in Chicago (2,445.5 miles), July 11, having made the run in 44 hours 54 minutes, maintaining an average speed while in motion of 51 miles an hour.

On November 15, 1907, at Clayton, N. J., in a trial test on Pennsylvania R. R. between steam and electric locomotives, the steam engine made 93.6 miles an hour on a specially built seven mile curved track, while the electric locomotive made but 90 miles an hour.

A special train of an engine and two cars, which was run in January, 1911, to carry J. P. Morgan from Washington to New York over the Pennsylvania Railroad, made the trip of 226.3 miles in 3 hours 55 minutes and 30 seconds, or at the rate of 57.8 miles an hour. The speed over the New York division, West Philadelphia to New York, 90.5 miles, averaged 67 miles an hour.

In February, 1911, the "Gates Special," from Yuma, Ariz., to New York, 2,787 miles, made the run in 74 hours 19 minutes, or an average of 40.41 miles per hour, including stops. From Albany to New York the trip, 143 miles, was made in 143 minutes.

A remarkable record was made in the run of a silk train between Seattle and New York in October, 1911. The distance is 3,175 miles, and the time made 82½ hours. The average speed all the way across the continent, including stops and a delay of more than two hours in switching at Chicago, was 38½ miles per hour.

SOME FOREIGN RAILWAY RUNS.

The Northern Railway runs a day express from Berlin to Paris, which covers the distance from Paris to St. Quentin (86¼ miles) in 93 minutes. The Eastern Railway Company has an afternoon express from Paris to Basel, which runs the first 104.37 miles in 107 minutes. The fastest train in Germany is the so-called "D-Zug 20" between Berlin and Hamburg, which maintains an average speed of 55.17 miles per hour. (U. S. Consular Report.)

*This is the largest and most powerful locomotive ever built and is the so-called Triplex Compound, which was built by the Baldwin Locomotive Works for the Erie Railroad and was completed in April, 1914. It is 105 feet long, weighs 853,050 pounds, and has actually hauled 251 fifty-ton fully loaded gondola cars, with a total train load weight of 35,824,000 pounds. It is capable of hauling a train of 640 freight cars of a total length of four and three-quarter miles and weighing 90,000,000 pounds. It is a new type of articulated locomotive and goes beyond the Mallet articulated type by the addition of another pair of cylinders and another group of driving wheels, making three complete engines in one locomotive unit. Each engine has four driving wheels on each side, the complete locomotive, therefore, having twelve driving wheels on each side, eight of which are under the locomotive itself and four under the tender. This Triplex locomotive has 89 per cent. of the total weight of the engine and tender on drivers. The large Mallet locomotives have but about 65 per cent. of the total weight on drivers. This locomotive is used for pusher service on the eight-mile grade of the Erie east of Susquehanna, Pa., which is a grade of 56 feet to a mile and the new locomotive handles the same weight of train up this grade that was formerly handled by two Consolidation and one Mallet engines.

† This is the heaviest non-articulated locomotive ever built.

‡ This is the most powerful class of Pacific type of locomotive built. They are in service on the Blue Ridge Mountains and haul trains of ten steel passenger cars, weighing a total of 674 tons, up a grade of 80-foot rise to the mile at a schedule speed of 25½ miles per hour.

§ These are now considered the standard locomotives for heavy freight and passenger service under ordinary conditions. The Mikado is replacing the old Consolidation locomotive in freight service. The Pacific type is for heavy fast passenger business.

¶ This is the largest passenger locomotive in Europe.

(c) Tractive Effort.—This is the effort exerted by a locomotive in turning its wheels by the action of the steam against the pistons which, through the media of the crossheads, rods, etc., causes them to revolve and the locomotive to move along the rails. The drawbar pull which a locomotive actually exerts at any given time depends upon its speed upon grades and other things. The formula for a simple locomotive for the tractive effort is where T = tractive effort in pounds, P = boiler pressure in pounds per square inch, C = diameter of cylinders in inches, S = stroke of piston in inches, D = diameter of driving wheels in inches.

Grain embraces wheat flour reduced to equivalent in wheat, corn, rye, oats, barley, malt and peas. Receipts at New York, Portland, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore include shipments from the West to foreign countries through these ports on through bills of lading. Receipts at Portland via Montreal are duplications of receipts reported at Montreal. Receipts at Baltimore include flour ground by city millers, and therefore duplicate an equivalent quantity of wheat received in grain.

ALASKA RAILROAD.

On April 10, 1915, President Wilson announced the selection of the route for the Alaska railroad to be built by the Government.

The route adopted is known as the Susitna route, and extends from Seward, on Resurrection Bay, to Fairbanks, on the Tanana River, a distance of 471 miles. This route includes the existing Alaska Northern Railroad, which runs from Seward through the Kenai Peninsula for a distance of seventy-one miles to Turnagain Arm, and it is to be bought from its present owners by the Government for $1,150,000. The contract for the purchase of this road was signed by Secretary Lane of the Interior Department.

From Turnagain Arm the route is to be extended through the Susitna Valley and across Broad Pass to the Tanana River, and from there on to Fairbanks. It is to be a standard-gauge road. A side line is to run from Matanuska Junction into the Matanuska coal field, a distance of thirty-eight miles. The road is to be built with its present base at Ship Creek, on Cook's Inlet. The grade from the Matanuska field to Ship Creek is four-tenths of 1 per cent.

The Alaska Northern is to be put into operative condition and will be used as a base for extending the line along Turnagain Arm. Under the contract approved by the President the road is taken over free from all debt or obligation of any kind.

The estimated cost of construction of this line from Seward to Fairbanks, including the Matanuska Branch, is $26,800,000. The President has made an order directing that the work be carried on by the Alaskan Engineering Commission.

KNOWLEDGE OF CONSULAR LAW NEEDED IN TRADE WITH FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

(Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce Bulletin, September 23, 1915.)

AN understanding of the main principles of the customs and consular regulations of the United States affecting imports and exports will enable the American exporter to look at the question of the rules prevailing in other countries from the foreign point of view, and to avoid the tendency to consider every foreign consular regulation as mere red tape and imposition, in the view of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, which has made a close study of the problems to be solved by those engaged in selling American goods.

It has been found, for instance, that the exporter to Latin-American countries is apt to grumble considerably at having to fill out the many details on his consular invoice, but is often unaware that just as many, if not more details are required by the United States in American consular invoices.

It is pointed out that one of the main requisites for a good all-round export man is a thorough knowledge of such regulations, especially those affecting the Republics of Central and South America. In order thoroughly to grasp these regulations, the student should analyze the purpose for which they are promulgated. He will find that the main objects are two, in all countries. The fees exacted for consular certification are largely for the upkeep of the consulates in the various cities and for the remuneration of the consular officers. The bulk of the regulations, however, are made and enforced in order to comply with and carry out the import customs requirements of the countries of destination, each country naturally having its own customs laws and provisions.

In advocating a mastery of American requirements as preliminary to a proper understanding of those of foreign lands, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce mentions a few of the details which have been found to be of importance. Any brief statement, however, must of necessity be a kind of bibliography to be studied by the commercial student at his leisure, and to be enlarged upon by him according to the particular subject that may really be of interest to him.

For all goods imported into the United States amounting to $100 or more, there must be taken out a consular invoice, which must be certified by the United States Consul at the point of sale, manufacture, or shipment of the merchandise. The fee for each certification is $2.50. Three copies of the consular invoice are usually made out. The original copy is retained by the Consul for his files, a duplicate is given to the exporter, stamped with the official seal of the Consul and bearing the revenue stamp of $2.50; a triplicate is forwarded by the Consul to the Collector of Customs at the port to which the goods are consigned, and sometimes a quadruplicate is given to the shipper as an extra file copy.

There are two forms of consular invoices—one a blue form for showing when goods have been purchased outright and are the property of the consignee, and a white form issued when the goods are sent to the United States on consignment and are still the property of the shipper.

On arrival in the American port, the shipment has to be entered within forty-eight hours of the official entry of the vessel at the Custom House. Goods not entered within forty-eight hours are sent to the general order warehouse as unclaimed, often entailing heavy storage and cartage expenses.

Several kinds of entries can be made. If goods are free of duty or if they are needed for immediate consumption, an import or consumption entry is made.

If they are not needed immediately a warehouse entry is made and goods are stored in warehouse, to be withdrawn at a later date in one or more package lots. Parts of packages cannot be withdrawn from bond.

Another entry is an I. T. (immediate transportation) entry, which means that goods are shipped through to another city of the United States in bond (in sealed cars), and that the required entry will be made by the ultimate consumer or his agent in that city.

Forms or blanks approved by the Treasury Department must be used in clearing merchandise. When properly filled out by the importer or his representative, they are filed with the consular invoice and bill of lading in the Custom House, and duty is assessed at the appropriate rates, gauged from the invoice description. A portion of the consignment is designated by the Collector's representative for examination by the appraiser, and the balance of the shipment is delivered to the importer. If the appraiser finds that the goods are correct in value and invoice description, and there are no other facts known to the authorities which lead them to doubt the correctness of the invoice in general, the entire consignment is considered as released and the importer secures a delivery permit for the portion retained for examination.

Should the appraiser desire to examine any other cases than those preliminarily examined, he orders the additional cases to the appraiser's warehouse, under the conditions of a bond given by the importer at the time of entry.

In the matter of merchandise which the importer wishes placed in Government bonded warehouse, the same form as to examination is followed, the difference being that the duty is not paid until the importer desires to secure actual delivery, and he then files what is known as a "duty paid without entry." In the case of such a warehouse entry, a bond is given by the importer and his agents guaranteeing that the goods warehoused will be withdrawn from bond and duty paid on them or that they will be exported within three years from date of entry.

Duties paid at time of entry are considered a deposit only and the entire entry is subject to review and liquidation, which is made after the appraiser has taken action on the invoice. Appeals from the action of the appraiser are of two kinds—one an appeal from his valuation, the other from the duty suggested by him. These appeals are heard by a Board of General Appraisers, and in certain cases by the United States Court of Customs Appeals at Washington.

*In the year 1909. (a) Increase in average number of wage-earners, 1899-1909. (b) Increase in value of products, 1899-1909. † Decrease.

In the above table the industries are arranged in the order of their gross value of products. Some of the industries which hold a very high rank in gross value of products rank comparatively low in the average number of wage-earners employed and in the value added by manufacture. Where this is the case it indicates that the cost of materials represents a large proportion of the total value of products, and that therefore the value added by manufacture, of which wages constitute usually the largest item, is not commensurate with the total value of products.

WORKERS IN THE UNITED STATES, BY AGE AND COLOR OR RACE.

(From a report of the Bureau of Census, July 9, 1914.)

MORE than eight in every ten (81.3 per cent.) males ten years of age and over in the United States in 1910 were engaged in gainful occupations, according to the figures presented in the Report on Occupations issued by the Director of the Census. In the tabulation of occupations for this report all gainful workers were distributed in the following five age periods: Ten to thirteen years, fourteen to fifteen, sixteen to twenty, twenty-one to forty-four (including age unknown), and forty-five years and over. In the lowest age period, ten to thirteen years, the proportion of males gainfully occupied was one in six (16.6 per cent.); in the next age period, fourteen to fifteen, the proportion more than doubled, being over two in each five (41.4 per cent.); and in the age period sixteen to twenty the proportion increased to almost four in five (79.2 per cent.). The proportion was highest for the age period twenty-one to forty-four years (including persons of unknown age). In this age period 96.7 per cent. of the males were gainfully occupied; or stated otherwise, only 3.3 men out of every 100 in this age group were without gainful occupation in 1910. In the highest age period, forty-five years and over, the proportion of males gainfully occupied was 85.9 per cent.

The proportion of all males ten years of age and over engaged in gainful occupations was slightly larger in 1910 than in 1900, but this increase was confined to two age periods, sixteen to twenty and twenty-one to forty-four. In each of the other age periods the proportion of gainful workers was smaller in 1910 than in 1900, the decrease being greatest for the age period fourteen to fifteen.

Of the females ten years of age and over, 23.4 per cent. were engaged in gainful occupations in 1910. The proportion was 8 per cent. in the age period ten to thirteen; 19.8 per cent. in the age period fourteen to fifteen; 39.9 per cent. in the age period sixteen to twenty; 26.3 per cent. in the age period twenty-one to forty-four, and 15.1 per cent. in the age period forty-five years and over. The large proportion of the females sixteen to twenty years of age engaged in gainful occupations is accounted for by the fact that in this age period all the females are old enough to work, and matrimony has had little effect in decreasing the number of workers.

There was a marked increase from 1900 to 1910 in the proportion of all females ten years of age and over engaged in gainful occupations, or from 18.8 to 23.4 per cent. In each age period also the proportion of the gainful workers was considerably larger in 1910 than in 1900.

COLOR OR RACE OF WORKERS.

Of the 30,091,564 gainfully occupied males in the United States in 1910, 14,855,825 were native whites of native parentage, 5,285,311 native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 6,588,711 foreign-born whites, 3,178,554 negroes, and 182,663 Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and all other. The proportion which the gainfully occupied males formed of all males ten years of age and over in each principal class of the population was, for native whites of native parentage, 78.5 per cent.; native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 76.5 per cent.; foreign-born whites, 90 per cent.; negroes, 87.4 per cent.; and Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and all other, 80.8 per cent.

Native white males of native parentage formed 49.4 per cent. of the male gainful workers, as compared with 51.1 per cent. of all males ten years of age and over; while the corresponding percentages for native white males of foreign or mixed parentage were 17.6, as compared with 13.7 per cent.; for foreign-born white males, 21.9, as compared with 19.8 per cent.; and for negro males, 10.6, as compared with 9.8 per cent.

Of the 8,075,772 gainfully occupied females, 3,098,639 were native whites of native parentage, 1,722,279 native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 1,222,791 foreign-born whites, 2,013,981 negroes, and 18,082 Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and all other. The proportion which the gainfully occupied females formed of all females ten years of age and over in each principal class of the population was, for native whites of native parentage, 17.1 per cent.; native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 24.6 per cent.; foreign-born whites, 21.7 per cent.; negroes, 54.7 per cent.; and Indians, Chinese, Japanese, and all other, 17.6 per cent.

Native white females of native parentage formed 38.4 per cent. of the female gainful workers, as compared with 52.5 per cent. of all females ten years of age and over; while the corresponding percentages for native white females of foreign or mixed parentage were 21.3, as compared with 29.3 per cent.; for foreign-born white females, 15.1, as compared with 16.3 per cent.; and for negro females, 24.9, as compared with 10.7 per cent.

CHILD WORKERS.

There were 1,990,225 children of both sexes, ten to fifteen years of age, engaged in gainful occupations in 1910, or 18.4 per cent. of the total number of children of that age group. The males numbered 1,353,139, and the females 637,086. In 1900 1,750,178, or 18.2 per cent. of the children ten to fifteen years of age were engaged in gainful occupations; and in 1880 1,118,356, or 16.8 per cent. of them.

The increase from 1900 to 1910 in the number, and hence in the proportion, of all children ten to fifteen years of age engaged in gainful occupations, was confined to children engaged in agricultural pursuits, where the increase was 369,283, or 34.8 per cent., for both sexes; 166,394, or 19.5 per cent., for the males; and 202,889, or 97.9 per cent., for the females. There was a marked decrease from 1900 to 1910 in the number of children ten to fifteen years of age engaged in non-agricultural pursuits. This decrease was 129,236, or 18.8 per cent., for both sexes; 77,666, or 19 per cent., for the males and 51,570, or 18.5 per cent., for the females.

OCCUPATIONS—NEW YORK CITY SUMMARY.

(Bureau of Census Report of September, 1914.)

ACCORDING to the Report on Occupations issued by the Director of the Bureau of the Census there were 2,152,433 persons ten years of age and over in New York City engaged in gainful occupations in 1910. The gainful workers thus formed 45.2 per cent. of the total population of the city (4,766,883) and 56.3 per cent. of the population ten years of age and over (3,821,540). In 1900 the 1,469,908 gainful workers of the city formed 42.8 per cent. of the total population and 54.7 per cent. of the population ten years of age and over.

The male gainful workers in 1910 numbered 1,566,240, or 82.1 per cent. of all males ten years of age and over, as compared with 1,102,471, or 83 per cent., in 1900. The female gainful workers in 1910 numbered 586,193, or 30.6 per cent. of all females ten years of age and over, as compared with 367,437, or 27.1 per cent., in 1900.

DISTRIBUTION OF WORKERS.

The 2,152,433 gainful workers in 1910 were distributed among the main branches of occupations as follows: Agriculture, forestry, and animal husbandry, 9,950, or 0.5 per cent.; extraction of minerals, 886, or less than one-tenth of 1 per cent.; manufacturing and mechanical industries, 873,497, or 40.6 per cent.; transportation, 169,834, or 7.9 per cent.; trade, 361,053, or 16.8 per cent.; public service, 41,004, or 1.9 per cent.; professional service, 127,395, or 5.9 per cent.; domestic and personal service, 333,954, or 15.5 per cent.; and clerical occupations, 234,860, or 10.9 per cent.

SEX OF WORKERS.

Of the gainful workers in 1910, 1,566,240, or 72.8 per cent., were males and 586,193, or 27.2 per cent., females. In agriculture, forestry, and animal husbandry the males numbered 9,455, or 95 per cent., and the females 495, or 5 per cent. Nearly all—848, or 95.7 per cent.—of the persons engaged in the extraction of minerals were males. In manufacturing and mechanical industries 665,538, or 76.2 per cent., of the workers were males and 207,959, or 23.8 per cent., females. Males constituted 94.8 per cent. of the 169,834 persons engaged in transportation, 85.9 per cent. of the 361,053 persons engaged in trade, and 99.2 per cent. of the 41,004 persons engaged in public service. In professional service 78,972, or 62 per cent., of the workers were males and 48,423, or 38 per cent., females, a large proportion of the females being school teachers. Domestic and personal service was the only large field of occupations in which the females outnumbered the males. Here females numbered 191,152, or 57.2 per cent., and males 142,802, or 42.8 per cent., of the workers. Of the persons pursuing clerical occupations, 156,836, or 66.8 per cent., were males and 78,024, or 33.2 per cent., females.

COLOR OR RACE OF WORKERS.

Of the 1,566,240 gainfully occupied males in 1910, 255,393 were native whites of native parentage, 415,926 native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 856,650 foreign-born whites, 33,110 negroes, and 5,161 other colored. The proportion which the gainfully occupied males formed of all the males ten years of age and over in each principal class of the population was: For native whites of native parentage, 75.5 per cent.; for native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 72.2 per cent.; for foreign-born whites, 90 per cent.; and for negroes, 90.7 per cent.

Of the 586,193 gainfully occupied females in 1910, 93,266 were native whites of native parentage, 189,739 native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 276,648 foreign-born whites, 26,352 negroes, and 188 other colored. The proportion which the gainfully occupied females formed of all the females ten years of age and over in each principal class of the population was: For native whites of native parentage, 26.8 per cent.; for native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 30.7 per cent.; for foreign-born whites, 30.6 per cent.; and for negroes, 60.7 per cent.

AGE OF WORKERS.

The gainfully occupied males in 1910 were distributed according to age periods as follows: Ten to thirteen years, 712; fourteen to fifteen years, 20,696; sixteen to twenty years, 189,497; twenty-one to forty-four years and age unknown, 1,012,631; and forty-five years and over, 342,704. The proportion which the gainfully occupied males formed of all males in each age period was: For those ten to thirteen years of age, 0.4 per cent.; for those fourteen to fifteen years of age, 25.9 per cent.; for those sixteen to twenty years of age, 84.2 per cent.; for those twenty-one to forty-four years of age, 97.3 per cent.—that is, all but three men in every 100 had gainful occupations—and for those forty-five years of age and over, 87.1 per cent.

The gainfully occupied females in 1910 were distributed according to age periods as follows: Ten to thirteen years, 622; fourteen to fifteen years, 16,539; sixteen to twenty years, 171,780; twenty-one to forty-four years and age unknown, 330,738; and forty-five years and over, 66,514. The proportion which the gainfully occupied females formed of all females in each age period was: For those ten to thirteen years of age, 0.4 per cent.; for those fourteen to fifteen years of age, 20.2 per cent.; for those sixteen to twenty years of age, 65.8 per cent.; for those twenty-one to forty-four years of age, 32.9 per cent.; and for those forty-five years of age and over, 16.8 per cent.

NUMBER OF CHILDREN AT WORK.

In New York City in 1910 there were 21,408 males and 17,161 females ten to fifteen years of age engaged in gainful occupations, or stated otherwise, 3.6 per cent. of the males and 6.8 per cent. of the females ten to fifteen years of age were gainful workers. In 1900 there were 29,371 males and 22,868 females ten to fifteen years of age engaged in gainful occupations.

PRINCIPAL OCCUPATIONS IN NEW YORK CITY.

The principal occupations followed by the males and the females, respectively, in New York City in 1910 were as follows:

UNITED STATES FOR FIRST TIME LEADS WORLD IN EXPORTS.

(Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce Bulletin, August 27, 1915.)

For the first time in its history the United States leads the world as an exporter. Occasionally we have surpassed the United Kingdom in the exportation of domestic products, but it was only in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1915, that our total exports, domestic and foreign, exceeded those of the United Kingdom. Our total exports in the fiscal year 1915, according to an official statement of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, aggregated $2,768,600,000, as against $2,170,100,000 for the United Kingdom, the figures representing in the case of the United States an increase of 17 per cent. and in the case of the United Kingdom a decrease of 30 per cent. when compared with preceding year.

American exports in the fiscal year 1915 included domestic products to the value of $2,716,200,000, against $2,329,700,000 in 1914; and foreign products, $52,400,000, against $34,900,000 in the preceding year. British exports in the same periods included British and Irish produce, $1,744,100,000 in 1915, against $2,557,200,000 in 1914; and foreign and colonial produce $426,000,000 in 1915, compared with $526,600,000 in 1914. The following table, from official reports on file in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, reviews the growth of exports from the United States and the United Kingdom at twenty-year intervals during the past century:

| YEARS.   | American Exports. | *British Exports. | YEARS.    | American Exports. | *British Exports. |
| 1815.... | $50,000,000      | $285,300,000     | 1875..... | $513,400,000     | $1,370,500,000   |
| 1835.... | 115,000,000       | 443,600,000       | 1895..... | 807,500,000       | 1,391,000,000     |

The great industrial development of the United States during the century is illustrated by the increase in exports of manufactures. In 1821, the earliest year for which figures are available, exports of manufactures were valued at $8,000,000; in 1915 they aggregated $1,166,000,000 exclusive of foodstuffs.

WOMAN'S NATIONAL "MADE IN U. S. A." LEAGUE.

In enrolling, members sign the following:

"I pledge myself, for the welfare of my country, while the war lasts, to demand and buy, wherever possible, everything made in the United States and urge my friends to do likewise."

Among the Honorary Chairwomen and patrons are Mrs. John M. Slaton of Georgia, Mrs. Luther E. Hall of Louisiana, Mrs. William C. Story, Mrs. Lindley M. Garrison, Mrs. Marcellus H. Thompson, Mrs. James R. Mann, Mrs. Victor Murdock of Kansas, Mrs. William C. Redfield, Mrs. David B. Houston, Mrs. William B. Wilson, Mrs. James H. Preston of Baltimore, Mrs. Daisy McLaurin Stevens, and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison. Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

THE DEPARTMENT STORE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION.

The aim of the Department Store Education Association is to put salesmanship on the basis of a skilled occupation, to set higher standards of service in the department store and to devise methods by which the saleswoman may gain a broader knowledge of her work and its relation to the store and to the community. The association has studied the special work of a large number of store departments and has conducted departmental classes in stock and materials, manufacture and principles of color and design, as well as science and art of salesmanship. Lectures in hygiene have been a part of the schedule and corrective exercises arranged. Physical examinations have been made and corrective exercises arranged.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAWS OF STATES AND TERRITORIES.

(Report of Bureau of Labor Statistics, U. S. Department of Labor.)

In order to facilitate the study and comparison of the Compensation laws of the various States, they are analyzed in the following pages according to a uniform outline designed to show clearly the most important features of the several plans.

ALASKA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 29, 1915; in effect July 28, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury causing disability for more than two weeks, or death, arising out of and in course of employment, not due to the employee's wilful intention to injure himself or another, or to his intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Mining operations in which five or more persons are employed, unless election to the contrary is made (includes development and construction work, stamp and roller mills, reduction work and processes, coke ovens, etc.).

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered, contractors and sub-contractors excluded. Public employment: Not included.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—All on employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) If married, $3,000 to widow, $600 additional to each child under sixteen years of age, and to dependent parent or parents if any; if no widow, $3,000 to any minor orphans, and $600 additional to any under sixteen; no total to exceed $6,000.

(b) If unmarried, and dependent parent or parents, $1,200 to each.

(c) If no dependents, funeral expenses not to exceed $150, and other expenses, if any, to same amount.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Total permanent, $3,600 to workman alone; $1,200 additional if wife is living; $600 additional for each child under sixteen; total not to exceed $6,000. If no wife or children, $600 to each dependent parent.

(b) Total temporary disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wages for not over six months.

(c) Partial permanent disability, fixed sums for specified injuries, varying with conjugal condition and number of children.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Readjustment must be made if within two years an injury develops or proves to be such as to warrant a different award from any previously made.

INSURANCE—No provision.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Attachment may be had pending result of action, or employer may deposit cash or bond with court. Payments are exempt from execution.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—By courts, either with or without jury trial.

ARIZONA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—June 8, 1912; in effect September 1, 1912; new act May 13, 1913; in effect October 1, 1913.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—All accidental injuries causing disability of at least two weeks, or death, arising out of and in the course of the employment, caused in whole, or in part, or contributed to, by a necessary risk or danger of, or inherent in the nature of the employment, or by failure of the employer or his agents to exercise due care or to comply with any law affecting the employment.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All especially dangerous employments, including the construction, operation and maintenance of steam and street railroads, using or working near explosives, building work using iron or steel frames or hoists, derricks, or ladders or scaffolds twenty or more feet above ground; telegraph, telephone or other electrical work; work in mines, quarries, tunnels, subways, etc.; all mills, shops and factories using power machinery. Industries declared especially dangerous are specified in law. Elective as to other industries.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered. Public employment: No provision.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a lump sum equal to 2,400 times one-half the daily wages or earnings of the deceased employee, but not to exceed $4,000. Payments to children cease on reaching the age of eighteen years.

(b) If no dependents, the reasonable expenses of medical attendance and burial of deceased employee.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) For total disability, 50 per cent. of the employee's semi-monthly earnings during the time he is unable to work at any gainful occupation.

(b) For partial disability, a semi-monthly payment equal to one-half the wage decrease.

(c) The total amount of payments for total or partial disability caused by a single injury not to exceed $4,000.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Examinations as to the nature of injury and degree of incapacity, etc., may be required by either party at intervals of not less than three months.

INSURANCE—The employer may insure provided the liability for compensation is not less than the compensation fixed by law.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—A judgment for compensation issued by a court is collectible without relief from valuation or appraisal laws and has the same preferential claim as is allowed by law for unpaid wages or personal services.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes may be settled by (a) written agreement between the parties, (b) arbitration, or (c) by reference to the Attorney-General of the State, in case of failure or refusal to agree by any of the modes above provided, then by a civil action at law.

CALIFORNIA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 8, 1911; in effect September 1, 1911; new act May 26, 1913; in effect January 1, 1914; amended, chapters 541, 607, 662, acts of 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries arising out of and in the course of employment causing disability for more than two weeks, or death, and not the result of the intoxication or wilful misconduct of the injured employee.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All excepting agriculture and domestic service.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Every person in the service of an employer for hire, including aliens, apprentices and members of employer's family who perform labor, excepting casual laborers. Public employment: Persons employed by the State and its political subdivisions (except unsalaried deputies appointed for their own convenience), and by all public corporations.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Entire cost rests upon the employer.

COMPENSATION IN CASE OF DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, three times the annual earnings of the deceased employee; not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000, payable at least monthly in installments equal to 65 per cent. of the wages. Payments to children cease on reaching the age of eighteen years, unless mentally or physically incapacitated for earning a living.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, such proportion of the above as corresponds to the ratio between the earnings of the deceased and his contribution to their support.

(c) If no dependents, the reasonable expense of burial, not exceeding $100.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Reasonable medical, surgical and hospital treatment required during the first ninety days after the injury, or longer if the commission directs.
- (b) For temporary total disability, 65 per cent. of average weekly earnings during such disability.
- (c) For temporary partial disability, 65 per cent. of weekly loss of wages during such disability.
- (d) The aggregate amount of benefits for a single injury causing temporary disability is limited to three times the annual earnings of the injured person, with a maximum benefit period of 240 weeks.
- (e) For permanent disability, 55 per cent. of average weekly earnings, for periods varying from forty to 240 weeks, according to the degree of disability. After the expiration of 240 weeks a further benefit varying from 10 to 40 per cent. of the weekly earnings is payable during the remainder of life, when the degree of disability reaches or exceeds 70 per cent.

In case of permanent incapacity or death, a lump sum may be substituted for benefits, such lump sum to equal the present value of the benefits computed at 6 per cent.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Decisions and awards may be reviewed at any time during the first 245 weeks, after legal notice received.

INSURANCE—A State insurance fund is created under State control for the purpose of insuring employers against liability. Employers may effect insurance for liability for accident with any insurance company. Municipalities are required to insure in the State fund, unless the risk is refused.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—A claim for injury or death of an employee or any award shall have the same preference over other unsecured debts as is given by law to claims for wages, but not so as to impair a lien of a previous award.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the State Industrial Accident Commission, subject to a limited review by the courts.

CANAL ZONE.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—August 24, 1912; executive order, February 26, 1913; in effect March 1, 1913. (Suspended.) New order, March 20, 1914; in effect April 1, 1914.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injuries causing disability of over seven days, or death, provided the injury is not intentionally brought about nor the result of intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—The construction, maintenance, operation, or sanitation of the canal, Panama Railroad, or auxiliary canals, locks, or other subsidiary enterprises.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Employees of the Panama Railroad Co. directly engaged in the work named above. Public employment: Employees of the United States employed in the Canal Zone in the work named above.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—The entire cost rests upon the employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

- (a) Burial or transportation of body of deceased.
- (b) To widow alone, 25 per cent. of the monthly wages of the deceased, with addition of 10 per cent. for each child, the total not to exceed 35 per cent., unless there be children by a former marriage, when it may be 50 per cent., for eight years.
- (c) If no parent is left, to one child 25 per cent., and not more than 50 per cent. of the wages for two or more.
- (d) To parents, brothers, sisters, grandchildren, and grandparents, such sums as the Governor may determine, the total not to exceed 50 per cent. of the wages, awards to other beneficiaries being reduced if necessary.

Payments cease on the death or remarriage of a beneficiary, or on his ceasing to be dependent, and are then to be redistributed, but may in no case extend beyond eight years.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Reasonable medical, surgical, and hospital services and supplies.
- (b) For permanent total disability, a monthly payment beginning with the fifth day equal to 75 per cent. of pay for three months, then 50 per cent. until eight years are completed.
- (c) For temporary disability, 75 per cent. of monthly pay for three months, then 50 per cent. until the completion of special periods for designated injuries (fractures); proportionate awards for other injuries.
- (d) For permanent partial disability, a monthly payment equal to 75 per cent. of monthly wages for three months, then 50 per cent. of wages until completion of fixed periods for specified injuries; others proportionate. If employee is able to work during such period, 75 per cent. of wage loss.

Conversion to lump sum payments is provided for.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—The Governor of the Panama Canal Zone may at any time review the compensation previously fixed.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Under Government control.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—The Governor of the Canal Zone decides all questions arising under this order or in regard to the interpretation thereof.

COLORADO.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 10, 1915; in effect August 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries caused by accident arising out of and in course of employment, not intentionally self-inflicted or intentionally inflicted by another, and causing death within two years or disability for more than three weeks.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All except interstate commerce and domestic and agricultural labor in which four or more persons are employed in which employers elect to come under the act; others may elect, but lose no defenses if they do not. Public service under State, municipalities, school or irrigation districts, etc.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Every person in the service of another under any contract of hire, express or implied, casual employees excepted. Public employees: All under any appointment or contract of hire; elective officials excluded.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

- (a) To persons wholly dependent, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages for six years, $8 maximum, total not to exceed $2,500 nor to be less than $1,000. If death occurs from any cause during receipt of disability benefits, any unaccrued and unpaid remainder goes to dependents.
- (b) If only partial dependents survive, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages, $8 maximum, for such part of six years as the commission may determine, total not to exceed $2,500. If death occurs from any cause during the receipt of disability benefits, partial dependents shall receive not more than four times the amount contributed by the deceased during his last year of employment, the aggregate of disability and death benefits not to exceed $2,500.
- (c) If no dependents, $100 funeral expenses.
- (d) Payments to widow or dependent widower cease on death or remarriage; to children, on reaching the age of eighteen, unless physically incapacitated from earning.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Medical and surgical assistance for first thirty days, not more than $100 in value.
- (b) For total disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wages during continuance, $5 minimum, $8 maximum; full wages if less than $5.

(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of the weekly wage decrease, $8 maximum; total not to exceed $2,080.

(d) Special schedule for specified injuries, 50 per cent. of weekly wages for periods ranging from four to 208 weeks.

Payments may be commuted to a lump sum after six months.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be changed within fifteen days after making on discovery of mistake, and may be appealed from within sixty days.

INSURANCE—Insurance in State fund, stock or mutual company, or proof of financial ability to make payments is required.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurers are primarily liable to a workman or his beneficiaries entitled to benefits; notice to employer is notice to insurer; insolvency of employer does not release insurer. Claims are not assignable, and payments are exempt from attachment or execution.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are determined by the Industrial Commission, with limited appeal to courts.

CONNECTICUT.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—May 29, 1913; in effect January 1, 1914; amended, chapter 288, Acts of 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—All injuries arising out of and in the course of employment, disability of more than ten days, or death, except when injury is caused by wilful and serious misconduct of the injured employee, or by his intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries in which five or more persons are employed, in absence of contrary election by employer.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees of employers accepting the act, in absence of contrary election, outworkers and casual employees excepted. Public employment: Employees of the State and any public corporation within the State using the services of another for pay.

(a) $100 for burial expenses.

(b) To persons wholly dependent, a weekly compensation equal to one-half the earnings of the deceased employee.

(c) If only partial dependents survive, a weekly compensation, determined according to the measure of dependence, not exceeding one-half the earnings of the deceased employee.

(d) Compensation shall in no case be more than $10 or less than $5 weekly, and shall not continue longer than 312 weeks.

A widow's or widower's dependence ceases with remarriage, and a child's upon reaching eighteen years of age, unless physically or mentally incapacitated.

If a widow or dependent widower remarries or dies during the term of benefit payments, subsequent payments go to other dependents, if any.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical and surgical aid and hospital service during such time as needed.

(b) For total disability, a weekly compensation equal to one-half the employee's earnings, not more than $10 or less than $5 weekly, or for longer than 520 weeks.

(c) For partial disability, a weekly compensation equal to one-half the wage loss, but not more than $10 per week, or for longer than 312 weeks. For specified injuries causing permanent partial disability, one-half the average weekly earnings for fixed periods in lieu of all other payments.

Lump sum payments may be approved by the commission, provided they equal the value of the compensations.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Review may be had upon request of either party, whenever it shall appear to the compensation commissioner that the incapacity or the measure of dependence has changed.

INSURANCE—Approved schemes may be substituted provided the benefits are equivalent to those provided by law. Insurance may be taken in approved stock or mutual companies or associations.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Employer must furnish the insurance commissioner satisfactory proof of his solvency and financial ability to pay awards, file satisfactory security with the insurance commissioner, or insure in approved stock or mutual companies or associations.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are to be settled by the compensation commissioners. Appeals from findings and awards of any commissioner may be made to the Superior Court of the county without cost to either party.

HAWAII.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 28, 1915; in effect July 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury by accident arising out of and in course of employment, causing disability for more than fourteen days or death within two years, and not due to the employee's intention to injure himself or another or to his intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All public and all industrial employment.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All persons under contract of employment or apprenticeship, other than casual employees, whose pay does not exceed $36 per week. Public employment: All except elective officials and employees who receive salaries in excess of $1,800 per year.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $100 funeral expenses if death occurs within six months after the injury.

(b) 40 per cent. of average weekly wages to widow or dependent widower alone, 50 per cent. if one or two dependent children, 60 per cent. if three or more; 30 per cent. to one or two orphans, 10 per cent. additional for each child in excess of two, total not to exceed 50 per cent. If no consort or child, but other dependents, 25 to 40 per cent.

(c) Payments to widow cease on death or remarriage, and to widower on termination of disability or remarriage; to child on reaching age of sixteen, unless incapable of self-support, when they may continue to eighteen; to other beneficiaries, on termination of disability; no payments except to children to continue longer than 312 weeks. Basic wages not less than $5 nor more than $36 weekly.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable surgical, medical and hospital services for first fourteen days, not exceeding $50 in amount.

(b) For total disability, 60 per cent. of weekly wages, $3 minimum, $18 maximum, for not longer than 312 weeks; total not to exceed $5,000. If wages are less than $3, full wages will be paid unless disability is permanent, when $3 will be paid.

(c) For partial disability 50 per cent. of wage decrease, $12 maximum, not over 312 weeks, total not to exceed $5,000; fixed awards for specified injuries.

Payments may be commuted to one or more lump sums in any case.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Agreements and awards may be reviewed at any time, not oftener than once in six months.

INSURANCE—Private employers must carry insurance, secure guarantee insurance, deposit security, or furnish proof of financial ability to make payments.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Payments are preferred claims, the same as wage debts. Employees have direct recourse to insuring company; insolvency of employer does not release insurer.

ILLINOIS.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—June 10, 1911; in effect May 1, 1912. New act, June 28, 1913; in effect July 1, 1913; amended June 28 (p. 400), 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Accidental injuries arising out of and in the course of employment causing permanent disfigurement, disability of over six working days, or death.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—The building trades; construction, excavating and electrical work; transportation; mining and quarrying; work with or about explosives, molten metals, injurious gases or vapors, or corrosive acids, and all enterprises in which the law requires protective devices, provided the employer elects. Other employers may elect, but forfeit no defenses if they do not. Compulsory as to State and its municipalities.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees. Public employment: All persons employed by the State, county, municipality, etc., except officials.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Entire cost rests on the employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent or to lineal heirs to whose support the employee had contributed within four years, a sum equal to four years' earnings, not less than $1,650 nor more than $3,600.

(b) If only dependent collateral heirs survive, such a percentage of the above sum as the support rendered during the last two years was of the earnings of the deceased.

(c) If no dependents, a burial benefit not exceeding $150.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical and surgical aid for not over eight weeks, not over $200 in value.

(b) For total disability, beginning with eighth day (second day of permanent), a weekly sum equal to one-half the employee's earnings, $6 minimum, $12 maximum, during disability or until payments equal a death benefit; thereafter, if the disability is permanent, a sum annually equal to 8 per cent. of a death benefit, but not less than $10 per month.

(c) For permanent partial disability, one-half the loss of earning capacity, not more than $12 per week.

(d) For certain specific injuries (mutilations, etc.), a benefit of 50 per cent. of weekly wages for fixed periods.

(e) For serious and permanent disfigurement, not causing incapacity and not otherwise compensated, a sum not exceeding one-fourth the death benefits.

No payments are to extend beyond eight years, except in case of permanent total incapacity.

Lump sum payments for either death or disability may be substituted by the Industrial Board for periodic payments.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Medical examination may be had not oftener than every four weeks. The Industrial Board may, on request, review instalment payments within eighteen months after the award or agreement thereon.

INSURANCE—The employer may insure or maintain a benefit system, but may not reduce his liability under the act.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—In case of insolvency, awards constitute liens upon all property of the employer within the county, paramount to all other claims, except wages, taxes, mortgages, or trust deeds.

Employers must furnish proof of ability to pay, or give security, insure, or make other provision for security of payment. The rights of an insolvent employer to insurance indemnities are subrogated to injured employees.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are determined by the industrial board through an arbitrator or arbitration committee, subject to review by the board. Questions of law may be reviewed by the courts.

INDIANA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 8, 1915; in effect September 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury causing disability for more than two weeks, or death by accident arising out of and in course of employment, not due to wilful misconduct, intention to injure self, intoxication, or wilful failure or refusal to use safety appliance or perform duty required by statute.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All except interstate and foreign commerce, for which Federal laws make provision, and domestic and agricultural labor, unless employer make contrary election; compulsory as to State and its municipalities.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees and contractors' employees engaged upon the subject matter of the contract; casual employees are excepted. Public employment: All employees.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $100 for funeral expenses, if death from the injury occurs within 30 weeks.

(b) 50 per cent. of weekly wages to persons wholly dependent; to those partially dependent, amounts proportionate to decedent's contributions to their support. The term of payment is limited to 300 weeks from the receipt of the injury.

(c) Payments cease on remarriage of widow or dependent widower, or on children attaining the age of eighteen years, unless mentally or physically disabled for earning. Wages are to be considered as not above $24 nor less than $10 weekly, no total to exceed $5,000.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical and hospital services for first thirty days, and longer at option of employer; employee must accept unless otherwise ordered by Industrial Board.

(b) For total disability, 55 per cent. of wages for not more than 500 weeks.

(c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of wage loss for not more than 300 weeks.

(d) For certain specified injuries, 55 per cent. of wages for designated periods ranging from 15 to 200 weeks.

Wage basis and total amounts are limited as for death benefits.

Any payments may be commuted to a lump sum after twenty-six weeks.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be viewed at any time by Industrial Board on its own motion or the request of either party, but without retroactive effect.

INSURANCE—Required unless satisfactory proof of financial ability to meet payments.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Contracts of insurance must inure directly to the benefit of the person entitled to payments under an award. Payments have same preference and priority as unpaid wages, and are exempt from claims of creditors.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are determined by the industrial board, with appeal to courts on questions of law.

IOWA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 18, 1913; in effect (a) establishing industrial commission and providing for insurance of employees, July 4, 1913; (b) compensation features, July 1, 1914.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—All personal injuries arising out of and in the course of the employment causing disability of more than two weeks, or death; except when caused by the injured employee's wilful intention to injure himself or another, or by the intoxication of the employee.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries except agriculture, in absence of contrary election by employer. Compulsory as to State and its municipalities.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered in absence of contrary election, except clerks not subjected to the hazards of the industry and casual employees. Public employment: All employees of the State and its subdivisions.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Entire burden is on employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) Reasonable expenses of the employee's last sickness and burial, not to exceed $100.

(b) To persons wholly dependent, a weekly payment equal to 50 per cent. of the wages of the deceased employee, but not more than $10 nor less than $5 per week, for 300 weeks.

(c) If only partial dependents survive, such a proportion of the above as the amounts contributed by the employee to such partial dependents bear to his annual earnings.

(d) If the employee was a minor whose earnings were received by the parent, a sum to the parent equal to two-thirds of the amount provided for persons wholly dependent.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable surgical, medical and hospital services and supplies for first two weeks, not exceeding $100.

(b) For total temporary disability 50 per cent. of wages, not more than $10 nor less than $5 (unless wages are less than $5, then full wages), for not more than 300 weeks.

(c) For total permanent disability, the same compensation as for temporary disability, to be paid for a period of not more than 400 weeks.

(d) For partial permanent disability (specified maimings), 50 per cent. of average weekly wages for fixed periods.

Lump sum payments may be substituted on approval of the court.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Payments may be reviewed by the Industrial Commissioner at the request of either party.

INSURANCE—Employers may insure in approved companies or mutual associations, or contract with employees to maintain approved scheme in lieu of the compensation provided by law, provided there is no diminution of benefits.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Employers must insure in approved companies or mutual associations or furnish satisfactory proof of financial ability to make payments, or deposit security with the State Insurance Department. In case of insolvency of the insurer, a claim for compensation becomes a first lien, and in case of legal incapacity of insured to receive the amount due, the insurer must settle directly with the beneficiary.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes may be settled by arbitration.

KANSAS.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 14, 1911; in effect January 1, 1912; amended March 10, 1913.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries by accident arising out of and in the course of employment not due to intoxication or deliberate intention of injured employee, or caused by his wilful failure to use safeguards provided by statute or furnished by employer, causing incapacity to earn full wages for at least two weeks, or death.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Railways, factories, quarries, electrical, building or engineering work, laundries, natural gas plants, county and municipal work, employments requiring the use of dangerous, explosive or inflammable materials, if employing five or more persons; and mines without reference to the number of employees, in absence of contrary election; employers of less than five persons may also elect.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, including apprentices, but excluding casual employees. Public employment: Workmen on county and municipal work.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a sum equal to three years' earnings of the deceased employee, not less than $1,200 nor more than $3,600. For non-resident alien beneficiaries (except in Canada) the maximum is $750.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, a sum proportionate to the injury to such dependents.

(c) If no dependents are left, a reasonable expense for medical attendance and burial, not exceeding $100. Compensation ceases upon the marriage of any dependent, or when a minor, not physically or mentally incapable of wage earning, shall become eighteen years of age.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) For total incapacity, payments during incapacity after the second week, equal to 50 per cent. of earnings, but not less than $6 nor more than $15 per week.

(b) For partial incapacity, payments during incapacity, after the second week, not less than 25 nor more than 50 per cent. of earnings, not less than $3 nor more than $12 per week, except in case of minors earning less than $10 per week, in which case the compensation shall not be less than 75 per cent. of the earnings. No payments for total or partial disability shall extend over more than eight years. After six months, lump sum payments may be substituted, as agreed upon or determined by the court.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Any award may be modified at any time by agreement. After one year either party may demand a revision. Employees must submit to medical examination at reasonable periods to determine their physical condition.

INSURANCE—The employer may insure in any approved insurance scheme which provides compensation not less favorable than is provided in this act.

SECURITY OF PAYMENT—Lump sums awarded by the court may be secured by order of the court by a good and sufficient bond when there is doubt of security of payment. If the employer was insured, the insurer shall be subrogated to the rights and duties of the employer.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes not settled by agreement may be referred to arbitrators, subject to an appeal to courts.

LOUISIANA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—June 18, 1914; in effect January 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury by accident arising out of and in course of employment causing disability for more than two weeks, or death within one year, and not due to wilful intention to injure, to intoxication, to deliberate failure to use safeguards, or to deliberate breach of safety laws.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Hazardous trades, businesses or occupations in absence of contrary election; extensive list, and others may be so adjudged or brought within the act by voluntary agreement. Compulsory as to employees of the State and its municipalities and public boards.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Every person performing services arising out of and incidental to his employer's trade, business or occupation, if the same is within the act. Public employment: Every person in the service of the State, etc., except officials.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $100 expenses of last sickness and burial.

(b) To widow or dependent widower alone, 25 per cent. of weekly wages, 40 per cent. if one child, and 50 per cent. if two or more. If one child alone, 25 per cent., 40 per cent. for two, and 50 per cent. for three or more.

For one dependent parent, 25 per cent.; for two, 50 per cent.; if one brother or sister, 25 per cent., and 10 per cent. additional for each other. The total in no case may exceed 50 per cent. of the weekly wages, $3 minimum, payment, $10 maximum, for not over 300 weeks. Payment to any beneficiary ceases on death or marriage, to children on reaching the age of eighteen, unless mentally or physically incapacitated.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- Reasonable medical, surgical and hospital service, not to exceed $100 in value.
- For total disability, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages, $3 minimum, $10 maximum, for not more than 400 weeks.
- For partial disability, 50 per cent. of the wage loss, not over $10, for not more than 400 weeks.
- Fixed schedule for specified injuries, for periods from 10 to 150 weeks. Payments in any case may be commuted to a lump sum on agreement of the parties and approved by the courts.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Judgments may be modified at any time by agreement of the parties and approval by the courts; or after one year, they may be reviewed by the court on application of either party.

INSURANCE—Not required.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Policy of insurance must give claimants right to direct payment regardless of the default or bankruptcy of the employer. Compensation payments have the same preference as wage debts.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by Judges of the courts in simple, summary procedure.

MAINE.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 1, 1915; in effect January 1, 1916.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injury sustained in course of employment, causing disability for more than two weeks, or death, not due to wilful intention to injure himself or another, and not due to intoxication unless fact or habit of intoxication was known or cognizable to employer.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All except agricultural and domestic labor, and seamen in interstate or foreign commerce, in which more than five persons are employed, if employer elects. Abrogation of defences does not affect cutting, hauling, driving or rafting of logs.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All persons in industries covered, casual employees excepted. Public employment: Employees of State, cities and counties, and of towns accepting the provisions of the act, other than official.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—All on employer. If employees contribute to substitute scheme, additional proportionate benefits must be paid.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

- To persons wholly dependent, 50 per cent. of weekly wages for 300 weeks, $4 minimum, $10 maximum.
- If only partial dependents survive, amounts proportionate to their degree of dependency, for 300 weeks.
- If only one wholly dependent and more than one partly dependent person survives, payments are to be divided according to the relative extent of dependency.
- If no dependents, not above $200 expenses of last sickness and burial. Payments to children cease at age of eighteen unless mentally or physically incapacitated for earning a living.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- Reasonable medical and hospital services during first two weeks, not over $30 in value, unless by agreement or order of commission a larger amount is provided for.
- For total disability, 50 per cent. of the wages for not more than 500 weeks, $1 minimum, $10 maximum, total not to exceed $3,000.

- For partial disability, 50 per cent. of the weekly wage loss, not over $10, for not more than 300 weeks. For specified injuries causing permanent partial disability, 50 per cent. of the wages for various fixed periods, then compensation on basis of wage loss, if any, for not more than 300 weeks in all. Lump sum payments may be approved by the commission after weekly payments for not less than six months.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Agreements or awards may be reviewed at the instance of either party at any time within two years.

INSURANCE—Insurance in approved companies is required unless the employer gives satisfactory proof of solvency and makes deposit or bond to secure payments.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance as above. Claims have same preference over unsecured debts as do wages for labor.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are to be settled by the Industrial Accident Commission, with appeals to courts on questions of law.

MARYLAND.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 16, 1914; in effect November 1, 1914.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Accidental personal injury arising out of and in course of employment, not due to wilful intention or intoxication, and causing disability for more than two weeks or death within two years.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Extra hazardous (enumerated list); others by joint election of employers and employees. Farm and domestic labor, country blacksmiths and wheelwrights are excluded.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All in industries covered, except casual employees and those receiving more than $2,000 annually. Public employment: Workmen employed for wages in extra-hazardous work, unless the municipality makes other equal or better provision.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

- Funeral expenses not over $75.
- To persons wholly dependent, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages for eight years; not more than $4,250 nor less than $1,000.
- To persons partly dependent, 50 per cent. of the weekly wages for such portion of eight years as the commission may fix, the amount not to exceed $3,000.
- If no dependents, funeral expenses only.
- Payments to widow close on remarriage, and to children on reaching the age of sixteen years, unless mentally or physically incapacitated.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- Medical, surgical, etc., expenses, not above $150 in value.
- For total disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wages, $5 minimum, $12 maximum, for not over eight years; total not to exceed $5,000. If wages are less than $5, full wages will be paid.
- For partial disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wage loss, $12 maximum, total not over $3,000; specific periods for specified maimings.

Where the injured employee is a learner, with prospect of increase of wages, this fact may be considered in fixing awards.

Payments may, in the discretion of the commission, be made in part or in whole in lump sums.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—The commission may modify its findings and orders at any time for justifiable cause.

INSURANCE—Insurance in State fund, stock or mutual company, or proof of financial ability, is required.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Policies must permit action by commission to secure payments to any person entitled. Payments may not be assigned, nor are they subject to execution or attachment.

MASSACHUSETTS.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—July 28, 1911; in effect July 1, 1912; amended chapters 571, 1912; 48, 448, 563, 696, 746, 1913; 338, 708, 1914; 123, 275, 314, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries arising out of and in the course of employment causing incapacity for two weeks, or death, unless the injury is due to the serious and wilful misconduct of the injured employee.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries if the employer so elects.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, except masters of vessels and seamen engaged in interstate or foreign commerce and casual employees. Public employment: The State shall, and any county, city, town or district having power of taxation and accepting the act may compensate its laborers, workmen, and mechanics.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a weekly payment equal to two-thirds the average weekly wages of the deceased employee, but not less than $4 nor more than $10, for a period of 500 weeks, the total not to exceed $4,000.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, a sum proportionate to the portion of earnings contributed to their support by the deceased employee.

(c) If no dependents the reasonable expense of last sickness and burial, not to exceed $200.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable medical and hospital services, and medicines as needed, for the first two weeks after injury.

(b) For total disability, a sum equal to two-thirds the average weekly wages, but not less than $4 nor more than $10 per week, not exceeding 500 weeks nor $4,000 in amount.

(c) For partial disability, two-thirds the wage loss, but not to exceed $10 per week, and for not longer than 500 weeks.

(d) In specified injuries (mutilations, etc.), two-thirds the weekly wages, not exceeding $10 nor less than $4 per week, for fixed periods, in addition to other compensation.

Lump-sum payments may be substituted in whole or part, after payments for injury or death have been made for not less than six months.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Either party may demand a revision of payment at any time. Employees must submit to medical examination to determine their physical condition when requested by the employer.

INSURANCE—Employer must become a subscriber of the State Employees' Insurance Association or insure in some authorized liability insurance company.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—The State controls the State Employees' Insurance Association, and other companies must be authorized by the State to do business.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTE—On request of either party, the Industrial Accident Board calls for a committee of arbitration, whose decision is subject to review by the Industrial Accident Board.

MICHIGAN.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 20, 1912; in effect September 1, 1912; amended chapters 50, 79, 156, 259, 1913; 104, 153, 170, 171, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries causing incapacity to earn full wages for a period of two weeks, or death, arising out of and in the course of employment, unless such injuries resulted from intentional and wilful misconduct of the injured person.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Compulsory as to the State and its municipalities, and each incorporated public board and commission authorized to hold property and to sue and be sued. All industries having one or more persons in service under contract of hire if the employer elects.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, including aliens and minors, except casual employees. Public employment: All employees except officials of the State or of a municipality.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a weekly payment equal to one-half the deceased workman's earnings, but not less than $4 nor more than $10 per week for a period of 300 weeks.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, such proportion of the above as the amount of previous contributions bears to such earnings.

(c) If no dependents, the reasonable expense of the last sickness and burial, not exceeding $200.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable medical and hospital services for the first three weeks.

(b) For total incapacity, a weekly payment equal to one-half the earnings, but not less than $4 nor more than $10 per week, nor for a period longer than 500 weeks from the date of the injury, and not exceeding $4,000.

(c) For partial incapacity, a weekly payment equal to one-half the wage loss, but not more than $10 per week, and for not longer than 300 weeks.

(d) For certain specified injuries (mutilation, etc.) 50 per cent. of average weekly earnings for fixed periods.

(e) Payments begin with the fifteenth day after the injury, but if the disability continues for eight weeks or longer compensation is computed from the date of injury.

After six months lump sums may be substituted for weekly payments.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Weekly payments may be reviewed by the Industrial Accident Board at the request of either party. An injured employee must submit to medical examination when requested.

INSURANCE—Employer must furnish proof of financial ability to pay the required compensation, or insure in an authorized employers' liability company, or in an employers' insurance association organized under State laws, or become a member of a State insurance fund administered by the State Commissioner of Insurance.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—In case of insolvency, claims constitute a first lien upon all property of the employer. Employers must furnish proof of financial ability to pay compensation, or insure in approved companies or with the State.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Either party may request the Industrial Accident Board to appoint a committee of arbitration, whose decisions are subject to review by the board. The Supreme Court may review questions of law.

MINNESOTA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 24, 1913; in effect October 1, 1913; amended, chapters 193, 209, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment causing disability for more than two weeks, or death, unless intentionally caused, or due to the intoxication of the injured person.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All excepting common carriers by steam railroad and farm and domestic service, in the absence of contrary election by employers.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, including aliens and minors, in the absence of contrary election, casual employees excepted. Public employment: All persons in the service of a county, city, town, village, or school district, excluding public officials elected or appointed for regular terms.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Cost rests upon the employer.

- (a) $100 funeral expenses.
- (b) To a widow alone, 35 per cent. of monthly wages of deceased, increasing to 60 per cent. if four or more children; to a dependent husband alone, 25 per cent.; to a dependent orphan, 40 per cent., with 10 per cent. additional for each additional orphan, with a maximum of 60 per cent.; to the dependent parent or parents, if no dependent widow, widower, or children, 30 per cent. if one parent and 40 per cent. if both survive; if none of the foregoing, but a brother, sister, grandparent, mother-in-law, or father-in-law is wholly dependent, if but one such relative, 25 per cent., or if more than one, 30 per cent., divided equally.
- (c) If only partial dependents survive, that proportion of benefits provided for actual dependents which contributions bore to wages earned.
- (d) When no dependents are left, expense of last sickness and burial not exceeding $100, in addition to medical and hospital services provided in case of disability.

Payments continue for not more than 300 weeks, and cease when a minor child reaches the age of eighteen, unless physically or mentally incapacitated from earning, and upon the death or marriage of other dependents, unless otherwise specified.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Reasonable medical and surgical treatment, not exceeding 90 days nor $100 in value, unless ordered in exceptional cases, when $200 is the limit.
- (b) For total disability, 50 per cent. of wages.
- (c) For temporary partial disability, 50 per cent. of the wage loss.
- (d) For specified permanent partial disability (mutilations, etc.), 50 per cent. of the earnings for fixed periods.

Payment for death or disability may not be less than $6.50 nor more than $11 per week, unless the wages were less than $6.50, when the amount of wages is paid. Payments may not extend beyond 300 weeks, except for permanent total disability, when the maximum is 400 weeks, with payments of not more than $6.50 per week thereafter for 150 weeks, the total not to exceed $5,000.

Lump sums may be substituted for periodical payments, but in case of compensation for death, permanent total disability, or certain maimings the consent of the court must be obtained.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—After six months from the date of an award either party may apply to the court for revision. The employee must submit to medical examination when requested.

INSURANCE—Employers may insure in any authorized company, stock or mutual, or maintain co-operative schemes, assuming other and greater risks, and other classes of industrial insurance.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insured workmen have an equitable lien upon any policy becoming due, and in case of the employer's incapacity the insurer shall make payment directly to them. Claims to compensation have the same preference against the assets of the employer as unpaid wages.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Either party may submit a claim to the Judge of the District Court, who shall determine such dispute in a summary manner, subject to review by the Supreme Court as to questions of law.

MONTANA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 8, 1915; in effect July 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries arising out of and in course of employment, resulting from some fortuitous event, causing death or disability of more than two weeks' duration.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—"All inherently hazardous works and occupations," including manufactures, construction work, transportation and repair of the means thereof, and any hazardous occupation or work not enumerated, in which employers elect, but not including agricultural, domestic or casual labor.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All persons other than independent contractors, employed in the industries covered, whether as manual laborers or otherwise, except casual employees. Public employment: All employees in the industries covered.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—All on employer, except that contributions may be arranged for hospital fund.

- (a) $75 for funeral expenses, if death occurs within six months of injury.
- (b) To beneficiaries (widow, widower, child or children under 16, or invalid child above 16) 50 per cent. of wages of the deceased if residents of the United States, if not, 25 per cent., unless otherwise required by treaty. To major dependents (father or mother) in case there are no beneficiaries, 40 per cent. To minor dependents (brothers or sisters actually dependent), if no beneficiary or major dependent, 30 per cent. Non-resident alien dependents receive nothing unless required by treaty, nor do beneficiaries if citizens of a Government excluding citizens of the United States from equal benefits under compensation laws. Term of payments may not exceed 400 weeks, $10 maximum, $5 minimum; if wages less than $6, then full wages. Payments cease on remarriage of widow or widower, or when child, brother or sister reaches the age of sixteen, unless an invalid.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Medical and hospital services during first two weeks after happening of injury, not over $50 in value, unless there is a hospital contract.
- (b) For total temporary disability, 50 per cent. of wages during disability, $10 maximum, $6 minimum, unless wages are less than $6, when full wages will be paid, for not more than 300 weeks.
- (c) For total permanent disability, same scale as above for 400 weeks, then $5 per week, while disability continues.
- (d) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of the wage loss, wages and benefits not to exceed $10 nor fall below $6 in amount, unless wages at time of injury were less than $6; payments to continue not more than 150 weeks for permanent cases, and 50 weeks where disability is temporary.
- (e) For maimings, compensation of same scale and limits as in (b) for terms ranging from 3 to 200 weeks.

Periodical payments may in any case be converted in whole or part to lump sums.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Decisions and awards may be rescinded or amended at any time by the Industrial Accident Board for good cause.

INSURANCE—The employer may carry his own risk on a showing of financial ability; security may be required for probable liabilities and must be given when a continuing payment is ascertained. Insurance may be carried in any company authorized to do business in the State, or the employer may contribute to a State fund.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—In case of bankruptcy, etc., liabilities under this act are a first lien upon any deposit made by an employer, and if this is not sufficient, then on any property of the employer or insurer within the State, and shall be prorated with other lienable claims.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Proceedings to determine disputes under the act must be instituted before the board and not elsewhere; limited appeal to courts.

NEBRASKA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 21, 1913; in effect July 17, 1913.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injury causing disability for more than fourteen days, or death, caused by accident arising out of and in the course of employment, except accident caused by or resulting in any degree from wilful negligence or intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries where five or more persons are employed by the employer in the regular trade, business or occupation of the employer, except domestic service, agriculture and interstate or foreign commerce, in the absence of contrary election. Exempt employees may make an affirmative election.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, including aliens and minors, but excluding casual employees and home workers. Public employment: All persons employed by the State, or any Government agency created by the State, not having been elected or appointed for a regular term.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

- (a) In addition to any other benefits, a reasonable amount not exceeding $100 to cover expenses of last sickness and burial.
- (b) To persons wholly dependent, 50 per cent. of the employee's wages, but not less than $5 nor more than $10 per week, during dependency, but not exceeding 350 weeks; if the wages of the deceased were less than $5 per week, then full wages are to be paid as compensation.
- (c) If only partial dependents survive, a proportion of the above corresponding to the relation the contribution of the deceased to their support bore to his wages. Compensation to children ceases when they reach the age of sixteen years, unless they are physically or mentally incapacitated from earning.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Medical and hospital services during the first twenty-one days, not exceeding $200 in value.
- (b) For total disability, one-half of the weekly wages, but not less than $5 or more than $10 per week for 300 weeks; thereafter while disability lasts 40 per cent. of such wages, but not less than $4 or more than $8 per week. Provided, however, if weekly wages are less than the minimum, compensation to amount of full wages is to be paid.
- (c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of loss of earning capacity, but not exceeding $10 per week, nor exceeding 300 weeks.
- (d) For certain specified injuries (mutilations, etc.), 50 per cent. of wages for fixed periods with the same limits as to amounts as above. Payments begin with the twenty-second day, but if disability continues eight weeks or longer, compensation is computed from the date of injury.

Lump sums may be substituted for periodic payments, but if for death or permanent disability, the approval of the court must be obtained.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Benefits running for a period of six months or longer may be revised at any time by agreement of the parties, or after six months by application to a court.

INSURANCE—An employer may insure his liability for compensation in any authorized stock or mutual insurance company.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—In case of the insolvency of an insured employer, claimants are subrogated to the rights as against the company which the employer would have had if he had paid the claim. Compensation rights and awards have the same preference against the assets of the employer as unpaid wages for labor.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Questions may be submitted to arbitration by mutual consent, or either party may submit a claim to the District Court of county to be heard and determined as a cause in equity, with the right of appeal to the Supreme Court.

NEVADA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 15, 1913; in effect July 1, 1913; amended, chapter 190, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries arising out of and in course of employment, causing incapacity to earn full wages for more than seven days, or death, except when caused by the employee's wilful intention to injure himself or another or the injury is sustained while intoxicated.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All except domestic and farm labor in the absence of contrary election, compulsory as to the State and its municipalities.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in the industries covered. Public employment: All employees.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—The entire cost rests on the employer, except that he may deduct $1 per month from each employee's wages for medical, etc., expenses.

- (a) Burial expenses not to exceed $125.
- (b) To dependent widow or widower alone, 40 per cent. of the average monthly wages, total not to exceed $4,000; if one or two children, 50 per cent., $5,000 maximum; if three or more children, 60 per cent., $6,000 maximum. Payments may not be less than $20 nor more than $60 monthly nor continue more than 100 months. Orphans under sixteen receive sums fixed by the commission, $10 minimum, $35 maximum, for periods also fixed by the commission. Partial dependents receive in proportion to the contributions of the deceased to their support at the time of his death for periods not exceeding 100 months.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Reasonable medical, surgical and hospital aid for not more than four months.
- (b) For total disability, an amount equal to one-half the average monthly wages, but not less than $20 nor more than $60 for 100 months, the total not to exceed $5,000.
- (c) For partial disability, one-half the loss of earning capacity, but not more than $40 per month for not more than 60 months.
- (d) For certain specific injuries (mutilations, etc.) a monthly payment equal to one-half the monthly wages for fixed periods.

No compensation is payable for the first week of disability, but if it continues three weeks or longer compensation is paid from the date of the injury.

The Industrial Commission may permit the substitution of lump sums for monthly payments in an amount not exceeding $5,000.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Readjustment of compensation may be made by the commission on application therefor.

INSURANCE—Employers coming under this act must insure in the State insurance fund.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—State management of the insurance fund and collection of premiums by the State. Payments are not assignable and are exempt from attachment, etc.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—All matters relating to the amount of compensation to be paid are determined by the Industrial Commission.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 15, 1911; in effect January 1, 1912.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Any injury to an employee arising out of and in the course of employment causing disability of over two weeks, or death, unless due to wilful misconduct, intoxication or violation of law.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Industries dangerous to life or limb, including the operation and maintenance of steam and electric railroads, work in shops, mills, factories, etc., employing five or more persons; work about lines or cables charged with electricity; operations dangerously near explosives used in the industry, or to a steam boiler owned and operated by the employer, and work in or about any quarry, mine or foundry; provided the employer elects.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All workmen engaged in any of the employments covered by this law. Public employment: Government employees are not mentioned.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a sum equal to 150 times the average weekly earnings of the deceased, not to exceed $3,000.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, such proportion of the above compensation as corresponds to the portion of wages contributed to their support.

(c) If no dependents are left, expenses of medical care and burial to a reasonable amount, not in excess of $100.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) For total disability, a sum beginning with the fifteenth day, not exceeding 50 per cent. of average weekly earnings.

(b) For partial disability, a sum not in excess of 50 per cent. of the loss of earning capacity. In no case is compensation to exceed $10 a week nor run for a longer period than 300 weeks. The court may determine the amount of lump sums payable as a substitute for weekly payments.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—The injured person, when requested by the employer, must submit to medical examination not oftener than once a week.

INSURANCE—No provision.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—The employer must satisfy the Commissioner of Labor of his ability to pay the required compensation or file a bond conditioned on the discharge of all liability incurred under this act. Weekly payments have the same preferential claim against the assets of the employer as is allowed for unpaid wages or personal services.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—All questions not settled by agreement are determined by an action in equity.

NEW JERSEY.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 4, 1911; in effect July 1, 1911; amended May 2, 1911; April 1, 1912; March 27, 1913; April 9, 1913; April 17, 1914; March 17, 1915; April 6, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment causing disability of over two weeks, any permanent injury, or death, unless intentionally self-inflicted or due to intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All employments in the absence of contrary election.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees except casual. Non-resident aliens receive no benefits. Public employment: Every employee of the State, county, municipality, board or commission, or other governing body, including boards of education, except persons receiving a salary greater than $1,200 per year, and those holding an elective office.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—The entire cost rests upon the employer.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To one dependent, 35 per cent. of the wages of the deceased person, and for each additional dependent, 5 per cent. additional, the total not to exceed 60 per cent., payable for not more than 300 weeks. Compensation not to be less than $5 nor more than $10 per week, unless the earnings were less than $5, when full wages are paid.

(b) If no dependents, the expense of the last sickness and of burial, the burial not exceeding $100. Payments to widows cease on remarriage, and to orphans on reaching the age of eighteen, unless physically or mentally deficient. A discounted lump sum payment may be substituted at the discretion of the Court of Common Pleas.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Reasonable medical and hospital services for the first two weeks of incapacity, not exceeding $50 in value.

(b) For temporary total disability, 50 per cent. of wages, payable during disability, but not beyond 300 weeks.

(c) For permanent total disability, 50 per cent. of wages during such liability, not beyond 400 weeks.

(d) For certain specific injuries (mutilations, etc.) producing partial but permanent disabilities, 50 per cent. of wages during fixed periods. All weekly payments are subject to the same rule as to minimum and maximum, as for death benefits.

A discounted lump sum payment may be substituted at the discretion of Court of Common Pleas.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—At any time after one year after an award has been made, either party may demand a revision of benefits.

INSURANCE—No provision.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—The right of compensation has the same preference against the assets of the employer as are now or may hereafter be allowed by law for a claim for unpaid wages.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Either party may submit a claim to the Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, who shall hear and determine such disputes in a summary manner, subject to review of questions of law by the Supreme Court.

NEW YORK.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—December 16, 1913; in effect July 1, 1914; amended, chapters 41, 316, 1914; 167, 168, 615, 674, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Accidental injuries arising out of and in course of employment, and disease or infection naturally and unavoidably resulting therefrom, causing disability for more than two weeks, or death, unless caused by the wilful intention of the injured employee to bring about the injury or death of himself or another, or by his intoxication while on duty.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—"Hazardous employments," including construction, maintenance and operation of steam and street railroads; telegraph, telephone and other electrical construction, installation or operation; foundries, machine shops and power plants; stone cutting or dressing; manufactures, tanneries, laundries, printing and book-binding; shipbuilding and repair, and the use of vessels in intrastate commerce; work in mines, quarries, tunnels, subways, shaft sinking, etc.; engineering work, and the construction, repair and demolition of buildings and bridges; lumbering, draying, loading and unloading.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered, farm laborers and domestic servants not included. Public employment: Employees of the State and a municipal corporation or political subdivision thereof, engaged in industries covered are included.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Entire cost rests on employer.

(a) $100 for funeral expenses.

(b) To a widow or dependent widower alone, 30 per cent. of wages of deceased, 10 per cent. additional for each child under eighteen; dependent orphans under eighteen receive 15 per cent. each, and dependent parents, brothers or sisters receive 15 per cent. each; aggregate payments in no case to exceed 66 2-3 per cent.

- (c) Payments to widow or widower cease on death, or remarriage, or when dependent of widower ceases, with two years' compensation on remarriage, payments to children, brothers and sisters cease at eighteen, and to parents when dependence ceases. In computing the above benefits no wages in excess of $100 monthly are considered.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Medical and surgical treatment and hospital services for sixty days, costs to be approved by the commission.
- (b) For total disability, 66 2-3 per cent. of wages during continuance.
- (c) For partial disability, 66 2-3 per cent. of wage loss; for specified permanent partial disabilities (mutilations, etc.), 66 2-3 per cent. of wages for fixed periods. The foregoing payments may not be less than $5 nor more than $15 per week, except for certain maimings the maximum may be $20.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be reviewed at any time, and ended or increased or decreased within the limits fixed.

NOTICE OF INJURY—Notice of an injury for which compensation is payable must be given in writing to the employer and to the commission within ten days after the injury; and in case of death resulting from such injury, within thirty days after death. This notice shall contain the name and address of the employee; shall state in ordinary language the time, place, nature and cause of the injury, and shall be signed by the injured employee or by a person on his behalf, or in case of death by a dependent or a person on his behalf. The failure to give such notice may be excused by the commission either on the ground that for some sufficient reason notice could not have been given or on the ground that the State fund, insurance company, or employer, as the case may be, has not been prejudiced thereby; otherwise the failure to give such notice shall constitute a bar to any claim for compensation.

MEDICAL EXAMINATION—An injured employee claiming or entitled to compensation shall, if requested by the commission, submit to medical examination at such times and at a place reasonably convenient for him, as may be provided by the commission. If the employee or the insurance carrier so desires, he may have a physician or physicians of his own selection, to be paid by him, present to participate in such examination. Refusal to submit to such examination suspends the right to compensation for the period of such refusal.

WAIVER, ASSIGNMENTS—No employee may waive his right to compensation. No employee may agree to assign his right of compensation to another.

INSURANCE—Employer must give proof of financial ability to make payments (deposit of securities may be required), or must insure in State fund or mutual or stock company.

RELEASE FROM LIABILITY—An employer who insures in the State fund is released from all liability for compensation to his injured employees. He shall not otherwise be relieved from such liability except by the payment of compensation by himself or by his insurance carrier.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance may be made to inure directly to the benefit of claimants; insolvency of employer does not release insurance company. Payments have same preference as unpaid wages for labor.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the State Industrial Commission, with limited appeals to courts.

The Bureau of Claims for the commission in New York City is at No. 1 Madison Avenue.

The Legislature of 1915 made the following additions and amendments to the Compensation law of 1914: The provision was made that after the expiration of the first fourteen days of disability on the part of an injured employee, or at any time after his death, "a claim for compensation may be presented to the employer, and if rejected, or if within ten days after presentation a report containing an agreement for compensation be not made and filed" with the Industrial Commission. "the claim may be presented to the commission." The amendment also provides that the commission shall have full power and authority to determine all questions in relation to the payment of claims presented to it for compensation, and authorizes the commission to make or cause to be made such investigations as it deems necessary. "and upon the application of either party shall order a hearing, and within thirty days after a claim for compensation is submitted" or such hearing closed shall make or deny an award, determining such claim for compensation and file the same in the office of the commission, together with a statement of its conclusions of fact and rulings of law. The commission may also before making an award require the claimant to appear before an arbitration committee appointed by it and consisting of one representative of employees, one representative of employers and either a member of the commission or a person specially deputized by the commission to act as chairman, before which the evidence in regard to the claim shall be adduced, and by which it shall be considered and reported upon. Upon a hearing either party may present evidence and be represented by counsel. The decision of the commission is to be final as to all questions of fact, and, except as provided for in section 23 of the Compensation law, as to all questions of law.

When a claim is presented to an employer and the employer and employee, or in case of death his principal dependent, enter into an agreement for the payment of compensation therefor, a joint report of such claim containing such agreement is to be made to the commission upon a form prepared by it and signed by the employer and employee, or in case of death his principal dependent. The commission is to examine the report and approve the same when the terms are strictly in accordance with the amended Compensation law, and such approval is to constitute an award. Nevertheless, the commission may make an award in the manner provided in the section in any case, and if the terms of the award vary from the joint report "the employer shall comply with the award." The new law further says that "in case of unfair dealing or of bad faith on the part of the employer under this section, the commission may impose a penalty, of not more than 10 per centum of the award."

The new law provides that compensation shall be payable periodically by the employer in accordance with the method of payment of the wages of the employee at the time of his injury or death. The State fund or insurance corporation in which the employer is insured "shall within 10 days after demand by such employer and on the presentation of evidence of payment of compensation in accordance with this chapter, reimburse the employer therefor." It is additionally provided that "the commission, whenever it shall so deem advisable, may commute such periodical payments to one or more lump sum payments to the injured employee, or in case of death, his dependents, provided the same shall be in the interest of justice."

Provisions are made for the enforcement of payment of compensation.

Chapter 168 of the Laws of 1915 provides for the payment of moneys in advance of an award by the Industrial Commission—that an employer shall upon making an agreement advance to any injured employee, or to the principal dependent of a deceased employee, the payment or payments provided for in the agreement, and shall receive a receipt. The new law also says that prior to the making of an agreement, or in the event of no agreement, any employer may at his option, advance to any injured employee, or the principal dependent of a deceased employee, any sum of money. The receipts for these payments are to be sent to the Industrial Commission.

Chapter 615 (of 1915) says that the fact that an employee has suffered previous disability or received compensation therefor shall not preclude him from compensation for a later injury nor preclude compensation for death resulting therefrom, "but in determining compensation for the later injury or death his average weekly wages shall be such sum as will reasonably represent his earning capacity at the time of the later injury, provided, however, that an employee who is suffering from a previous disability shall not receive compensation for a later injury in excess of the compensation allowed for such injury when considered by itself and not in conjunction with the previous disability."

Chapter 506 (of 1915) amends the Insurance law in relation to mutual companies to insure employers against loss, damage or compensation resulting from injuries suffered by employees or other persons for which the person insured is liable. No corporation of this kind "shall transact any business of insurance unless the annual premium cost on the insurance applied for shall be not less than $25,000 at the minimum annual rates approved by the Superintendent of Insurance and until at least 40 employers employing not less than 2,500 employees, or 30 employers employing not less than 5,000 employees, or 20 employers employing not less than 7,500 employees, or 10 employers employing not less than 10,000 employees have become members of such corporation and applied for and agreed to take insurance therein covering the liability of such employers to their employees for accidents to or injuries suffered by such employees, nor until the facts specified in this section have been certified under oath by at least three of the persons signing the original certificate, to the Superintendent of Insurance, and the Superintendent of Insurance has issued a license to such corporation authorizing such corporation to begin writing the insurance specified in this article."

OHIO.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—June 15, 1911; in effect January 1, 1912; amended pp. 72, 396, 1913; 193, 194 (first extra session); p. 3, 1914 (second extra session); p. 512, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—All injuries not self-inflicted received in the course of employment causing disability beyond one week, or death.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries employing five or more persons regularly in the same business; also establishments with less than five workmen if the employer elects to pay the premiums provided by this act.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees, excluding casual workers, but including aliens and minors lawfully employed. Public employment: Persons in the service of the State, or its political subdivisions, excepting the officials of the State or municipal governments, and policemen and firemen in cities where pension funds are established and maintained by municipal authority.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

- Burial expenses not to exceed $150.
- To persons wholly dependent, 66½ per cent. of the average weekly earnings of the deceased workman for six years after the date of the injury, not less than $1,500 nor more than $3,750.
- If only partial dependents survive, a proportionate sum to continue for all or such portion of the period of six years as the State Industrial Commission may determine in each case, not exceeding a maximum of $3,750.
- If no dependents, medical and hospital services not exceeding $200 in value, and burial expenses as above.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- Medical, hospital, etc., services, not to exceed $200.
- For total temporary disability, a weekly payment of 66½ per cent. of average weekly wages, during disability, not less than $5 nor more than $12 per week, but not for longer than six years, nor exceeding $3,750.

- For total permanent disability a weekly payment as above continuing until death.
- For partial disability, 66½ per cent. of loss of earning capacity during the continuance thereof, but not exceeding $12 per week or a total of $3,750.
- In certain specified injuries (mutilations, etc.), compensation of 66½ per cent. of wages for fixed periods, with the same maximum and minimum limitations noted above. In all cases if wages are less than prescribed minimum, then total wages are paid as compensation; an expected increase in wages may be given consideration.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—The State Industrial Commission may from time to time make such modification or change in its former findings of fact as it deems necessary.

INSURANCE—The law creates a State insurance fund, under control of a State Industrial Commission. Other schemes are permitted, provided benefits equal to those provided by the State insurance fund are guaranteed employees at the employer's cost.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance is under State control. Claims for compensation under this law have the same preference against the assets of the employer as are or may be allowed by law on judgments rendered for claims for taxes.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—The commission hears and determines all cases within its jurisdiction, limited right of appeal to the civil courts being reserved to the claimant.

OKLAHOMA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—March 22, 1915; in effect September 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injuries causing disability for more than two weeks arising out of and in course of employment not due to the wilful intention of the injured employee to injure himself or another, intoxication, or wilful failure to use statutory safeguard. Fatal injuries not covered.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—"Hazardous" (enumerated list and general clause), in which more than two persons are employed, including work by State or municipalities; agriculture, stock raising, retail stores, and interstate railways not included.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Persons engaged in manual or mechanical work or labor in industries covered. Public employment: Workmen employed for wages in any hazardous work within meaning of this act.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH—Fatal injuries not covered.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- Necessary medical, surgical, or other treatment for first fifteen days.
- For temporary total disability, 50 per cent. of average weekly wages for not more than 300 weeks.
- For permanent total disability, 50 per cent. of average weekly wages for not more than 500 weeks.
- For permanent partial disability, 50 per cent. of wage loss for not more than 300 weeks; for specified injuries, 50 per cent. of weekly wages for fixed periods in lieu of other compensation.

Payments may not exceed $10 per week nor be less than $6 unless wages were less than $6, when full wages will be paid. Periodical payments may be commuted to lump sums, and aliens who are non-residents may have payments commuted to lump sums equal to one-half of the value of the present worth.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Awards may be reviewed at any time on application of any party in interest.

INSURANCE—Insurance, the maintenance of a benefit fund, or proof of ability to make compensation payments is required.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance companies or fund systems must be approved by the commission. Claims can not be assigned, and payments are exempt from levy, execution, etc. Deposits with the commission to secure payments may be required of employers or insurers.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes may be settled by the Industrial Commission, subject to appeals to the Supreme Court.

OREGON.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—February 25, 1913; in effect ninety days after adjournment of the Legislature (July 1, 1913); amended, chapter 271, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries by accidents arising out of and in the course of employment, except those brought about intentionally.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All hazardous occupations, including factories, mills and workshops employing machinery; mines, quarries, wharves and docks, dredges, engineering works; building trades; telegraph, telephone, electric light and power plants or lines, steamboats, tugs and ferries; all in absence of contrary election. Other employers may accept the law by affirmative election.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Any workman employed as above in absence of contrary election. Non-resident alien beneficiaries other than parent, spouse or child are not included unless otherwise provided by treaty. Public employment: Not included.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—The employer deducts from employee's earnings one cent for each day or part of day worked, and himself contributes according to rates fixed by the commission for the various industries. The State gives a subsidy.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

- (a) Burial expenses not to exceed $100.
- (b) To widow or invalid widow, a monthly payment of $30, and to each child under sixteen (daughters eighteen), $6 a month; the total monthly not to exceed $50.
- (c) To orphans under sixteen years of age (daughters eighteen), a monthly payment of $15 each; the total not to exceed $50.
- (d) To other dependents, there being none of the foregoing, a monthly payment to each of 50 per cent. of the average support received during the preceding year, but not to exceed $30 a month in all.
- (e) To parents of an unmarried minor, a monthly payment of $25, until such time as he would have been 21, after which time compensation shall be paid according to (d) above. Payments to widow or widower continue until death or remarriage. On remarriage of widow she receives a lump sum of $300. (Payments to a male child cease at sixteen and to a female at eighteen, unless the child is an invalid.)

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Transportation, medical, surgical and hospital expenses not exceeding $250 in value.
- (b) For permanent total disability, monthly payments as follows: (1) if unmarried at the time of the injury, $30; (2) if with wife or invalid husband, but no child under sixteen years, $35; if the husband is not an invalid, the sum is $30; (3) if married or a widow or widower with a child or children under sixteen years, $6 additional to the provision under (2) above, for each child until sixteen years of age, the total monthly payments not to exceed $50.
- (c) For temporary total disability, the above payments apply during disability, increased 50 per cent. for first six months, but in no case to exceed 60 per cent. of monthly wages.
- (d) For partial temporary disability, a proportionate amount, corresponding to loss of earning power for not exceeding two years.
- (e) For certain specified injuries (mutilations, etc.) monthly payment of $25 per month payable for fixed periods.

A lump sum at the option of the injured person is provided in some cases. Partial lump sum payments to any beneficiary may be substituted at the discretion of the commission.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—The rate of compensation may be readjusted either upon the application of the beneficiary or by the State Industrial Accident Commission upon its own initiative.

INSURANCE—Insurance is effected through the State Industrial Accident Fund, under supervision of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance under State control.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Any decision of the commission is subject to review by the Circuit Court, and appeals lie from the Circuit Court as in other civil cases.

PENNSYLVANIA.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—June 2, 1915; in effect January 1, 1916.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury by accident in the course of employment, causing disability for more than fourteen days or death within 300 weeks, not intentionally self-inflicted or due to the intentional act of a third person for reasons not connected with the employment.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All, unless employer makes election to the contrary. (Agricultural and domestic employees are excluded by a separate act.)

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All persons rendering service to another for a valuable consideration, casual employees and those working on material given out to be made up, repaired, etc., on premises not under the control of the employer excepted. Public employment: All employees.

- (a) $100 funeral expenses.
- (b) 40 per cent. of weekly wages to widow or dependent widower, 5 per cent. additional for each child, total not to exceed 60 per cent.; if no parent, 25 per cent. if one or two children, 10 per cent. additional for each child in excess of two, total not to exceed 60 per cent.; if no consort or child under sixteen, but dependent parent, brothers, or sisters, 15 to 25 per cent. of wages.
- (c) Payments cease on death, remarriage of widow or widower, cessation of dependence of widower, or child, brother, or sister attaining the age of sixteen, not to continue beyond 300 weeks, unless for children under sixteen, when 15 per cent. will be paid for one and 10 per cent. additional for each additional child, total not to exceed 50 per cent. Basic wages are not less than $10 nor more than $20 weekly.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) Reasonable medical, surgical, and hospital expenses for first fourteen days after disability begins, cost not to exceed $25, unless major surgical operation is necessary, when $75 is the maximum.
- (b) For total disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wages for 500 weeks, $5 minimum, $10 maximum, total not to exceed $4,000; if wages less than $5, full wages will be paid.
- (c) For partial disability, 50 per cent. of weekly wage loss, $10 maximum, for not over 300 weeks; fixed periods for specified injuries, $5 minimum, $10 maximum, full wages if less than $5.

Payments may be commuted to lump sum.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Agreements and awards may be reviewed by the board at any time for proper cause.

INSURANCE—Employers must insure in the State fund, a stock or mutual company, or give proof of financial ability.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Agreements or claims may be filed with a prothonotary, who enters them as a judgment, and if approved by the board they become a lien on the property of the employer. A separate act provides for direct payments from insurance companies to the beneficiaries, in case of the employer's failure to make payment of benefits.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by a workmen's compensation board, with appeal to courts.

RHODE ISLAND.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 29, 1912; in effect October 1, 1912; amended, chapters 937, 1913; 1268, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injuries by accidents arising out of and in the course of employment causing incapacity for earning full wages for a period of more than two weeks, or death, except where the injury resulted from the wilful intention of the injured person to injure himself or another, or from intoxication.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All industries except domestic service and agriculture if the employee elects. Defences in suits for damages are not abrogated unless more than five persons are employed.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in establishments covered by this act in absence of contrary election, casual employees and those earning above $1,800 a year excepted. Public employment: Not mentioned.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a weekly payment equal to one-half the average weekly earnings of the deceased employee, but not less than $4 nor more than $10 per week, for a period of 300 weeks.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, a sum proportionate to the amount which the annual contributions bore to the annual earnings of the deceased, for not exceeding 300 weeks.

(c) If no dependents, the expense of the last sickness and burial of the deceased employee, not exceeding $200. Payments to children cease on their reaching the age of eighteen years unless they are physically or mentally incapacitated.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) The necessary medical and surgical care and hospital services for the first two weeks after the injury.

(b) For total incapacity, a weekly payment equal to one-half the wages, but not less than $4 nor more than $10 per week, during such incapacity, but not for a longer period than 500 weeks.

(c) For partial incapacity, a weekly payment equal to one-half the loss of earning power, but not exceeding $10 per week, during such incapacity, and not for a longer period than 300 weeks.

(d) For certain specified injuries (mutilations, etc.), in addition to the above, one-half the wages, weekly payments to be not less than $4 nor more than $10 per week, for fixed periods.

Lump sum payments may be substituted by order of the Superior Court after compensation has been paid for six months for either death or injury.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Amount payable may be reviewed and modified by the Superior Court at any time within two years, if the time for payments has not expired.

INSURANCE—The employer must insure, give proof of financial ability to make direct payments, or furnish security or bond. If employees contribute to any approved scheme or insurance plan, added benefits must be provided corresponding to such contributions.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Claims for compensation under this act, and under any substitute scheme, shall be entitled to a preference over the unsecured debts of the employer hereafter contracted to the same amount as the wages of labor are now preferred. Insurers are directly liable to claimants; beneficiaries have a first lien on any sum due from insurer to the employer on any policy.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the Superior Court on a petition in the nature of a petition in equity, filed by any party in interest. Appeals may be carried to the Supreme Court by any aggrieved person.

TEXAS.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—April 16, 1913; in effect September 1, 1913.

WISCONSIN.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—May 3, 1911; in effect same date; amended, chapters 599, 707, 1913; 121, 241, 316, 369, 378, 462, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury by accident causing disability of at least one week, or death, while performing service growing out of and incidental to the employment, not intentionally self-inflicted.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—All, if the employer elects. Compulsory as to State and its municipalities.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees except casual, including aliens, in the absence of contrary election. Public employment: All employees of the State or its political subdivisions.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) To persons wholly dependent, a sum equal to four years' earnings, but which when added to any prior compensation for permanent total disability shall not exceed six years' earnings.

(b) If only partial dependents survive, a sum not to exceed four times the amount provided for their support during the preceding year.

(c) If no dependents, the reasonable expense of burial, not exceeding $100. All payments are to be made in weekly installments equal to 65 per cent. of the average weekly earnings. Dependence of children ceases at eighteen, unless physically or mentally incapacitated.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

(a) Medical, surgical, and hospital treatment for not exceeding ninety days, or the reasonable expenses therefor.

(b) For total disability, 65 per cent. of average weekly earnings during such disability, but if the injured person requires the assistance of a nurse, then 100 per cent. of earnings for first ninety days of disability.

(c) For partial disability, 65 per cent. of loss of earning power.

(d) For certain specific injuries (mutilations, etc.), a sum equal to 65 per cent. of average weekly earnings for fixed periods.

(e) For serious permanent disfigurement, a lump sum may be allowed, not exceeding $750. In case of temporary or partial disability the aggregate compensation for a single injury shall not exceed four years' earnings; and for permanent disability six years' earnings, nor may the disability period exceed fifteen years from the date of the accident. Lump sum payments may be substituted at any time after six months from the date of injury.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—The commission may modify or change its order or award within ten days if a mistake is discovered; or a review by the court may be had on appeal within twenty days. The commission may call for a medical examination at any time it deems necessary.

INSURANCE—Insurance in approved companies is permitted, but the liability of the employer may not be reduced.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—The employer must give proof of financial ability or insure risks. Claims for compensation are preferred above other unsecured debts thereafter contracted.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the Industrial Commission, subject to a limited review by the courts.

WYOMING.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—February 27, 1915; in effect April 1, 1915.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Personal injury causing disability for more than ten days, or death, as a result of employment and not due to the culpable negligence of the injured employee or to the wilful act of a third person due to reasons personal to such employee or because of his employment.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Extra hazardous (enumerated list), in which five or more workmen are employed, interstate railroads excepted; public employments and use of explosives and work ten or more feet above ground included, without reference to number of employees.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: All employees in industries covered. Public employment: All employees in classes of employments designated.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH:

(a) $50 for funeral expenses, unless other arrangements exist under agreement.

(b) Lump-sum payments of $1,000 to widow

or invalid widower, and additional sum, equal to $60 per year, until the age of sixteen is reached for each child under the age of sixteen, the total for children not to exceed $1,000. If there are dependent parents and no spouse or child under sixteen, a sum equal to 50 per cent. of one year's contribution, not exceeding $500.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY:

- (a) For total permanent disability, lump sum of $1,000 if single, $1,200 if wife or invalid husband, and a sum equal to $60 per year for each child under sixteen until age of sixteen is reached, the total for children not to exceed $1,300. If disability is temporary, $15 per month if single, $20 if married, and $5 monthly for each child under sixteen, the total monthly payment not to exceed $35 and the aggregate not to exceed the amount payable if the disability were permanent.
- (b) For permanent partial disability, fixed lump sums for specified injuries, others in proportion.

No provision is made for medical or surgical aid; all payments are lump sums, except for total temporary disability.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—No provision.

INSURANCE—Insurance in State fund required.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Insurance under State control; payments not assignable or subject to execution, attachment, etc.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—Disputes are settled by the district courts of the counties, with appeal to the Supreme Court of the State.

UNITED STATES.

DATE OF ENACTMENT—May 30, 1908; in effect August 1, 1908; amended February 24, 1909; March 4, 1911; March 11, 1912; July 27, 1912, and August 24, 1912.

INJURIES COMPENSATED—Injuries in the course of employment resulting in incapacity for work lasting more than fifteen days, or death, unless injury is due to the negligence or misconduct of the employee injured.

INDUSTRIES COVERED—Manufacturing establishments of the United States, arsenals, Navy Yards, construction of river and harbor or fortification work or work in the reclamation of arid lands; work under the Bureau of Mines, under the Forestry Service and under the Lighthouse Service.

PERSONS COMPENSATED—Private employment: Not included. Public employment: Artisans or laborers employed by the United States (a) in any of its manufacturing establishments, arsenals, Navy Yards or in the construction of river and harbor or fortification work or (b) in hazardous employment on construction work in the reclamation of arid lands or the management and control of the same; (c) any person in hazardous employment under the Bureau of Mines, the Forestry Service or the Lighthouse Service.

BURDEN OF PAYMENT—Cost is on the branch of the service in which the injured person was employed.

COMPENSATION FOR DEATH—To the widow, children, or dependent parents, a sum equal to the wages the deceased person would have received for one year had he continued to be employed. Payments to children cease on their reaching the age of sixteen.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY—A sum equal to the same pay the injured employee would have received if he continued to be employed during the period of disability, not to exceed one year.

REVISION OF BENEFITS—Payments are made in such portions and under such regulations as the Secretary of Labor may prescribe.

INSURANCE—No provision.

SECURITY OF PAYMENTS—Compensation is paid from annual appropriation for the support of the service.

SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES—All questions as to right of compensation are decided by the Secretary of Labor.

THE NATIONAL FIRST AID ASSOCIATION.

The association was organized by the late Miss Clara Barton, chartered under the laws of the District of Columbia, April 13, 1905, and has distributed its vital knowledge throughout many sections of almost every State in the Union. It is a practical philanthropy and is paying tribute to its founder by holding the presidency in her name. Acting President—Mrs. J. Sewall Reed, Dorchester, Mass. Vice-President and Treasurer—Roscoe G. Wells. Secretary—Mrs. Mary Kensel Wells. Executive office, Arlington, Mass.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF SOCIAL SERVICE.

ORGANIZED 1898. President—Dr. Josiah Strong. Vice-President—Mornay Williams. General Secretary—William B. Patterson. Lecturer—Dr. Jas. H. Ecob. Acting Treasurer—M. J. Whitty. Object: The gathering and disseminating of information on all branches of social thought and service. Supplies information and advice as to methods by correspondence, by its publications, by lectures, and by its special reference library, open to the public. Publishes The Gospel of the Kingdom, a monthly magazine (75 cents per year) devoted to studies in social reform from the Christian standpoint, used by classes in churches, Sunday schools, church brotherhoods, colleges, Y. M. C. A.'s and Y. W. C. A.'s in all parts of the United States and Canada. The 1916 series will be devoted to welfare and industrial subjects. The headquarters of the institute is at Bible House, Astor Place, New York City.

SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY.

ARNOLD PETERSEN, National Secretary, 45 Rose Street, New York City. Representative on International Socialist Bureau. Arthur Elmer Reimer. National Executive Committee—California, Sidney Armer; Connecticut, J. P. Johnson; Illinois, Jacob Bobinsky; Indiana, Ernst Viewegh; Massachusetts, Arthur E. Reimer; Michigan, Max Eisenberg; Minnesota, Samuel Johnson; Missouri, H. J. Poelling; New Jersey, J. C. Butterworth; New York, Patrick E. De Lee; Ohio, John D. Goerke; Pennsylvania, G. G. Anton; Virginia, Godfrey Kinder; Washington, John C. Shafer; Wisconsin, Albert Schnabel.

The party is organized in local organizations known as "sections," such sections existing in thirty States. Seven persons, five of whom must be actual wage-workers, may form a section, providing they acknowledge the platform, Constitution and resolutions of the Socialist Labor party and do not belong to any other political party. But if more than seven propose to organize a section then at least three-fourths must be actual wage-workers. In places where no section exists, or where none can be formed, any person complying with the aforesaid provisions may become a member-at-large upon application to the National Executive Committee. Sections are not permitted to charge initiation fees. All questions of importance arising within the party are decided by general vote. At each meeting of the section a Chairman is elected, and the same rule holds good with all standing committees.

COTTON MARKETING BY STATES IN 1914-1915.

The figures of the Financial Chronicle are those of the commercial crop, namely the crop, which has come forward to be counted, that is, has reached the Southern outports, or Southern mills, or been shipped overland North. The crop in this way amounted to 15,067,247 bales. On the other hand, the census in its crop statement undertakes to show the actual production, and this it gives as 16,678,110 bales.

AGRICULTURAL RANK OF STATES.

(Report of Bureau of Census, February 13, 1914.)

The general report on the census on agriculture of the Thirteenth Census discloses some interesting facts regarding the crops of the country and the relative rank of the States in regard to the value of all farm crops according to farm values.

Eleven of the leading crops in 1909 showed a total aggregate value of $4,813,281,000, or approximately 90 per cent. of the total value of all the crops of the United States, which amounted to $5,487,161,000. Of these eleven leading crops corn was the most valuable, followed by hay and forage, cotton, wheat, oats, vegetables (of all kinds), forest products on farms (timber, lumber, etc.), potatoes, tobacco, barley and apples, in the order named. The value of the corn crop alone was $1,438,554,000; that of cotton, $703,619,000; that of wheat, $657,657,000; that of vegetables, $216,257,000; that of tobacco, $104,304,000.

The relative rank of the first nine States in regard to value of crops showed that Illinois led with a total valuation for all farm crops of $372,000,000; Iowa was second with $315,000,000; Texas third with $298,000,000, followed by Ohio with $230,000,000; Georgia, $227,000,000; Missouri, $221,000,000; Kansas, $215,000,000; New York, $209,000,000, and Indiana, $204,000,000.

The State of Illinois ranked first in its production of corn, followed by Iowa and Missouri in the order named. New York ranked first in the production of hay and forage, followed by Iowa and Wisconsin. Texas ranked first in the production of cotton, followed by Georgia and Mississippi. North Dakota was first in the production of wheat, followed by Kansas and Minnesota. Illinois was first in the production of oats, followed by Iowa and Minnesota. New York led in the production of vegetables and Ohio was second. North Carolina ranked first in the production of forest products on farms (timber, lumber, etc.), followed by New York and Virginia. New York was first in the production of potatoes, with Pennsylvania second and Maine third. Kentucky ranked first in the production of tobacco, North Carolina second and Virginia third. Minnesota ranked first in the production of barley, followed by California and Wisconsin. New York also ranked first in the production of apples, with Michigan second and Pennsylvania third.

A summary of the relative rank of the States in these eleven leading farm crops shows that New York ranked first in four; Illinois first in two, with Texas, North Dakota, North Carolina, Kentucky and Minnesota ranking first in one each. Iowa ranked second in three of these above-mentioned crops, with Georgia, Kansas, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, California and Michigan ranking second in one each. Minnesota, Wisconsin and Virginia each ranked third in two of these crops, with Missouri, Mississippi, Pennsylvania and Maine third in one each.

RANK OF COUNTIES BY VALUE OF CROPS.

Los Angeles County, Cal., took the first rank as regards value of crops of all the 2,950 counties of the United States, according to the final report on the census of agriculture, 1910. Lancaster County, Pa., ranked second as regards value of the production of crops; McLean County, Ill., was third; Whitman County, Wash., fourth; Livingston County, Ill., fifth; Iroquois County, Ill., sixth; La Salle County, Ill., seventh, and Aroostook County, Me., eighth.

The valuation (at the farm) of the crops raised in Los Angeles County, Cal., according to the census, was $14,720,900; Lancaster County, Pa., $13,059,600; McLean County, Ill., $12,811,500; Whitman County, Wash., $12,540,700; Livingston County, Ill., $11,377,300; Iroquois County, Ill., $10,607,800; La Salle County, Ill., $10,222,200, and Aroostook County, Me., $10,151,000. The total valuation of the crops raised in these eight counties was $95,491,000, or about 2 per cent. of the total valuation of all crops raised in the United States, which was $5,487,161,000.

The principal crops raised in Los Angeles County in the order of their value were fruits, etc., hay and forage, live stock, dairy products, etc., and vegetables; of Lancaster County Pa., corn, wheat and oats, and live stock and dairy products; of McLean County Ill.: Whitman County, Wash.; Livingston County, Ill., and La Salle County, Ill., corn, wheat, oats and cereals, and of Aroostook County, Me., potatoes and vegetables. The principal crops of the United States, in the order of their value, were the cereals, corn, wheat, oats, etc., hay and forage, and cotton.

Some interesting data are presented by the figures for the value per acre and per capita of the crops raised in these eight banner counties of the United States. The figures for Los Angeles County show that the total value of the crops raised there averaged $35 per acre and $29 per capita (the city of Los Angeles with a population of 320,000, being within Los Angeles County, is the chief reason for the low rate per capita); for Lancaster County, Pa., $28 per acre and $78 per capita; for McLean County, Ill., $18 per acre and $188 per capita; Whitman County, Wash., $14 per acre and $377 per capita; Livingston County, Ill., $18 per acre and $281 per capita; Iroquois County, Ill., $16 per acre and $298 per capita; La Salle County, Ill., $17 per acre and $113 per capita, and Aroostook County, Me., $23 per acre and $136 per capita. The corresponding crop value figures (at the farm) for the United States for the same year were $16 per acre and $60 per capita.

Wool of Classes I. and II. are used for the manufacture of cloths, dress goods, and similar fabrics. Domestic wools are of these two classes. Class III. wools are used principally in the carpet manufacture, and are practically not grown in the United States. The domestic wool shown in the above table is the quantity in its greasy state as shorn from the sheep. Fleece wool is wool shorn from living sheep. Pulled wool is wool removed from the skin of slaughtered animals.

Reduced to the scoured condition fit for use in manufacture, the annual production and total value based on the price in Boston in October of each year for the years 1903-1914, inclusive, are as follows:

WORLD'S CROPS

In September, 1915, the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, Italy, announced its estimates of world-crop production as follows.

Wheat, 4,062,567,000 bushels, total production in twenty-five countries.

Rye, 1,896,594,000 bushels, total production in twenty countries.

Barley, 1,582,434,000 bushels, total production in twenty-four countries.

Oats, 4,858,663,000 bushels, total production in twenty-three countries.

Corn, 3,803,577,000 bushels, total production in sixteen countries, comprising the following ten countries given in relative order of importance in production: United States, 2,984,950,000 bushels; Hungary, 196,674,000 bushels; Italy, 118,104,000 bushels; Mexico, 115,407,000 bushels; Roumania, 110,230,000 bushels; Russia in Enrope (53 governments), 74,803,000 bushels; Egypt, 79,921,000 bushels; Bulgaria, 32,754,000 bushels; Spain, 27,325,000 bushels, and France, 21,330,000 bushels.

Rice (rough), 2,338,446,000 pounds, total production of the United States and Italy. The crop of Italy is estimated at 1,158,438,000 pounds.

The September issue of the institute's "Bulletin of Agricultural and Commercial Statistics" estimates the total best-sugar production in thirteen countries for 1913-1914 as 9,589,000 short tons, or 99 per cent. of the preceding year (1912-1913). This production is expressed in terms of "raw" sugar.

Data for 1914-1915 not available when ALMANAC was printed.

BIRD CENSUS.

During the Summer of 1914 the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture took initial steps toward a census of the birds of the United States for the purpose of ascertaining approximately the number and relative abundance of the different species. In view of the recognized value of birds to agriculture, such information cannot fail to be of great value.

One of the most abundant birds in the United States, possibly the most abundant bird, is the robin. It is also one of the most sociable, and in the Northeastern part, where it is most abundant, it commonly nests close to farm buildings, but almost never in extensive woods.

No other bird is anywhere near as abundant as either the robin or the English sparrow, but several others are common enough to make their total numbers run well into the millions. For every 100 robins reported in the 1914 census there were 49 catbirds, 37 brown thrashers, 28 house wrens, 27 kingbirds, and 26 bluebirds. This last number is particularly gratifying because only a few years ago nearly the whole bluebird population of the Eastern States was destroyed by an unusually severe winter. Since then the birds have been gradually recovering from the catastrophe, and this season's census shows that there are now several million bluebirds in Northeastern United States.

This preliminary census shows that the most abundant bird on farms of the Northeastern States is the robin; that the next is the English sparrow, and that following these are the catbird, the brown thrasher, the house wren, the kingbird, and the bluebird, in the order named.

THE MORRIS PLAN.

THE Morris Plan of Industrial loans and investments—named for its originator, Arthur J. Morris—has been in operation in Norfolk, Va., since March, 1910, and to-day is operated in about thirty other cities throughout the country. Loans are usually made in the amount of $50 or multiples thereof. They are based on character and earning capacity, and are secured only by the borrower's note indorsed by two co-makers. If a loan is granted a small fee is charged toward the cost of investigation, and the note is discounted at the legal rate of interest. At the same time the borrower subscribes for one or more of the lending company's certificates of investment for an amount equal to his loan, and in purchase thereof pays $1.00 a week for fifty weeks on each $50 borrowed. At the end of the year he can cash in his certificate and with the money thus obtained redeem his note. To encourage the habit of saving, Morris Plan companies sell certificates of investment, either for cash or on the instalment plan, to others than borrowers. These certificates begin to bear interest at 4 per cent. when twenty-five payments have been made, and at 5 per cent. when they are full paid. Holders of interest-bearing certificates can borrow on them, without indorsements or other securities, an amount equal to the total payments they have made in purchase of the certificates.

At the close of the year 1915 over $12,500,000 had been lent to more than 100,000 borrowers on the Morris Plan in sums averaging less than $125. The subscribed capital of Morris Plan companies exceeds $3,000,000. The largest auxiliary institution is the Morris Plan Company of New York (Equitable Building, 120 Broadway), of which Henry R. Towne is President.

These companies are organized throughout the United States by the Industrial Finance Corporation (52 William Street, New York), which has a subscribed capital of $1,500,000. Officers—Clark Williams, President; Arthur J. Morris, Vice-President; Charles H. Sabin, Treasurer; Joseph B. Gilder, Secretary.

COAL PRODUCTION.

AREA of coal fields in the United States, 450,839 square miles, including 89,482 square miles supposed, but not definitely known, to contain usable coal, and 28,470 square miles in which the coal lies under cover 3,000 or more feet in thickness. Estimated available supply at close of 1913 (short tons), 3,538,506,328,300. Later official report not published.

In regard to the coal supplies of the countries outside of the United States, the Geological Survey does not know of any official estimates, with the exception of those of Great Britain, which have been placed by the Royal Commission of Coal Supplies at approximately 180,000,000,000 short tons. A statement by the Secretary of the Bituminous Coal Trade Association places the German supply at 164,344,000,000 short tons; Canada's known supplies at 100,000,000,000 short tons; Japan at 50,000,000,000 short tons. Estimates in short tons for the other countries of Europe are as follows: France, 25,000,000,000; Austria-Hungary, 30,000,000,000; Belgium, 20,000,000,000; Spain, 4,000,000,000.

The same authority places the contents of the Chinese fields at 1,500,000,000,000 short tons. His estimates of the areas in square miles of the countries outside of the United States are as follows: China, 232,500; Canada, 65,000; India, 35,000; New South Wales, 24,000; Russia, 20,000; Great Britain, 12,000; Spain, 5,500; Japan, 5,500; France, 2,500; Austria-Hungary, 1,800; Germany, 1,700; Belgium, 500; Siberia, Central Asia, and Africa, 180,000.

A monograph of the Coal Resources of the World was compiled by the Executive Committee of the Twelfth International Congress of Geology, which met at Toronto, Canada, August 7 to 14, 1913. The total resources are estimated at 7,397,533 million tons, of which 4,000,000 million tons are bituminous, 3,000,000 million tons brown coal, and the remainder anthracite.

The world's annual production of coal in short tons in countries approximating 1,000,000 tons or more are as follows, with the year in parentheses: United States (1914) 513,525,477, Great Britain (1914) 297,698,617, Germany (1914) 270,594,952, Austria-Hungary (1913) 59,647,957, France (1913) 45,108,544, Russia (1913) 35,530,674, Belgium (1913) 25,196,869, Japan (1914) 21,700,572, China (1913) 15,432,200, India (1913) 18,163,856, Canada (1914) 13,597,982, New South Wales (1914) 11,644,476, Spain (1913) 4,731,647, Transvaal (1913) 5,225,036, Natal (1913) 2,898,726, New Zealand (1913) 2,115,834, Holland (1913) 2,064,608, Asiatic Russia (1910) 1,371,261, Chile (1913) 1,362,334, Queensland (1914) 1,180,805, Mexico (1912) 982,396. The total world's production in 1911 was approximately 1,310,000,000 short tons, in 1912 approximately 1,374,550,000 tons, in 1913 approximately 1,477,755,000 tons, and it is estimated that in 1914 the total decreased to about 1,345,322,000 short tons. The United States in 1914 contributed 38 per cent., Great Britain 22 per cent., and Germany 20 per cent. In 1914 the United States decreased its production approximately by 56,000,000 tons, or 10 per cent.; Great Britain by 24,000,000 tons, or 7 per cent., and Germany by 11,000,000 tons, or 4 per cent. Great Britain exceeded Germany's production in 1914 by 27,000,000 tons.

PRODUCTION OF COPPER, TIN, AND ZINC.

The production of copper in the world in 1913, stated in pounds, was as follows: United States, 1,224,484,098 (for 1914 figures see below); Germany, 55,776,380; England, 661,380; Italy, 3,527,360; Norway, 19,400,480; Austria, 8,377,480; Russia, 74,735,940; Sweden, 2,204,600; Spain and Portugal, 120,591,620; Turkey, 1,102,300; Hungary, 661,380; Servia, 14,109,440; Canada, 76,975,832; Mexico, 116,402,880; Argentina, 220,460; Bolivia, 8,157,020; Chile, 88,184,000; Peru, 56,658,220; Venezuela, 2,865,980; Cuba, 7,495,640; Cape Colony, 7,275,180; Namaqualand, 5,511,500; other Africa, 37,698,660; Japan, 161,376,720; Australia, 104,277,580. Grand total, 2,198,732,130. (Later foreign figures not available.)

The copper production of the United States in 1914 was distributed as follows (figures are in pounds): Alaska, 24,985,347; Arizona, 382,449,922; California, 29,784,173; Colorado, 7,316,066; Idaho, 5,875,205; Maryland, 12,248; Michigan, 158,009,748; Missouri, 53,519; Montana, 256,805,845; Nevada, 60,122,904; New Mexico, 64,204,703; North Carolina, 19,712; Oregon, 5,599; Pennsylvania, 422,741; Tennessee, 18,661,112; Texas, 34,272; Utah, 160,589,660; Virginia, 17,753; Washington, 683,602; Wisconsin, 10,098; Wyoming, 17,082; undistributed, 55,381. Total, 1,150,137,192.

The world's tin deliveries for 1914, which approximate both consumption and production, as compiled by the New York Metal Exchange, were as follows (figures are short tons): London, 23,335; Continent of Europe, 22,747; Cornwall (production), 6,720; Bolivia (shipments), 21,000; South Africa (shipments), 5,600; China (shipments), 2,128; United States (receipts), 48,505 Total, 130,035. Deducting 9,632 tons of Straits, etc., tin from Continent, English, etc., from United Kingdom arrived in the United States, makes the total marketed product approximately 120,403 short tons.

The production of zinc (spelter) in the world in 1913, in short tons, was as follows: Australia, 4,105; Austria and Italy, 23,928; Belgium, 217,928; France and Spain, 78,289; Germany, 312,075; Great Britain, 65,197; Holland, 26,811; Norway, 10,257; Poland, 8,589; United States, 346,676. Total, 1,093,635. (Later foreign reports not available because of war.) United States for 1914, 353,049 short tons.

Figures for Copper, Tin, and Zinc were furnished by the United States Geological Survey.

The figures represent a decrease of 23,839,831 pounds of black powder, 23,932,573 pounds of high explosives, and 1,987,952 pounds of permissible explosives, as compared with 1913.

* Include ammonium nitrate explosives, hydrated explosives, organic nitrate explosives, and certain nitroglycerine explosives containing an excess of free water or carbon. All permissible explosives have passed certain tests of the Bureau of Mines, and are not to be regarded as permissible unless used in the manner specified by the bureau.

EMPLOYEES IN MUNITION PLANTS.

Statistics of 1906 placed the number of men in the Krupp works at 30,000. A recent work on the Krupps places the number of employees at Essen just before the war at 80,000, and states that since the declaration of hostilities the number has been increased to 100,000. In connection with the strike at the Remington Arms Company works at Bridgeport in August, 1915, the following figures were published, giving the number of men employed in the various arms and munition factories of New England at that time:

| Remington Arms and Ammunition Company..... | 16,000 | Iver Johnson Arms Company.....                  | 2,500  |
| Union Metallic Cartridge Company.....      | 14,000 | General Electric Company (Pittsfield).....      | *8,000 |
| Winchester Repeating Arms Company.....     | 15,000 | Marlin Fire Arms Company.....                   | 2,000  |
| Colt Patent Fire Arms Company.....         | 8,000  | American and British Manufacturing Company..... | 5,500  |
| Smith & Wesson Company.....                | 4,000  | J. Stevens Arms and Tool Company.....           | 4,000  |
| Hopkins and Allen.....                     | 3,000  | U. S. Cartridge Company.....                    | 2,000  |

* In addition to this number the General Electric Company has about 15,000 employees in Schenectady, N. Y., and about 22,000 elsewhere in the United States, making a total for this company of about 45,000.

FOURTH OF JULY ACCIDENTS.

The Journal of the American Medical Association has kept a record of the accidents in the United States, due annually to the celebration of Independence Day.

The decrease from 466 deaths in 1903 to 30 in 1915 was due to more intelligent methods of celebration, the most marked decrease taking place in States where the agitation for restrictive measures was strongest.

THE INTERCOLLEGIATE PROHIBITION ASSOCIATION.

This association was incorporated in 1901 and is organized in 260 colleges and universities, and has an enrolled membership of 8,800. It encourages study and discussion of the liquor problem, especially in its economic and social phases, and enlists students for service and leadership in the settlement of this and similar civic social problems. To this end it conducts among the colleges of the United States oratorical contests, journalistic contests, study groups, debates, etc., and sends out hundreds of students annually into local and State anti-liquor campaigns. Its work is educational in character, training leaders and workers for the various anti-liquor organizations of the country.

President—Adolph Lewishohn. Honorary President—Thomas Mott Osborne. Chairman, Executive Committee—E. Stagg Whitin. Secretary—R. Montgomery Schell. Treasurer—Bernard H. Ridder. Headquarters, Broadway and 116th Street, New York.

"The object of this organization is to study the whole problem of labor in prisons and correctional institutions, with a view to securing legislation among the States of the Union, to the end that all prisoners may be so employed as to promote their welfare and at the same time to reimburse the institutions for expense of maintenance, while preventing unfair competition between prison-made goods and the products of free labor, and securing to their dependent families a fair proportion of the rightful earnings of prisoners."

Crimes and

COMPILED FROM THE CODES OR REVISED STATUTES OF THE

WITHIN the limits of the subjoined table showing the penalties prescribed by the respective States for the offences enumerated it is impossible to attain complete accuracy in comparing the several penalties, for the reason that the provisions of the several States defining these very familiar crimes are not identical. Especially is this true in regard to crimes classified in degrees, some States making but little attempt in that direction, leaving it to the discretion of the trial court to adapt the severity of the punishment to the gravity of the offence, while other States provide a minute classification into degrees, depending on the several possible circumstances attending the commission of the crime. Where no penalty is shown under a given degree of crime the State recognizes but one designation, namely, that of the crime committed.

Murder in the First Degree—in the table below—may be generally defined to be the unlawful intentional and premeditated killing of a human being, or such a killing resulting from the commission or attempt to commit one of the graver crimes, such as arson, burglary, rape, or robbery.

Murder in the Second Degree is such a killing without premeditation, or resulting from the attempt to commit some lesser crime.

Manslaughter may be defined as a killing either unintentionally resulting from the careless or unlawful doing of some otherwise lawful act or from the commission of some unlawful act of comparatively trivial character, or intentionally, in the heat of passion and without premeditation.

Arson—where classified in degrees—though the number and exact definition of degrees varies greatly—is in general classified with reference to two conditions. First, the character of the building burned, whether a dwelling house or structure likely to or containing a human being; and, second, whether the crime is perpetrated by day or night. Thus the most serious offence is the burning of an inhabited dwelling by night, and the least serious, the burning of an uninhabited structure by day. Often intermediate degrees are recognized, such as burning a dwelling by day or an uninhabited building by night.

Their Penalties.

SEVERAL STATES AS AMENDED BY SUBSEQUENT LEGISLATION.

Burglary—The classification of burglary or house breaking depends on substantially the same elements as that of arson, namely the building entered, whether a dwelling or other building, and whether the offence was committed by day or night.

Robbery may be generally defined as the theft of property from the person or immediate presence of the victim, accomplished by force or fear. Where degrees of robbery are recognized, the distinction is generally determined by whether the thief be armed or unarmed, though some States also distinguish the second from the first degree, where the theft is accomplished by means of threats of future rather than immediate injury.

Grand Larceny is simple theft, of property above a fixed value, generally $25 to $50—most States also classify as grand larceny, theft of property from the person of the victim, irrespective of value, though, of course, accomplished without the force or fear which constitute the crime of robbery.

Assault with intent to kill, bigamy, forgery, perjury and rape are not subdivided into degrees in the subjoined table.

Where crimes are divided into several degrees it is generally within the province of the jury, in convicting, to fix the degree of the crime, and in almost every case in which a crime is punishable by death or imprisonment it is the province of the jury to determine the punishment, except upon a plea of guilty, when the duty devolves upon the court.

Where the classification of a crime in a particular State does not approximately agree with the definitions given above, note is made of the fact.

Noted in the table below, after the figures given, "years" is understood, unless otherwise stated. Where two figures are given, separated by a dash, as 1—7, the provision should be understood as "not less than one year nor more than seven;" where a sum of money is given in the table the provision should be understood as meaning a fine of not exceeding the sum mentioned.

NEW YORK STATE PROBATION COMMISSION.

THE State Probation Commission, created by Chapter 430, Laws of 1907, consists of seven members. Four are appointed by the Governor for terms of four years each; one is appointed by the State Board of Charities from among its members; one is appointed by the State Commission of Prisons from among its members; and the State Commissioner of Education is a member ex-officio. Commissioners serve without compensation, but are entitled to necessary travelling expenses.

The general duties of the commission are to exercise general supervision over the work of probation officers and to keep informed as to their work to collect and publish statistical and other information as to the operations of the probation system; to inquire from time to time into the conduct and efficiency of probation officers, and when advisable to conduct a formal investigation of the work of any probation officer; to make recommendations and to secure the effective application of the probation system and the enforcement of the probation law in all parts of the State. The commission makes an annual report to the Legislature showing its proceedings and the results of the probation system as administered in the various localities in the State, and making suggestions and recommendations. The commission in the discharge of its duties has access to all offices and records of probation officers, and may direct formal investigation of the work of any probation officer.

President—Homer Folks, New York. Secretary—Charles L. Chute. The commission has its office at Albany.

LYNCHINGS AND LEGAL EXECUTIONS.

Lynchings—The total number of lynchings in the United States from 1885 to October 11, 1915, was 3,583. In 1915 to October 11 there were 78 lynchings, of which 77 were in the South and one in the North. Seventy-six were males and one female. Of the lynched, 42 were negroes, 21 whites, and 15 Mexicans. The offences for which they were lynched were: Murder 29, rape 10, theft 10, murderous assault 6, by night-riders 6, attempted rape 4, alleged murder 3, insults to women 2, accessory to murder 2, race prejudice 1, unnamed cause 1, wife beating 1, poisoning mules 3. The States in which these lynchings occurred and the number in each State were as follows: Alabama 7, Arkansas 3, Arizona 2, Florida 4, Georgia 14, Illinois 1, Kentucky 5, Louisiana 3, Mississippi 6, Missouri 2, North Carolina 4, Oklahoma 3, South Carolina 1, Tennessee 3, and Texas 20.

Legal Executions—In 1908 to November 15 there were 92; in 1909, 107; in 1910, 104; in 1911, 61; in 1912 to November 15, 128; in 1913 to November 12, 81; in 1914, 74; and in 1915 to October 11, 94, of which 52 were in the South and 42 in the North; 55 were whites, 36 negroes, and 3 Chinamen; all were males. The crimes for which they were executed were: Murder 87, rape 7. The States in which the executions in 1915 to October 11 took place, and the number in each, were as follows: Alabama 7, Arkansas 6, California 5, Colorado 1, Connecticut 2, Delaware 1, Florida 2, Georgia 6, Illinois 2, Kentucky 3, Massachusetts 1, Mississippi 4, Maryland 1, Missouri 1, New York 19, New Jersey 3, North Carolina 1, Pennsylvania 5, South Carolina 7, Tennessee 1, Texas 4, Virginia 5, and West Virginia 4.

According to the records kept by the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there have been during the first six months of 1915 34 lynchings. This is 13 more than the number, 21, for the same period last year. Of those lynched 24 were negroes and 10 were whites. This is 3 more negroes and 9 more whites than were put to death by mobs in the first six months of 1914, when the record was 20 negroes and 1 white. Eight, or one-fourth of the total lynchings, occurred in the State of Georgia. Only 7—6 negroes and 1 white—of those put to death, or 21 per cent. of the total, were charged with rape. Other offences and number lynched were: Murder 8, 3 whites and 5 negroes; killing officers of the law 4, 2 whites and 2 negroes; clubbing an officer, a family of four—father, son, and two daughters; stealing hogs 2, white; disregarding warnings of night-riders 2, white; insulting a woman 1; writing an insulting letter 1; wounding a man 1; stealing meat 1; burglary 1; stealing cotton 1; charged with stealing a cow 1. In this instance it was later reported that the negro had not been indicted, that the woman to whom the cow belonged did not know that the accusation had been made. The cow, which had simply strayed, finally returned home.

CRIMES IN THREE LARGE CITIES.

In a statement made by the Chairman of a Special Council Committee in Chicago on September 17, 1914, the following comparison for year 1913 was made: Murders—Chicago, 262; New York, 131; London, 36. Robberies and assaults to rob—Chicago, 1,022; New York, 926; London, 78. Burglaries—Chicago, 1,041; New York, 1,755; London, 1,129.

In 1913 in New York City there were 7,413 delinquent boys and 1,606 girls arraigned in the Manhattan court. Of the 6,445 in Brooklyn, 3,886 were boys and 759 girls. Queens had 610 boys and 148 girls; Richmond, 295 boys and 110 girls.

THE MILLENNIUM GUILD.

President—Mrs. Maud R. L. Freshel. Recording Secretary—Miss Lena Stevens. Treasurer—Miss Edna Donnell. Corresponding Secretary—C. P. Freshel. Headquarters—74 Commonwealth Avenue, Chestnut Hill, Mass.

The object of this association is to promote by precept and example a just consideration of the rights of all races, human and subhuman, and to teach that foremost among the unnecessary evils of the world, and one which underlies most of the other evils, is the mutilation and slaughter of our fellow-creatures for food and other selfish ends, and to set forth the physical and moral reasons why this is so.

BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS IN THE UNITED STATES.

(From a Report issued January 29, 1914, by the Census Bureau, based on the Census of 1910.)

Of the total number of 5,408 benevolent institutions reported in the United States in 1910, 2,492, or 46.1 per cent., were institutions for the sick; 1,435, or 26.5 per cent., were institutions for the care of children; 1,151, or 21.3 per cent., were homes for adults or adults and children; 205, or 3.8 per cent., were societies for the protection and care of children, and 125, or 2.3 per cent., were institutions for blind and deaf.

A considerable number of these institutions, especially the dispensaries and the societies for the care of children, made no report of inmates at the close of 1910, but in the 4,272 institutions that did make such report there were 336,127 inmates, of whom 116,228, or 34.6 per cent., were in homes for adults or adults and children; 108,070, or 32.1 per cent., were in institutions for the care of children; 96,390, or 28.7 per cent., in institutions for the sick, and 15,439, or 4.6 per cent., in institutions for blind and deaf.

A total of 2,960,538 persons of all classes were received in 4,307 of these benevolent institutions during the year 1910, 1,953,309, or 66 per cent., of whom were received in institutions for the sick, the remaining 34 per cent. being divided among the other three classes of institutions. In this connection the report calls attention to the fact that among persons received in these institutions there were a number who were only indirectly recipients of benevolence, being pay inmates who met the regular charges for treatment.

All classes of benevolent institutions in the United States reported in 1910 for 4,281 institutions a total income of $118,379,859, with expenses of $111,498,155, while $3,871 showed property valued at $643,878,141. This income of $118,379,859 was divided among the different classes of institutions as follows: Hospitals, 55.9 per cent.; homes for adults or adults and children, 20.4 per cent.; institutions for the care of children, 16.2 per cent.; institutions for the blind and deaf, 4.8 per cent.; societies for the protection and care of children, 1.8 per cent.; dispensaries, 0.9 per cent.

Benevolent institutions in New York State reported a total income of $28,216,055; in Pennsylvania, $14,668,108; in Illinois, $12,257,819; in Massachusetts, $8,633,048, and in California, $4,602,315. New York reported the valuation of its benevolent institutions at $187,760,531; Pennsylvania, $116,912,027; Massachusetts, $62,010,787; Ohio, $34,665,751; Illinois, $30,470,428, and California, $16,286,673.

The number of institutions for the blind and deaf in the United States in 1910 was 125, of which 72 in the States and 53 were private. The total number of inmates at the close of that year was 15,439, of whom 10,658 were in State institutions and 4,781 were in private. The valuation of the property of these institutions was reported as being $33,159,771 at the close of 1910. The institutions for the blind and deaf under private management are almost entirely in the Eastern States, chiefly Massachusetts, New York, and Illinois. One institution alone in Massachusetts, the Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind, reported 295 of the 664 inmates of blind and deaf institutions in that State.

EMBEZZLEMENTS.

The fidelity department of the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York keeps a record of embezzlements reported in the United States. The following are the figures for five calendar years:

The total amount of embezzlements reported by the same authority for each year from 1896 to 1914, inclusive, was as follows: 1896, $9,113,030; 1897, $11,154,530; 1898, $9,236,351; 1899, $5,873,086; 1900, $8,090,878; 1901, $7,734,250; 1902, $6,933,516; 1903, $10,312,793; 1904, $10,068,971; 1905, $12,623,536; 1906, $18,883,709; 1907, $9,367,964; 1908, $11,565,679; 1909, $10,652,060; 1910, $10,731,965; 1911, $11,482,051; 1912, $7,233,456; 1913, $3,713,857; 1914, $7,796,084; total, $182,567,766.

THE WORLD of July 31, 1910, said: Amount stolen from banks in past five years, $28,000,000. Banker convicts in Federal Penitentiary, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., exceeded every other class of prisoners except burglars and mail robbers. Records show that a majority of embezzlers stole money to gamble in Wall Street. Total thefts of $28,000,000 do not represent complete record of losses, because banks conceal them whenever possible. Temptation to try and repeat performances of the few men who have made quick fortunes in Wall Street is held responsible for increasing embezzlements among bank employes.

The total number of executions in the following three State prisons, from August 6, 1890, to September 30, 1915, was: Auburn Prison 54, Clinton Prison 26, and Sing Sing Prison 126. The electric chair was introduced as a means of execution July 28, 1891.

STATE REFORMATORIES.

The managers of the reformatories of the State are appointed by the Governor (by and with the advice and consent of the Senate). The institutions located at Elmira and Nanapanoch are reformatories for men, and those at Albion and Bedford are for women. The State Industrial School at Industry is for boys, as is also the New York House of Refuge, located on Randall's Island, and the New York State Training School for Boys, located at Yorktown Heights. Each of the institutions is supported by the State, but the House of Refuge on Randall's Island is under private management.

Other State Institutions—State Training School for Girls, at Hudson; State Industrial Farm Colony, at Green Haven; State Woman's Relief Corps Home, at Oxford; State Farm for Women, at Valatie.

* Registration area.

According to Frederick L. Hoffman, author of the above table, the average homicide rates per 100,000 of population for 30 representative American cities were as follows: For the years 1885-1894, 4.8; for 1895-1904, 5.0; and for 1905-1914, 8.1. The homicide rates for the 10 years ending with 1913 were as follows: For 9 Southern cities, 18.2; for 3 Pacific Coast cities, 10.0; for 7 Central cities, 8.6; and for 11 Eastern cities, 4.9. Estimate of the entire United States for 1915, 7,500. Homicides in 1914 in some of the large cities were as follows: Memphis, Tenn., 103; New Orleans, La., 79; Atlanta, Ga., 58; St. Louis, Mo., 117; San Francisco, Cal., 60; Chicago, Ill., 217; Manhattan and the Bronx, N. Y., 186; Brooklyn, N. Y., 94; Boston, Mass., 25; Philadelphia, Pa., 76; Milwaukee, Wis., 22.

The average number of murders in the United States annually during the twenty years from 1885 to 1904 was 6,597. In 1896 the murders reached high-water mark, 10,662, and in 1895 there were 10,500.

For 1912 the Census Bureau reported the number of homicides in the registration area of the United States—63.2 per cent. of the total population—as 3,954, and in 1913 as 4,567.

The excessive mortality from homicides among the colored race is indicated by the following data: For the last available five-year period, in New Orleans the colored rate from homicide was 64.6 per 100,000 of population as against 9.5 for whites; in Savannah, Ga., the comparative rates were 43.8 for the colored against 18.5 for the white; and in Charleston, S. C., 60.6 for the colored against 10.7 for the white population.

SUICIDES.

The suicide rate of the registration area of the United States in 1913 was 15.8 per 100,000 of population. The estimated number of suicides for the United States, but excluding insular possessions, in 1915 was 15,800. The most common means of self-destruction in 1913, according to the mortality returns of the census, were: Poisoning, 2,824; asphyxia, 1,262; hanging or strangulation, 1,380; drowning, 568; firearms, 2,930; cutting or piercing instruments, 673; jumping from high places, 183; crushing, 90; and other methods, 78. The suicide rate of large American cities for 1914, according to Frederick L. Hoffman, Statistician, Prudential Insurance Company of America, was 20.3 per 100,000 of population. The number of suicides in 100 American cities for the ten years ending 1914 was 42,944. The average suicide rates for 20 leading cities for the decade ending with 1913 were as follows: San Francisco, 43.0; San Diego, 41.1; Sacramento, 40.1; Hoboken, 34.1; St. Louis, 32.8; Los Angeles, 32.5; Oakland, 32.0; Springfield, Ill., 30.2; Denver, 29.8; Seattle, 28.6; Salt Lake City, 26.7; Indianapolis, 26.3; Omaha, 25.2; Pueblo, 24.8; Tacoma, 24.7; Atlantic City, 24.3; McKeesport, 23.9; Portland, Ore., 23.4; Washington, 22.7; and Newark, 22.6. In New York City the rate for Manhattan and the Bronx was 19.3. The number of suicides for the decade ending with 1914 was 4,318 for Greater New York, 4,735 for Chicago, 2,489 for Philadelphia, 1,920 for San Francisco, and 2,200 for St. Louis.

The average suicide rates for large foreign cities for recent years were 31.4 for Berlin, 24.8 for Paris, 16.0 for Buenos Ayres, 11.6 for London, and 10.6 for Sydney, New South Wales.

The average annual suicide rates for the more important countries have been as follows: Ireland, 3.4; Scotland, 5.7; Netherlands, 6.7; Norway, 6.4; England and Wales, 10.2; Australia, 11.6; Belgium, 12.4; Sweden, 12.4; United States registration area, 16.0; Austria, 17.3; Japan, 18.9; Hungary, 19.2; Denmark, 19.4; Germany, 21.3; Switzerland, 22.7; and France, 22.8.

PAUPERISM.

According to Census Bulletin 120, issued in 1914, the number of paupers in almshouses in the United States on January 1, 1910, was 84,198. Of these, 57,049 were males and 27,149 females; 44,149 were native born, 33,125 foreign born, 355 nativity unknown, 6,464 colored. The total number of admissions to almshouses in 1910 was 88,313. The deaths of pauper inmates of almshouses in 1910 were 17,486, the largest causes of these deaths being tuberculosis of the lungs, 3,135; senility, 1,818; heart disease, 1,439; pneumonia, 1,071; Bright's disease, 1,071. The number of paupers in almshouses who were discharged in 1910 to be self-supporting was 44,491; to relatives and friends, 14,160; to be boarded out, 459, and indentured, 10. More than half of the persons admitted during the year were over 50 years of age. The number 80 years old and over was 3,365.

NATIONAL PROBATION ASSOCIATION.

Organized in 1906 as the National Probation Officers' Association; title changed to present one in 1911. The purposes of the association are to promote the more extensive and wise use of the probation and parole systems of dealing with both juvenile and adult offenders; also to encourage the adoption of the most approved methods of conducting children's courts. The association holds an annual conference each Spring at the time and place of the meetings of the National Conference of Charities and Correction. It publishes an annual directory of probation officers in the United States, the proceedings of its annual conferences, and other literature. From time to time it appoints special committees to study and report on particular phases of probation, parole, and juvenile court work. Supported by membership fees ($1 a year) and voluntary contributions.

President—Frank E. Wade, Buffalo, N. Y. Vice-Presidents—Albert J. Sargent, Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Benj. G. West, Memphis, Tenn.; John J. Houston, Chicago, Ill. Secretary—Charles L. Chute, 53 North Pearl Street, Albany, N. Y.

AMERICAN HUMANE ASSOCIATION.

A federation of societies and individuals "for the prevention of cruelty, especially cruelty to children and animals." The officers are: President—Dr. William O. Stillman, Albany, N. Y. Secretary—N. J. Walker, Albany, N. Y. Treasurer—Edgar McDonald, Brooklyn, N. Y.

ADMINISTRATION OF DECEASED PERSONS' ESTATES.

INHERITANCE TAX LAWS.

THE following is a synopsis of several of the laws of the various States affecting the administration of the estate of a deceased person:

1. Who to Administer.—(a) If the deceased leaves a will, the duty of administration falls upon the executor. If no executor is named, or in the event of the death or refusal of the executor to act, the Court will grant administration under the will to some suitable person, generally selected from those most largely interested under the provisions of the will, such as the residuary legatees, if any. (b) If the deceased died intestate, letters of administration are granted to the following persons in practically all the States:

First—To the surviving husband or widow.

Second—To one or more of the next of kin entitled to share in the estate.

Third—If none of the above consent to act, to one of the creditors of the estate, except in localities where there is provided by law a Public Administrator, who is preferred to creditors. In practically all the States an administrator is required to give bond for the faithful performance of his duties in double the value of the estate to be administered.

In most of the States, if so provided by the will, no bond is required of an executor, except that in some States an executor is required to give a bond to cover the probable amount of the debts of the estate, and in practically all the States, in the discretion of the Court, for cause shown, an executor may be required to give a bond.

2. Claims of Creditors.—The procedure in the several States in presenting creditors' claims against the estate varies very considerably. In the majority of the States the executor or administrator is required promptly to give public notice to creditors to present their claims to him, and the creditors are required so to present their claims supported by an affidavit that the same are justly due and owing from the estate, above any offsets or counter claims, within a period limited generally to six months or a year. The law of each State should be consulted for more specific details. Most of the States direct a final closing of the estate by the executor or administrator within a year or eighteen months after his appointment, though the time limit may be extended by the Probate Court if conditions require it.

3. The following table contains an analysis of the laws of the several States, covering:

- (1) The inheritance or succession tax upon property received either by intestate laws, last will, or by gift or transfer, designed to take effect at death, excepting legacies for religious, charitable or educational purposes, which are tax exempt in most of the States. In the great majority of the States no distinction as to tax is made between real estate and personal property.
- (2) The various classes of estate obligations given priority over other claims in case of the insolvency of the estate.

THE BANKRUPTCY LAW.

EXTRACTS FROM THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY ACT OF JULY 1, 1898,
AS AMENDED BY ACT OF JUNE 25, 1910.

SEC. 4. WHO MAY BECOME BANKRUPTS.—(a) Any person except a municipal railroad, insurance or banking corporation shall be entitled to the benefits of this act as a voluntary bankrupt.

The bankruptcy of a corporation shall not release its officers, directors, or stockholders, as such, from any liability under the laws of a State or Territory or of the United States.

(b) Any natural person, except a wage-earner or a person engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil, any unincorporated company and any moneyed business, or commercial corporation, except a municipal railroad, insurance or banking corporation, owing debts to the amount of one thousand dollars or over, may be adjudged an involuntary bankrupt upon default or an impartial trial and shall be subject to the provisions and entitled to the benefits of this act.

SEC. 7. DUTIES OF BANKRUPTS.—(a) The bankrupt shall (1) attend the first meeting of his creditors, if directed by the court or a Judge thereof to do so, and the hearing upon his application for a discharge, if filed; (2) comply with all lawful orders of the court; (3) examine the correctness of all proofs of claims filed against his estate; (4) execute and deliver such papers as shall be ordered by the court; (5) execute to his trustee transfers of all his property in foreign countries; (6) immediately inform his trustee of any attempt, by his creditors or other persons, to evade the provisions of this act, coming to his knowledge; (7) in case of any person having to his knowledge proved a false claim against his estate, disclose that fact immediately to his trustee; (8) prepare, make oath to, and file in court within ten days, unless further time is granted, after the adjudication if an involuntary bankrupt, and with the petition if a voluntary bankrupt, a schedule of his property, showing the amount and kind of property, the location thereof, its money value in detail, and a list of his creditors, showing their residences, if known (if unknown that fact to be stated), the amount due each of them, the consideration thereof, the security held by them, if any, and a claim for such exemptions as he may be entitled to, all in triplicate, one copy of each for the clerk, one for the referee, and one for the trustee; and (9) when present at the first meeting of his creditors, and at such other times as the court shall order, submit to an examination concerning the conducting of his business, the cause of his bankruptcy, his dealings with his creditors and other persons, the amount, kind, and whereabouts of his property, and, in addition, all matters which may affect the administration and settlement of his estate; but no testimony given by him shall be offered in evidence against him in any criminal proceedings.

Provided, however, that he shall not be required to attend a meeting of his creditors, or at or for an examination at a place more than one hundred and fifty miles distant from his home or principal place of business, or to examine claims except when presented to him, unless ordered by the court, or a Judge thereof, for cause shown, and the bankrupt shall be paid his actual expenses from the estate when examined or required to attend at any place other than the city, town, or village of his residence.

SEC. 24. Original jurisdiction in district courts.

"SEC. 130. The Circuit Courts of Appeals shall have the appellate and supervisory jurisdiction conferred upon them by the act entitled 'An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States,' approved July first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, and all laws amendatory thereof, and shall exercise the same in the manner therein prescribed."

SEC. 252 states the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court conferred upon it by the Bankruptcy act of July 1, 1898.

Sec. 4, act of January 28, 1915, as follows:

"That the judgments and decrees of the Circuit Courts of Appeals in all proceedings and cases arising under the Bankruptcy act and in all controversies arising in such proceedings and cases shall be final, save only that it shall be competent for the Supreme Court to require by certiorari, upon the petition of any party thereto, that the proceeding, case, or controversy be certified to it for review and determination, with the same power and authority as if taken to that court by appeal or writ of error; but certiorari shall not be allowed in any such proceeding, case, or controversy unless the petition therefor is presented to the Supreme Court within three months from the date of such judgment or decree."

DISTRIBUTION OF INTESTATE'S PERSONAL ESTATE.

THE following is a synopsis of the laws of the various States providing for the distribution of the personal estate of a deceased after the payment of funeral expenses and other debts where there is no will:

In many of the States the widow and children are entitled to receive a small portion of the estate, generally varying from $100 to $500, before the claims of creditors are paid. Aside from such exempt portion of the estate, the property to be distributed to the widow or relatives is that remaining after all creditors' claims have been satisfied.

The following is the plan of distribution of a male's property. The same rules apply to a female's estate, except in some States, where the rights of a husband in the estate of his deceased wife differ from those of a wife in the estate of her deceased husband, which will be shown in a separate table.

I. In all States where the deceased leaves a child or children, or descendants of any deceased child, and no widow, the children or descendants take the entire estate, to the exclusion of all other relatives. The children take equal shares, and in most States the descendants of a deceased child together take the share of their parent, except where the descendants are all in equal degree to the deceased (all grandchildren, no children surviving), when they share equally and do not take their proportionate share of their parent's interest.

No statement is given in this synopsis of the law of Louisiana, which, being founded on the provisions of the French code and Roman law instead of the English common law, which is the underlying principle in the other States, differs in many respects from the principles followed in the other States, especially on the question of the rights of a husband and wife in each other's property and in the property acquired by the husband and wife during their married life. The provisions of the law of Indiana are also not included, for the reason that for an accurate statement of its provisions a reading of the entire statute is necessary, together with the decisions of the Indiana courts construing its provisions, which would occupy too much space for a statement here.

II. (a) If deceased leaves a widow, and no children or descendants, the widow takes all. This is the rule in Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Jersey, New Mexico, Ohio, Oregon, Tennessee, Texas, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

(b) In the following States the widow takes one-half, the residue being taken by the other relatives in the manner and proportion in which they take the entire estate when the deceased leaves neither widow nor descendants (given below): Arkansas, California, Delaware, District of Columbia, Idaho, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Texas, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

(c) In Massachusetts, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Utah the widow takes the entire estate up to $5,000 and one-half of the residue.

(d) In Connecticut the widow takes the entire estate up to $2,000 and one-half of the residue.

(e) In New York, if there be a father or mother of deceased surviving, the widow takes one-half; if there be no father or mother, but a brother or sister, nephew or niece surviving, the widow takes $2,000 and one-half residue; if there be no parent, brother, sister, nephew or niece, the widow takes all. The residue after the widow's share passes in each case in accordance with the provisions applying where no widow or issue survive.

(f) In New Hampshire the widow takes $1,500, and, if the estate exceeds $3,000, one-half of the residue.

(g) In Wyoming the widow takes the entire estate up to $20,000 and three-fourths of the residue (if brother, sister or parent survive, otherwise all to widow).

(h) In Michigan the widow takes the entire estate up to $3,000 and one-half of the residue (if brother, sister or parent survive, otherwise all to widow).

(i) In Vermont the widow takes entire estate if not exceeding $2,500; if more than $2,500, widow takes that sum and one-half of residue.

III. (a) When the deceased leaves a widow and children, or descendants, the widow takes one-third and the children share equally in the residue in the following States: Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio (one-half if less than $400), Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Vermont, Virginia and West Virginia.

(b) In the following States, if there be but one child, the widow takes one-half and the child one-half; if two or more children or their descendants, the widow takes one-third, as above, and the children or their descendants the residue: California, Florida, Idaho, Michigan, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Utah.

(c) In the following States the widow takes one-half and the children, or descendants, the residue: Colorado, Kansas, Kentucky, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming.

(d) In the following States the widow takes the same share as each of the children: Mississippi, Missouri, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

(e) In North Carolina, if there are less than three children, the widow takes one-third and the children the residue; if there are three or more children, the widow takes the same share as each of the children.

(f) In Alabama, if there is but one child, the widow takes one-half and the child one-half; if there are more than one child and less than five children, the widow takes the same share as each of the children; if there are five or more children, the widow takes one-fifth and the children or their descendants share equally in the residue.

(g) In Georgia, if there are less than five children, the widow takes the same share as each of the children; if there are five or more children, the widow takes one-fifth and the children or their descendants share equally in the residue.

In Nebraska if widow is not the parent of all the children of the deceased and there be more than one child, widow takes one-fourth and children the residue. If widow is parent of all children of the deceased, she takes one-half if there be but one child and the child the residue; if there be more than one child the widow takes one-third and the children the residue.

(h) In New Mexico, the widow takes one-half of the estate acquired during marriage, otherwise than by gift (by purchase, for example) and the children or their descendants share equally in the residue; the widow also takes one-fourth of the estate acquired before marriage, or by gift or legacy during marriage, the children or their descendants taking the residue.

IV. (a) When the deceased leaves no widow, children or descendants, the parents take the entire estate in equal shares in the following States: Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

In all of the States just mentioned, except Alabama, Arizona, Maine, and Texas, if one parent is dead, the surviving parent takes the entire estate, to the exclusion of brothers and sisters. In Alabama, Arizona, Maine, and Texas the surviving parent takes one-half and the brothers and sisters, or their descendants, take the residue.

In all of them, if both parents are dead, the brothers and sisters and their descendants take the entire estate.

(b) In the following States the father, if living, takes the entire estate; if the father is dead, then to the mother and brothers and sisters, or their descendants equally; and if both parents are dead, then to the brothers and sisters, or their descendants: Florida, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

(c) In the following States the father, if living, takes the entire estate; if the father is dead, then to the mother; and if both parents are dead, then to the brothers and sisters or their descendants: Arkansas, District of Columbia and North Dakota.

(d) In the following States the parents, if living, and the brothers and sisters, or their descendants, take the entire estate, sharing equally. Georgia, Illinois, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey and South Carolina.

(e) In Delaware, Ohio and Maryland (where the property did not descend to intestate from either parent), the brothers and sisters, or their descendants, take the entire estate in preference to the parents, who only inherit if there are no brothers or sisters or lawful issue of any deceased brothers or sisters.

DISTRIBUTION OF FEMALE'S ESTATE.

In the following States, if the deceased was a married woman, the rights of her surviving husband in her personal estate differ from the rights of a widow in the estate of her deceased husband as shown in the above synopsis.

(a) In Delaware, District of Columbia, North Carolina, Rhode Island, and Virginia the husband takes the entire personal estate, whether there is any issue of the marriage or not.

(b) In New York, if there are no children or descendants of children, the husband takes the entire estate.

(c) In Florida, Georgia, and Pennsylvania, if there are no children or descendants, the husband takes the entire estate; if there are children, the husband takes the same share as each child.

(d) In Ohio the husband takes the entire estate if there are no children or descendants; if there are children or descendants, they take the entire estate.

(e) In Alabama the husband takes one-half of the estate, the children, or descendants, taking the residue.

(f) In North Carolina, where surviving husband is not also the father of all the children of decedent, if there be one child the husband takes one-half and the child one-half; if there be more than one child, husband takes child's share.

LAW EXAMINATIONS IN NEW YORK STATE.

To entitle an applicant to an examination as an attorney and counsellor he shall pay to the examiners a fee of $15, and he must prove (15 days in advance) to the satisfaction of the State Board of Law Examiners: 1. That he is a citizen of the State, twenty-one years of age, and that his residence for six months prior to the examination is actual and not constructive, which proof must be made by his own affidavit. 2. That he has studied law in the manner and according to the conditions prescribed for a period of four years, except that if the applicant is a graduate of any college or university his period of study may be three years instead of four, and except also that persons who have been admitted as attorneys in the highest court of original jurisdiction of another State or country, and have remained therein as practising attorneys for at least three years, may be admitted to such examination after a period of law study of one year within this State. 3. That the applicant, if not a college graduate, has passed the regents' examination or its equivalent must be proved by the production of a certified copy of the regents' certificate filed in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

Address communications concerning law examinations to F. M. Danaher, Secretary, Albany, N. Y.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF DEEDS.

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT is the act of declaring the execution of an instrument before an officer authorized to certify to such declaration. The officer certifies to the fact of such declaration, and to his knowledge of the person so declaring. Conveyances or deeds of land to be entitled to be recorded must first be acknowledged before a proper officer. Most of the States have forms of acknowledgments, which should be followed.

Acknowledgments may be taken in general by Notaries Public, Justices of the Peace, Judges or Clerks of Courts of the higher grades, Registers, Masters in Chancery, Court Commissioners, Town Clerks, Mayor and Clerks of incorporated cities, within their respective jurisdictions.

The requisites to a valid deed are the same in general as other contracts, but the appointment of an attorney to execute a deed for another person must in general be executed with the same formalities requisite to the deed itself.

SEALS or their equivalent (or whatever is intended as such) are necessary in Alaska, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming. In almost all the States deeds by corporations must be under seal. Forms are prescribed or indicated by the statutes of most of the States except Connecticut, Florida, Louisiana. SEPARATE ACKNOWLEDGMENT by wife is required in Alaska, Arkansas, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas. ONE WITNESS to the execution of deeds is required in District of Columbia, Maine (customary), Maryland, Nebraska, New Jersey (usual), Oklahoma, Utah, Wyoming. TWO WITNESSES to the execution of deeds are required in Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oregon, South Carolina, Texas, Vermont, Wisconsin.

PROMISSORY NOTES AND CHECKS.

Negotiable instruments, the common forms of which are promissory notes, checks, or other bills of exchange, while having the same general requisites as other contracts, have certain distinct features. The purpose of the law is to facilitate as much as possible their free passing from hand to hand like currency. The assignment of an ordinary contract leaves the assignee in no different position for enforcing his rights than that of his assignor, but one who takes a negotiable instrument from a prior holder, without knowledge of any defences to it, before its maturity, and gives value for it, holds it free of any defences which might have been set up against his predecessors, except those defects that were inherent in the instrument itself.

To be negotiable an instrument must be in writing and signed by the maker (of a note) or drawer (of a bill or check).

It must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money.

Must be payable on demand, or at a fixed future time.

Must be payable to order or to bearer.

In a bill of exchange (check) the party directed to pay must be reasonably certain.

Every negotiable instrument is presumed to have been issued for a valuable consideration, and want of consideration in the creation of the instrument is not a defence against a bona-fide holder.

An instrument is negotiated, that is completely transferred, so as to vest title in the purchaser, if payable to bearer, or indorsed simply with the name of the last holder, by mere delivery, or payable to order by the indorsement of the party to whom it is payable and delivery.

One who transfers an instrument by indorsement warrants to every subsequent holder that the instrument is genuine, that he has title to it, and that if not paid by the party primarily liable at maturity, he will pay it upon receiving due notice of non-payment.

To hold an indorser liable the holder upon its non-payment at maturity must give prompt notice of such non-payment to the indorser and that the holder looks to the indorser for payment. Such notice should be sent within twenty-four hours.

When an indorser is thus compelled to pay he may hold prior parties through whom he received the instrument liable to him by sending them prompt notice of non-payment upon receiving such notice from the holder.

One who transfers a negotiable instrument by delivery, without indorsing it, simply warrants that the instrument is genuine, that he has title to it, and knows of no defence to it, but does not agree to pay it if unpaid at maturity.

The maker of a note is liable to pay it if unpaid at maturity without any notice from the holder or indorser.

Notice to one of several partners is sufficient notice to all.

When a check is certified by a bank the bank becomes primarily liable to pay it without notice of its non-payment, and when the holder of a check thus obtains its certification by the bank, the drawer of the check and previous indorsers are released from liability, and the holder looks to the bank for payment.

A bona-fide holder of a negotiable instrument, that is, a party who takes an instrument regular on its face, before its maturity, pays value for it and has no knowledge of any defences to it, is entitled to hold the party primarily liable responsible for its payment, despite any defences he may have against the party to whom he gave it, except such as rendered the instrument void in its inception. Thus, if the maker of a note received no value for it, or was induced to issue it through fraud or imposition, they do not defeat the right of a bona-fide holder to compel its payment from him.

The following States have enacted a similar Negotiable Instrument law: Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Dist. of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Washington, and Wisconsin—and the same general rules apply in all the States.

LAW OF CONTRACTS.

A contract is an agreement of two or more parties, by which reciprocal rights and obligations are created. One party acquires a right, enforceable at law, to some act or forbearance from the other, who is under a corresponding obligation to thus act or forbear.

Generally speaking, all contracts which are made between two competent parties, for a proper consideration, without fraud and for a lawful purpose, are enforceable at law.

To the creation of a valid contract there must be:

1. Precise agreement. The offer of one party must be met by an acceptance by the other, according to the terms offered.
2. There must be a consideration. Something of value must either be received by one party or given up by the other.
3. The parties must have capacity to contract. The contracts of insane persons are not binding upon them. Married women are now generally permitted to contract as though single, and bind their separate property. The contracts of an infant are generally not binding upon him, unless ratified after attaining his majority. The contracts of an infant for "necessaries" may be enforced against him to the extent of the reasonable value of the goods furnished. It is incumbent upon one seeking thus to hold an infant to show that the goods furnished were in fact necessary to the infant, and that he was not already supplied by his parents or guardians.

4. The party's consent must not be the result of fraud or imposition, or it may be avoided by the party imposed upon.

5. The purpose of the parties must be lawful. Agreements to defraud others, to violate statutes, or whose aim is against public policy, such as to create monopolies, or for the corrupt procurement of legislative or official action, are void, and cannot be enforced by any party thereto.

Contracts in general are equally valid, whether made orally or in writing, with the exception of certain classes of contracts, which in most of the States are required to be attested by a note or memorandum in writing, signed by the party or his agent sought to be held liable. Some of the provisions, which are adopted from the old English Statute of Frauds, vary in some States, but the following contracts very generally are required to be thus attested by some writing:

Contracts by their terms not to be performed within a year from the making thereof.

A promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person.

Contracts made in consideration of marriage, except mutual promises to marry.

Contracts of an executor, or administrator, to pay debts of deceased out of his own property.

Contracts for the creation of any interest or estate in land, with the exception of leases for a short term, generally one year.

Contracts for the sale of goods above a certain value, unless a portion of the price is paid or part of the goods delivered. The required value of the goods sold varies in different States from $30 to $200. In a number of the States no such provision exists.

In many of the States declarations or conveyances of trust estates.

In many States representations as to the character, credit, or responsibility of another person.

Partial performance of the contract is generally held to dispense with the necessity for a writing.

If the damages liable to result from the breaking of a contract are uncertain the parties may agree upon a sum to which either may be entitled as compensation for a breach, which will be upheld by the courts, but if the sum so fixed is not designed as a fair compensation to the party injured, but as a penalty to be inflicted, it will be disregarded.

A party is generally excused for the failure to perform what he has agreed only by the act of God or the public enemy. Except in cases involving a personal element in the work to be performed, such as the rendition of services, when the death or sickness of the party contracting to perform them is a valid excuse, or contracts for the performance of work upon a specified object, when its destruction without the fault of the party sought to be held liable is a sufficient excuse.

ARREST IN CIVIL ACTION.

WHILE imprisonment for debt as it formerly existed in English and American law, by which a debtor might be arrested and imprisoned for mere inability to pay his creditor, no longer exists in the United States, the statutes of the majority of the States provide for the arrest of a defendant in a civil action under varying conditions. A large number of States determine the right of arrest by the character of the claim on which suit is brought, allowing in it actions for fraud or the injuries known in the law as "torts," such as an injury to the person or property, conversion or embezzlement, libel, slander, or the like.

In the following States no civil arrest is allowed—Arizona, District of Columbia, Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Tennessee, and Texas.

In the following States the right to arrest depends upon the nature of claim in suit: In actions for fraud or torts, Connecticut; for fraud, libel, slander, or violent injury to person or property, Delaware for fraud only, Iowa and Kansas; only after verdict of jury, finding malice, fraud, or wilful deceit, Colorado; for torts, breach of promise to marry, misconduct or embezzlement in office or professional capacity, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and New York (also for fine or penalty or to recover property concealed from Sheriff).

In the following States arrest is only allowed against a defendant about to remove from State or about to conceal, transfer, or remove his property to avoid plaintiff's claim or defraud creditors, irrespective of the nature of the claim: Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, New Hampshire, Utah, Virginia. In New Hampshire tax collector may also arrest person for non-payment of poll tax, if not sufficient property upon which to make distress.

In the following States arrest is allowed in contract actions where the defendant is about to depart from the State, or conceal or remove his property, and also in actions for fraud or torts of various kinds, though the provisions are not identical: Arkansas (fraud only), California, Idaho, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia (fraud only), Wisconsin.

In Georgia arrest only allowed against attorneys, Sheriffs or other officers of the court for failure to pay over money collected and in certain circumstances against defendant who conceals property from Sheriff. The drawer of a check, which on presentation to the bank payment is refused, is guilty of a misdemeanor. Criminal prosecution cannot be instituted, however, until after an expiration of thirty days, and not then if the drawer makes good the invalid check.

In Wyoming (only after judgment) in actions for fraud, or money lost at gambling, or where defendant has removed or concealed property to avoid judgment.

In Rhode Island, allowed in all actions except to recover debt or taxes.

In Ohio, when an affidavit is filed showing: About to remove property to defraud creditors, convert property into money for same purpose, conceal property or rights in action fraudulently, assigned or disposed of property with intent to defraud creditors. Fraudulently contracted the debt, or incurred the obligation. Money or property sought to be recovered was in gambling on a bet or wager.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE LAWS.

Age at Which a Valid Marriage May Be Contracted—The age at which a valid marriage can be contracted varies in different States. The lowest statutory age for a male is fourteen. The States in which a marriage can be contracted by a male at fourteen years are Kentucky, Louisiana, New Hampshire, and Virginia. The States in which the statutory limit is fifteen years are Kansas and Missouri. Those in which it is sixteen years are the District of Columbia, Iowa, North Carolina, Texas, and Utah. Those in which it is seventeen years are Alabama, Arkansas, and Georgia, and those in which it is eighteen years are Arizona, California, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Age Limit for Females—The lowest age at which a valid contract can be made by a female is twelve years. The States in which the statutory limit of twelve obtains are Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, and Virginia. In New Hampshire the statutory limit is thirteen years. In the following States it is fourteen years, Alabama, Arkansas, District of Columbia, Georgia, Iowa, North Carolina, Texas and Utah. The States in which the statutory limit is fifteen are California, Minnesota, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, and Wisconsin. The States in which the statutory limit is sixteen years are Arizona, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, Ohio, West Virginia, and Wyoming. The statutory limit is eighteen years in Idaho and New York. In other States, for which no minimum marriageable age is given, the provisions of the common law apply.

Parental Consent—The age below which parental consent is required for the marriage of a male is twenty-one years in nearly all the States and Territories. In Tennessee it is sixteen years and in Idaho and North Carolina eighteen years. In Georgia, Michigan, New Hampshire, New York, and South Carolina no limit is established. It is twenty-one years in all the other States and Territories.

The age below which parental consent is required for the female is sixteen years in Maryland and Tennessee. It is twenty-one years in Connecticut, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wyoming. No statutory limit is established in New Hampshire, New York, and South Carolina. In all the other States and Territories it is eighteen years.

DIVORCE STATISTICS.

The Bureau of the Census issued in 1909 a report of the results of a compilation of statistics of divorces of married people granted by the courts in the United States for a period of forty years; being from 1867 to 1906, both years inclusive, and which are shown in 1912 ALMANAC, pages 197-199. For comparison with foreign countries see 1914 ALMANAC, page 277.

FROM 1910 CENSUS REPORT.

The number of divorced persons in the United States when the census was taken in 1910 was 156,176 men and 185,101 women—0.3 per cent. of the total male population and 0.4 per cent. of the total female population. There were fourteen boys and thirty-three girls less than fifteen years old who were divorced.

The statistics of the number of divorced persons fifteen years old and over in New York State are: Men—Native white of native parentage, 3,784; native white of foreign or mixed parentage, 1,692; foreign-born white, 1,775; negro, 164; total, 7,436. Women—Native white of native parentage, 4,950; native white of foreign or mixed parentage, 2,347; foreign-born white, 2,609; negro, 292; total, 10,227. The total figures for the males include 18 divorced Indians, 2 Chinamen and 1 Japanese; those for females include 28 divorced Indians and 1 Japanese.

THE PROCREATION COMMISSION.

THIS Commission, created by an act of the Legislature of New York State, is to examine into the mental and physical condition and the record and family history of the feeble-minded, epileptic, criminal and other defective inmates confined in the State hospitals, reformatories, charitable and penal institutions; and if in the judgment of the majority of the board procreation by any such person would produce children with an inherited tendency to crime, insanity, feeble-mindedness, idleness, or imbecility, and there is no probability of an improvement in their condition, then the board shall appoint one of their number to perform such operation for the prevention of procreation that shall be decided to be most effective. All orders made under this law are subject to review by the Supreme Court.

The board, as appointed by Governor Dix, consists of Dr. Charles H. Andrews, Buffalo, N. Y., Chairman; Dr. Leomon Thompson, Glens Falls, N. Y., Secretary; Dr. Wm. J. Wansboro, Albany, N. Y.

BLINDNESS IN THE UNITED STATES.

(From a report of Bureau of the Census, July 2, 1915.)

THE blind population of the United States in 1910 numbered 57,272, or 62.3 to each 100,000 of the total population in that year. Blindness is less common in America than in most other countries; it has apparently decreased among the youngest classes of the population in the last half century; it is more prevalent among men than among women; it is very much more prevalent among Indians, and considerably more prevalent among negroes than among whites. Trades taught in schools or workshops for the blind have equipped about 1,500 blind persons for total or partial self-support.

BLINDNESS IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The total number of blind persons in the world is roughly estimated at 2,390,000. The total number enumerated at the most recent censuses of the blind in all countries in which such censuses have been taken is 1,194,346. These countries represent all of Australia, nearly all of Europe and North America, and portions of South America, Africa, and Asia, together with certain of the insular possessions of European and American countries. The only countries and provinces in which the ratios of the blind to the total population are lower than that for the United States (62.3 per 100,000) are Canada, where the ratio was 44.9 per 100,000 in 1911; Belgium, where it was 43.5 in 1910; Denmark, 52.7 in 1911; Germany, 60.9 in 1900; Netherlands, 46.3 in 1909; New South Wales, 61.4 in 1911; Western Australia, 50.3 in 1911; and New Zealand, 47.8 in 1911.

WHERE BLINDNESS IS MOST PREVALENT.

In the United States blindness is most prevalent in New Mexico and Nevada, in which States the ratios of blind to total population in 1910 were 169.3 to 100,000 and 118.5 to 100,000 respectively. The high ratios for these States are due to the fact that Indians, among whom trachoma (granulated eyelids) is of frequent occurrence in those sections of the country constitute relatively large elements in their population. In Arizona, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Vermont the ratios are also high—95.9, 94, 98.5, and 84.6 respectively. The relatively large Indian population of Arizona is responsible for the high ratio in that State; trachoma is prevalent in certain parts of Kentucky and Tennessee; and in Vermont there are relatively more people of advanced ages than in other parts of the country, to which fact is doubtless due the high ratio for that State, since susceptibility to blindness increases with advancing age.

SEX AND AGE.

In 1850 and at every succeeding census the proportion blind has been greater among males than among females. In 1910 the ratio of males to females among the blind population was 130.7 to 100, whereas in the total population the corresponding ratio was 106 to 100. In the majority of foreign countries a similar condition exists.

Although blindness may occur at any time of life, it is peculiarly a defect incident to old age. In fact, approximately one-half—49.4 per cent.—of the blind population reported in 1910 were 60 years of age and over, whereas only about one-fifteenth—6.3 per cent.—of the total population were 60 years of age and over. To make the comparison in another way: The median age of the total population in 1910 was 24 years—that is, one-half the population were under that age and the other half had passed it—while the median age of the blind population was 59.6 years, or nearly two and one-half times as great. Among children under 5 years only 5 in every 100,000 were blind; but among persons 85 years of age and over, 2,575 in 100,000 were blind. Comparisons with earlier censuses indicate that there has been a decrease in the prevalence of blindness among the younger classes of the population.

THE EUGENICS RECORD OFFICE.

The purposes of this office are to serve eugenic interests in the capacity of repository and clearing house; to build up an analytical index of the traits of American families; to study the forces controlling and the hereditary consequences of marriage matings, differential fecundity, survival and migration; to investigate the manner of inheritance of specific human traits; to advise concerning the eugenic fitness of proposed marriages; to train field workers to gather data of eugenic import; to maintain a limited field force actually engaged in gathering data for eugenic studies; to co-operate with other institutions and with persons concerned with eugenic study; to encourage new centres of eugenic research and education; to publish the results of researches and to aid in the dissemination of eugenic truths.

The Eugenics Record Office was organized in October, 1910, by Charles B. Davenport, with funds provided by Mrs. E. H. Harriman, who has remained the principal patron of the work. It has also received generous support from John D. Rockefeller.

RACE AND NATIVITY.

Among native whites the number of blind persons per 100,000 population of the same race and nativity was only 55, whereas for the total population the ratio was 62.3 to 100,000. The corresponding ratios for other elements of the population were: Foreign-born whites, 74.5 to 100,000; negroes, 90 to 100,000; Indians, 302.6 to 100,000; Chinese, Japanese, and all other non-whites, 23.2 to 100,000. The fact that blindness is more common among foreign-born whites than among native whites is, however, due to the fact that the former class contains relatively more people of advanced age than does the latter. When the comparison is confined to persons of the same age the lower ratio is invariably found among the foreign-born whites. The remarkably high ratio for Indians is due to the prevalence of trachoma (granulated eyelids) on Indian reservations. The low ratios for the Chinese and Japanese may be explained in part by the fact that the members of these races in the United States are comparatively young and are, as a rule, engaged in occupations having no particular hazard of blindness. It is probable, too, that the enumeration of the blind among the Chinese and Japanese was somewhat deficient.

OCCUPATIONS.

Of the 31,473 blind males 10 years of age and over in 1910, only 7,976, or 25.3 per cent., were reported as being gainfully employed, while of the 24,000 blind females 10 years of age and over, only 1,345, or 5.6 per cent., were reported as gainfully employed. The corresponding percentages with reference to the total population were 81.3 for males and 23.4 for females. It does not follow, however, that more than 9,000 blind persons were actually self-supporting, since in most cases their earnings were far from sufficient to constitute a livelihood, and often amounted to mere pinpricks of less than $100 a year. In this connection it should, of course, be borne in mind that a very considerable proportion of the blind population has already passed the age when retirement from active employment usually occurs, so that the number of blind persons not reporting an occupation does not by any means indicate the number of individuals lost to the working force of the United States by reason of blindness.

Of the 7,976 blind males reported as gainfully employed, 1,768, or 22.2 per cent., were returned as farmers; 665, or 8.3 per cent., as broom makers; 646, or 8.1 per cent., as musicians and teachers of music; 619, or 7.8 per cent., as retail merchants and dealers in such things as hucksters and peddlers; 491, or 5 per cent., as hucksters and peddlers; 349, or 4.4 per cent., as piano tuners; 242, or 3 per cent., as chair caners.

Particular interest attaches to the figures for those trades which have been found especially available as a means of employment for the blind, and the reporting of which presumably indicates the receipt of special vocational training after the loss of vision. The most important of these trades are broom making, piano tuning, chair caning, basket making, mattress making, carpet and rug making, weaving, and hammock and net making. The numbers of blind males engaged in these trades in 1910 were 665, 349, 242, 50, 45, 30, 19, and 18 respectively, making a total of 1,418, or 17.8 per cent. of the entire number of gainfully employed blind males.

Of the 1,345 blind females 10 years of age and over reported as gainfully employed in 1910, 167, or 12.4 per cent., were returned as musicians and teachers of music; 127, or 9.4 per cent., as farmers; 102, or 7.6 per cent., as knitters; 86, or 6.4 per cent., as fancy workers; and 56, or 4.2 per cent., as professors, school principals, and teachers.

MORTALITY STATISTICS FOR 1913.

(From a bulletin issued by the Census Bureau, February 8, 1915.)

THE annual report on mortality in the United States, relating to the calendar year 1913, shows a death rate of 14.1 per 1,000 estimated population in the registration area of the United States, a slight increase as compared with the rate for 1912.

TOTAL DEATHS IN REGISTRATION AREA.

The total number of deaths (exclusive of stillbirths) in the registration area, which now contains about two-thirds of the population of the United States, was 890,848. The lowest rate ever shown in the Bureau's reports was that for 1912, which was 13.9 per 1,000. There has been a marked, though not continuous, decline in the death rate since 1880, when it was 19.8 per 1,000, based on the deaths among 17 per cent. of the country's population.

The registration area of the United States, as constituted for the year 1913, consists of 24 States (in one of which, North Carolina, the registration is restricted to municipalities which had 1,000 population or over in 1900), the District of Columbia, and 41 cities in non-registration States. The States and cities making up this area are those whose registration of deaths has been accepted by the Bureau of the Census as being fairly complete (at least 90 per cent. of the total number of deaths), and from which transcripts of the death certificates recorded under the State laws or municipal ordinances were received by the Bureau of the Census.

The estimated population of the registration area in 1913 was 63,298,718. It has grown from six-tenths of 1 per cent. of the total land area of the United States in 1880 to 38.6 per cent. in 1913, and the proportion of the population living in it has increased from 17 per cent. in 1880 to 65.1 per cent. in 1913.

COMPARISON WITH FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

Comparative figures for foreign countries are not available for 1913, but in 1912 the only important countries or provinces having lower death rates than the United States were Norway (13.4 per 1,000), England and Wales (13.3), Denmark (13), the Province of Ontario (12.4), Holland (12.3), Australia (11.2), and New Zealand (8.9).

DEATH RATES OF STATES.

Following are the death rates per 1,000 population in 1913 for the States included within the registration area: California, 14.5; Colorado, 11.5; Connecticut, 15; Indiana, 13.3; Kentucky, 13.3; Maine, 15.3; Maryland, 16.2; Massachusetts, 15; Michigan, 13.9; Minnesota, 10.4; Missouri, 12.5; Montana, 12; New Hampshire, 17.1; New Jersey, 14.3; New York, 15; North Carolina (figures relate only to municipalities having a population of 1,000 or over in 1900), 16.8; Ohio, 13.8; Pennsylvania, 14.6; Rhode Island, 15; Utah, 11; Vermont, 15.8; Virginia, 13.9; Washington, 8.5; Wisconsin, 11.5.

The lowest death rate shown by any registration State was that for Washington (8.5 per 1,000), while New Hampshire's rate (17.1) was the highest. The fact that the average age of Washington's population is much lower than that of New Hampshire's doubtless constitutes the chief reason for this difference; and a like explanation holds good in many similar cases.

DEATH RATES FOR CITIES.

Following are the death rates per 1,000 population in 1913 for the 50 registration cities with populations of 100,000 or over in 1910. Separate figures for white and colored persons are given in parentheses for cities in which the colored population constituted 10 per cent. or more of the total in 1910:

Alabama—Birmingham, 17.4 (white, 12.3; colored, 25.2). California—Los Angeles, 15; Oakland, 12.5; San Francisco, 15.9. Colorado—Denver, 13.7. Connecticut—Bridgeport, 14.9; New Haven, 15.9. District of Columbia—Washington, 17.3 (white, 14.4; colored, 24.4). Georgia—Atlanta, 17.4 (white, 13.5; colored, 25.2). Illinois—Chicago, 15.1. Indiana—Indianapolis, 15.7. Kentucky—Louisville, 16.2 (white, 14.3; colored, 24.8). Louisiana—New Orleans, 19.9 (white, 15.6; colored, 31.9). Maryland—Baltimore, 18.5 (white, 16.2; colored, 31). Massachusetts—Boston, 16.4; Cambridge, 13.5; Fall River, 17.2; Lowell, 15.9; Worcester, 15.8. Michigan—Detroit, 17.3; Grand Rapids, 13.3. Minnesota—Minneapolis, 11.6; St. Paul, 11. Missouri—Kansas

City, 14.8; St. Louis, 14.9. Nebraska—Omaha, 13.9. New Jersey—Jersey City, 14.6; Newark, 14.4; Paterson, 13.6. New York—Albany, 19.8; Buffalo, 15.8; New York, 14.3; Rochester, 14.6; Syracuse, 15.7. Ohio—Cincinnati, 16.9; Cleveland, 14.2; Columbus, 15.3; Dayton, 16; Toledo, 16.2. Oregon—Portland, 9.5. Pennsylvania—Philadelphia, 15.7; Pittsburgh, 17.1; Scranton, 14.8. Rhode Island—Providence, 15.2. Tennessee—Memphis, 20.8 (white, 15.9; colored, 28.2); Nashville, 17.8 (white, 14.7; colored, 24). Virginia—Richmond, 20.4 (white, 16.7; colored, 26.3). Washington—Seattle, 8.4; Spokane, 8.9. Wisconsin—Milwaukee, 12.7.

The lowest rate shown by any of these cities was that for Seattle, Wash. (8.4), while the highest (20.8) was for Memphis, Tenn.

DEATH RATES IN CITIES HAVING LARGE COLORED POPULATIONS.

An interesting feature of the report is the presentation of a table showing comparative death rates for white and colored persons (including Indians, Chinese, and Japanese) in 67 cities in which the colored population constituted 10 per cent. or more of the total in 1910. In these 67 cities (including two in Kentucky and two in Maryland in which the colored population constituted less than 10 per cent. of the total), taken together, the death rate among the white in 1913 was 15.3 per 1,000, while among the colored population it was 26.8. The highest rate for the colored was 37.2, in Charleston, S. C., and the lowest was 8.5, in Coatesville, Pa.

By the aid of this table it is possible to make a much fairer comparison between the healthfulness of different cities, on the basis of the death rates among the whites alone, than could be made on the basis of general death rates. For example, Birmingham, Ala., in which the combined death rate for white and colored persons was 17.4 per 1,000—considerably above the average for large cities—shows a rate of only 12.3 for whites alone—a little less than that for Oakland, Cal., and considerably less than the rates for many other cities.

AVERAGE AGE AT DEATH.

The average age at death for both sexes, from all causes combined, was 39.8; for males alone, 39.2; for females alone, 40.6. The corresponding averages for 1912 were 40.6, 39.9, and 41.4. The report cautions the reader not to confuse the average age at death with expectation of life as given in life tables.

Nearly 18 per cent. of all deaths were of infants under 1 year of age, and more than 25 per cent. were of children under 5 years. After the first five years of age deaths are most frequent among persons between 70 and 74, inclusive. This applies to both sexes combined and to women alone, the deaths among these groups forming 6.56 per cent. and 6.85 per cent. respectively of the corresponding totals. For men alone, however, the period of greatest mortality is between the ages of 65 and 69, inclusive, the deaths during this period constituting 6.4 per cent. of the total for males.

FEWER DEATHS FROM TUBERCULOSIS.

The death rate from tuberculosis (all forms) declined from 149.5 per 100,000 population in 1912 to 147.6 in 1913. The rate from this cause shows a continuous, though irregular, decline from year to year since 1904.

The death rates from cerebral hemorrhage (apoplexy) and organic heart diseases and endocarditis also declined as compared with 1912, the former from 75.7 to 74.6 per 100,000 population, and the latter from 151.2 to 147.1. These rates, however, are higher than in most of the years between 1900 and 1912.

Although the rates for typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria and croup, pneumonia (all forms), and diarrhoea and enteritis (infants under 2 years) show increases as compared with 1912, there has been a general and pronounced decline in the rates from these causes since 1900.

DEATHS FROM CANCER INCREASING.

On the other hand, there has been an almost continuous increase from year to year since 1900 in the death rates from cancer, organic heart diseases and endocarditis, nephritis, and Bright's disease. The most marked increase for any one of the most important 12 causes of death was that in the rate for cancer, which rose from 63 per 100,000 population in 1900 to 78.9 in 1913, and in only two cases did the rate for any year between 1900 and 1913 show a decrease as compared with the preceding year.

DEATHS FROM SUICIDES AND VIOLENCE.

There were 9,988 suicides in the registration area during the year 1913, the rate being 15.8 per 100,000 population—a slight decrease as compared with 1912, when the rate was 16.

In the registration area there were 58,578 deaths from violence (including homicide and legal execution but excluding suicide), corresponding to a death rate of 92.5 per 100,000 population. This rate shows a considerable increase as compared with that for 1912, which was 88.9.

DEATHS CAUSED BY AUTOMOBILES AND HORSES.

That the automobile, in spite of the rapidity with which it has come into general use, is still less deadly than the horse, might be inferred from the fact that the mortality incident to its operation was less in 1913 than that chargeable, directly and indirectly, to man's faithful but sometimes erratic friend. During the year the number of deaths resulting from automobile accidents and injuries was 2,488, while the number due to injuries and accidents caused by other vehicles (principally horse drawn) was 2,381, and the number caused by animals (principally horses) was 540. The corresponding figures for 1912 were 1,758, 2,221, and 543. A few fatalities caused by motorcycles and bicycles are included in those due to "other vehicles," and a small number chargeable to animals other than horses are comprised in those caused by animals; but, after making due allowance for these factors, there still remains a considerable "margin of safety" in favor of the automobile. Deaths due to railway accidents and injuries during the year numbered 8,212, and those resulting from street-car accidents and injuries, 1,998. The corresponding figures for 1912 were 8,209 and 1,832. For the first time the number of fatalities due to automobile accidents and injuries exceeds the number resulting from injuries caused by other vehicles and also exceeds the number due to street-car accidents.

PRINCIPAL CAUSES OF DEATH.

More than one-half of all the deaths in the registration area—which in 1913 contained about 65 per cent. of the total population of the United States—were due to nine causes: Tuberculosis, heart diseases, pneumonia, Bright's disease and nephritis, diarrhoea and enteritis, cancer, apoplexy, diphtheria and croup, and typhoid fever. The first three of these maladies alone were responsible for more than 30 per cent. of the total mortality reported for that year. The death rate from these nine causes combined in 1913 was 810.4 per 100,000 population.

TUBERCULOSIS—Tuberculosis in its various forms claimed 93,421 victims in 1913, of which number 80,812 died from tuberculosis of the lungs (including acute military tuberculosis).

A comparison of the mortality among whites from tuberculosis of the lungs in urban and rural districts brings out a very considerable difference in favor of the latter, the rates in 1913 being 128.5 for cities of 10,000 and over, taken as a whole, and 100.8 for places of less than 10,000.

HEART DISEASES—The deaths from heart diseases (organic diseases of the heart and endocarditis) in the registration area in 1913 numbered 93,142, or 147.1 per 100,000. While the mortality rate for tuberculosis has been declining from year to year, the rate for heart diseases has been rising.

PNEUMONIA—Pneumonia in its various forms was the cause of 33,778 deaths, or 132.4 per 100,000, in the registration area during 1913. The mortality rate for pneumonia in 1913 was about 70 per cent. greater among the colored population than among the whites. BRIGHT'S DISEASE AND NEPHRITIS—The only remaining death rate higher than 100 per 100,000 in 1913 was that for Bright's disease and "acute nephritis," 102.9. The total number of deaths due to these causes in 1913 was 65,106, about nine-tenths of which were caused by Bright's disease, the remainder being charged to acute nephritis, a related kidney disorder.

DIARRHŒA AND ENTERITIS—Diarrhoea and enteritis caused 57,080 deaths, or 90.2 per 100,000, in the registration area in 1913. Of these deaths, more than four-fifths were of infants under 2 years of age, and over two-thirds were of infants under 1 year.

The mortality from these causes fluctuated greatly between 1900 and 1913, but on the whole shows a material decline, having dropped from 133.2 per 100,000 in the earlier year to 90.2 in the later.

CANCER—Next in order of deadliness comes cancer, which filled nearly 50,000 graves in 1913. The exact number of deaths due to this dreaded malady was 49,928, of which about 40 per cent. resulted from cancers of the stomach and liver.

It is worthy of note that the colored population, for which the death rates from most causes are much higher than for the whites, shows a decidedly low rate for cancer—57.3 per 100,000 for the entire registration area in 1913, as compared with 80 for the whites.

APOPLEXY—Apoplexy was the cause of 47,220 deaths, or 74.6 per 100,000, in the registration area in 1913. This rate increased gradually, with occasional slight declines, from 67.5 per 100,000 in 1900 to 75.7 in 1914, but dropped slightly in 1913.

DIPHTHERIA AND CROUP—No epidemic disease produced a mortality rate as high as 20 per 100,000 in 1913. The fatal cases of diphtheria and croup numbered 11,920, or 18.3 per 100,000, in that year, the rate having fallen from 43.3 in 1900.

TYPHOID FEVER—Deaths from typhoid fever also showed a very gratifying decline between 1900 and 1913, decreasing from 35.9 per 100,000 in the earlier year to 17.9 in the later, or by almost exactly 50 per cent.

THE INSANE.

(From a bulletin issued by the Census Bureau, January 25, 1915. The report is based upon data relative to the insane in hospitals and asylums in 1910.)

MORE MEN INSANE THAN WOMEN.

On January 1, 1910, there were 98,695 males in institutions for the insane, as compared with 89,096 females, and during the year 1910 34,116 males were admitted, as compared with 26,653 females.

There were 208.5 male inmates of insane asylums to every 100,000 males in the total population, while the corresponding ratio of female inmates to total female population was 199.6 to 100,000. The males admitted during the year 1910 represented a ratio of 72.1, the females a ratio of 59.7. This means that in a typical community of 200,000 persons equally divided as to sex 208 of the males would be found in insane asylums and 200 of the females, and in the course of one year 72 males would be admitted to the asylums, as compared with 60 females.

The number of males in asylums for the insane has increased faster than the number of females. In 1880 the two sexes had, in fact, a nearly equal representation in these institutions, as the total number of inmates included 20,635 males and 20,307 females; but by 1910 the number of male inmates had increased to 98,695 and the number of female inmates to 89,096, so that the males outnumbered the females by a ratio of 111 to 100. The excess of males among the current admissions in 1910 was still greater—128 males to 100 females.

ONE REASON WHY.

Of peculiar interest in this connection is the table which distinguishes the cases diagnosed as alcoholic psychosis or general paralysis—mental diseases which, generally speaking, are the aftermath of vice and dissipation. Of the 34,116 males admitted to hospitals for the insane in 1910, 8,356, or about 25 per cent. of the total number, were reported as suffering from one or the other of these diseases, while the number of females having these diseases was only 1,851, representing about 7 per cent. of the 26,653 females admitted. If from the total number of admissions the cases of alcoholic psychosis and general paralysis are deducted, the disparity between the sexes practically disappears. There are left of the total admissions 25,760 males as compared with 24,802 females, a slight excess of males, but not so great as naturally would result from the fact that there are more males than females in the general population.

The table following shows the number of admissions to hospitals for the insane in 1910:

|                                 | Males. | Females. |
|---------------------------------|--------|----------|
| Total number admitted.....      | 34,116 | 26,653   |
| Having general paralysis.....   | 2,989  | 895      |
| Having alcoholic psychosis..... | 5,220  | 902      |
| Having both diseases.....       | 147    | 54       |

COMPARISON BY AGE PERIODS.

The statistics give the number of insane of each sex admitted to hospitals in each age period per 100,000 persons of the same age and sex in the total population. The ratio of admissions increases with advancing years, reaching its maximum in extreme old age, when senile dementia marks the weakening of the mental faculties.

THE FEEBLE-MINDED.

The number of feeble-minded in institutions on January 1, 1910, was 20,731; on January 1, 1905, the number was 15,318. The total number of feeble-minded in the United States has been estimated at not less than 150,000. Of the feeble-minded in institutions 47.2 per cent. were under twenty years of age and 76.4 per cent. were under thirty years of age.

This does not mean that a majority of the admissions to institutions for the insane are old people. On the contrary, only about 10 per cent. of the insane admitted to hospitals were over 65 years of age, while about 57 per cent. were between 25 and 50 years of age; but in proportion to the total number of people in the same period of life the number of admissions is larger in old age than in middle life, and larger in middle life than in youth. In fact, very few young people are included in the admissions, and practically no children.

Throughout the entire life period the ratio of admissions for males is larger than that for the other sex. Upon eliminating the cases of alcoholic psychosis and general paralysis, the ratio for males still remains higher than that for females up to the age of 30 and above the age of 60, but is lower in the intervening years. This indicates, in other words, that when the cases of general paralysis and alcoholic psychosis are eliminated there are more cases of other forms of insanity among women than among men in the period of life from 30 to 60 years of age, but fewer in early life and in old age.

An increase of insanity is probably in some degree a natural consequence of the rapid growth of cities in the United States. Between 1880 and 1910 the proportion of the population of the United States living in urban communities increased about 190 per cent., while the rural population increased only about 40 per cent. As a result, 46 per cent. of the total population of the United States was urban in 1910, as compared with 30 per cent. in 1880. The percentage living in cities of over 100,000 inhabitants nearly doubled in the same interval, being 12.4 per cent. in 1880 and 22.1 per cent. in 1910.

MOTHER'S DAY. SECOND SUNDAY IN MAY.

Its object—An all-nations' and simultaneous observance for the well-being and honor of the home.

How observed—Through some distinct act of kindness, visit, letter, gift or tribute, show remembrance of the Mother and Father to whom grateful affection is due. Mother's Day is equally a Father's Day, and is designed to deepen and perpetuate all family ties. The day is so-called because in most countries no national celebration is in special honor of the home and noble motherhood.

Its slogan—In honor of "The Best Mother Who Ever Lived" the mother of your heart. The badge is a white carnation. Time of observance is the second Sunday in May by churches of all creeds, etc. Schools celebrate on Friday, and business and other organizations on Saturday preceding second Sunday in May.

On May 10, 1913, a resolution passed the United States House of Representatives and the Senate commending Mother's Day for observance by the House and Senate, the President of the United States and his Cabinet and other heads of Government departments. In 1913 the Legislature of Nebraska made Mother's Day a State flag day in honor of the patriotism of Nebraska's true homes and mothers.

In 1914, Hon. J. Thomas Heflin, at the request of the founder of Mother's Day, Miss Anna Jarvis, introduced in the House of Representatives a joint resolution (which was agreed to) whereby the President of the United States should designate, through an annual proclamation, the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day, and "request the display of the American flag on all Government buildings, homes and other suitable places."

President Woodrow Wilson issued the first National Mother's Day proclamation on Saturday, May 9, 1914, asking that Sunday, May 10 (second Sunday in May, 1914), be observed as Mother's Day in accordance with the joint resolution of the House of Representatives. This official recognition of Congress of the Mother's Day Movement was the culmination of years of work to permanently establish a day for sons and daughters of all lands to honor their homes. The United States is the first nation of the world to give such a national, patriotic honor and tribute to its homes as "the fountain head of the State," and to its sons and daughters "for their work for the home, moral uplift and religion," for the good of the Government and humanity.

For several years it has been the custom of the Governor of almost every State in the Union to issue a Mother's Day proclamation, asking citizens, churches, homes, and organizations to enter into the spirit of the day. Former Governor Colquitt of Texas made it a practice to pardon a number of prisoners on Mother's Day.

MOTHER'S DAY INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION—This association was organized to promote and protect the celebration of Mother's Day and its work in the United States and foreign countries. Any son or daughter of any country is eligible to membership in the Mother's Day Association.

In the United States the association has among its honorary national officers President Wilson and ex-Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, and Governors, or other prominent citizens of the various States. Headquarters, 2031 N. 12th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

FATHER'S DAY.

The State of Delaware in 1913 granted a charter to Charlotte K. Kirkbride and B. Carrie Sternberg and others for the celebration under the laws of that State of "Father's Day" on the first Sunday in June of each year. In accordance with the request of these incorporators, Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, on October 2, introduced a bill in Congress providing that: "The first Sunday in June in each and every year hereafter be designated as Father's Day, upon which, as an expression of sentiment corresponding to that of Mother's Day, the rose, irrespective of color, shall be regarded as the emblem."

VITALITY OF LAST CHILDREN.

The old belief, still common among the laity, that first-born children are endowed by nature with greater vitality and longevity than last-born, has induced Dr. Alfred Ploetz of Munich, Germany, to make an exhaustive study to ascertain if this were true. He compiled the returns from a very large number of families of the nobility, and his figures show, generally speaking, that the vitality of first to ninth-born children varied very little, but that from the tenth to the nineteenth-born the mortality was markedly greater. Dr. Ploetz's figures, published in the "Archiv für Rassen und Gesellschafts-Biologie," appeared in a recent issue of the Journal of Heredity of the American Genetic Association.

In the following table Dr. Ploetz has made groupings of first-born children, second-born, and so on, and it was his object to find out how many of these died before the fifth year. Order of birth, number of children, and per cent. died, as follows:

WILLS.

A WILL OR TESTAMENT is a final disposition of a person's property, to take effect after his death. A codicil is an addition or alteration in such disposition. All persons are competent to make a will except idiots, persons of unsound mind, and infants. In many States a will of an unmarried woman is deemed revoked by her subsequent marriage. A nuncupative or unwritten will is one made orally by a soldier in active service, or by a mariner while at sea.

In most of the States a will must be in writing, signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence, and by his direction, and attested by witnesses, who must subscribe their names thereto in the presence of the testator. The form of wording a will is immaterial as long as its intent is clear.

AGE at which persons may make wills is in most of the States 21 years. Males and females are competent to make wills at 18 years in the following States: California, Connecticut, Hawaiian Islands, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah; and in the following States only females at 18 years: Colorado, District of Columbia, Illinois, Maryland, Missouri, Washington, Wisconsin.

In the following States persons of 18 years may dispose of personal property only: Alabama, Arkansas, Missouri, Oregon, Rhode Island, Virginia, West Virginia; in Georgia any one over 14 years and in Louisiana any one over 16 years is competent to make a will. In Colorado persons of 17 years, and in New York males of 18 and females of 16 years may dispose of personality. WITNESSES—Most of the States require two witnesses, except in Connecticut (3), Maine (3), Massachusetts (3), New Hampshire (3), South Carolina (3), Vermont (3).

LEGISLATION OF NEW YORK IN 1915.

LIST OF THE MORE IMPORTANT LAWS PASSED BY THE NEW YORK STATE LEGISLATURE OF 1915.

The Legislature of New York in 1915 in addition to passing laws passed an act providing for the submission to the people at the polls in 1915 a proposition to expend $27,000,000 in the further improvement of the Erie Canal, the Oswego Canal and the Champlain Canal.

The Legislature of 1915 also approved a proposed amendment to the Constitution permitting women to vote and another amendment to the Constitution making the following provisions:

In case any annual tax heretofore imposed for the payment of a debt authorized by vote of the people under the Constitution will, if continued, provide for the payment of the interest on such debt as it falls due and also the payment of the principal of such debt before it becomes due, the Legislature may amend the law by reducing the rate of such tax, provided that the same shall not be reduced below a sum sufficient to pay the interest on such debt as it falls due and also the principal of such debt when it becomes due.

The Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction to direct the Comptroller or any officer of the State to impose a tax sufficient to comply with the provisions of this section for the protection of any sinking fund of the State.

Both of these proposed amendments to the Constitution were to be submitted to the voters at the Fall election of 1915.

REVIEW OF LEGISLATION OF 1915.

(FROM REPORT PRESENTED AT THE MEETING OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION, AT SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, AUGUST 17-19, 1915.)

At the regular 1915 session in forty-three States there were introduced in rough numbers 58,600 bills, and in the three sessions of the 63d Congress 29,400 bills. It appears from the table submitted with this report (Appendix B) that the legislative mill in forty States ground out of this mass of bills over 16,000 separate statutes. Of these, Governors vetoed more than 1,000, leaving in rough numbers 15,033 which became laws.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

Important practice acts were passed in Pennsylvania, Michigan, and Vermont. The Pennsylvania act was drafted by a committee of the State Bar Association, while the Michigan and Vermont acts were the work of commissions appointed for that purpose. To simplify procedure and expedite the final determination of a case is the common purpose of these acts. None of them adopts the principles of code pleading, but each is a further modification or evolution of the modified common law systems which have always been in use in these States. The Michigan and Vermont acts abolish all the common law forms of action, except assumpsit, trespass, replevin, and ejectment (assumpsit and trespass being called contract and tort in Vermont) a step taken in Pennsylvania nearly thirty years ago. Both of these acts permit liberal amendments so that substantial sufficiency takes the place of technical nicety of form, and they also expressly provide that an action at law may be so amended or transferred as to become a bill in equity or vice versa. The Michigan act also adopts the practice long established in Pennsylvania that summary judgment may be rendered in contract actions on the plaintiff's affidavit of claim, unless the defendant files an affidavit of merits or defence. A somewhat similar provision applying to actions arising out of contract, whether in equity or at law, is found in Chapters 74 and 78 of the laws of West Virginia.

The most notable feature of the Pennsylvania act, which applies to all actions in contract or tort, except actions for libel and slander, is its extension of the use of the affidavit of defence. The act abolishes special pleadings and demurrers, extends the affidavit of defence (which has always been a characteristic and essential part of an action of assumpsit in Pennsylvania but never considered a pleading) to all actions, and confines the pleadings to the plaintiff's statement, the affidavit of defence, and, in cases in which a counter-claim or set-off has been pleaded, the plaintiff's reply thereto. Mere general denials in an affidavit or reply are insufficient, and each party must answer specifically each allegation of fact the truth of which he does not admit. Under the present practice in assumpsit it is very usual for judgment to be entered by the Prothonotary for want of an affidavit of defence or by the court for want of a sufficient affidavit; but, as recognized in the act, this practice will seldom be practicable in trespass, because the amount of the judgment can seldom be determined from the plaintiff's statement and provision is made that in such actions, on failure to file an affidavit of defence, the case shall be deemed to be at issue, but certain specified facts shall be taken to be admitted.

The Michigan act also provides that where at the close of testimony a motion is made for a directed verdict and is denied, the trial court on motion, or the Appellate Court on appeal, may render in favor of the party lawfully entitled thereto a judgment notwithstanding the verdict. Chapter 31 of the Minnesota laws is very much to the same effect, and Chapter 133 of the Wyoming laws provides that where, upon a trial a case presents only questions of law, the Judge may direct the jury to render a verdict subject to the opinion of the court, and direct judgment for either party with like effect and in like manner as if such direction had been given at the trial. These acts, in connection with a Massachusetts act of which mention is about to be made, probably represent the most important single tendency in the legislation of the present year relating to the administration of justice.

The Michigan and Minnesota acts follow the practice which has been sustained by the courts of some six or seven States; but which was, by the vote of a single Judge, held unconstitutional as applied to the Federal Courts in Slocum vs. Insurance Company, 228 U. S. 364. The strong dissenting opinion of Justice Hughes, however, has aroused much favorable comment and it is notable that the Supreme Court of Massachusetts has, since this decision, unanimously upheld the constitutionality of this practice in Bothwell vs. Railway, 115 Mass. 467. Massachusetts has, however, gone even further and has added to its legislation a provision which, it is thought, will overcome the objection discovered by the majority of the Supreme Court. The only difficulty which the majority of the court found insuperable—the lack of a verdict of a jury—is probably met by the provisions of Chapter 185 of the Massachusetts laws to the effect that:

"When exceptions to any ruling or direction of a Judge shall be alleged, or any question of law shall be reserved, in the course of a trial by jury, and the circumstances shall be such that if the ruling or direction at the trial was wrong, the verdict or finding ought to have been entered for a different party or for larger or smaller damages or otherwise than as was done at the trial, the Judge may reserve leave, with the assent of the jury, so to enter the verdict or finding, if upon the question or questions of law so raised the court shall decide that it ought to have been so entered."

As this leave is reserved at the trial and by the consent of the jury, the verdict finally entered pursuant to the leave is the jury's verdict. This practice has already been followed in the United States District Court in that State. In so far as practice in the Federal Courts is concerned the Wyoming act is perhaps not so open to the objection sustained in the Supreme Court in the Slocum case as are the Michigan and Minnesota acts.

Another Michigan act prohibits setting aside a verdict or granting a new trial on account of mere technical errors, and a Montana act simplifies procedure on appeals to the Supreme Court.

The New Jersey "Chancery act of 1915" (Chapter 116) is probably the most important passed this year affecting equity practice. It is based largely upon the English rules under the Judicature act and the new equity rules of the United States Supreme Court. The act is very short and probably its most important provision is that giving the Chancellor additional power to prescribe rules "to give effect to the provisions of this act, and otherwise to simplify procedure in the Court of Chancery. Such rules shall supersede (so far as they conflict with) statutory and other regulations heretofore existing."

Act No. 381 of the Pennsylvania laws makes a radical change in the theory of equity practice, although its practical effect may not be so great. The act provides that a suit in equity may be begun as in an action at law by summons without first filing a bill. It might be noted in this connection that, while a bill in equity may be served by any one, a summons must be served by the Sheriff.

Chapter 111 of the Massachusetts laws, relating to the dismissal of frivolous appeals, provides that whenever an appeal is claimed after the entry of a decree following a rescript from the full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court in equity or probate proceedings, the Justice by whose order the decree was entered may order the appeal dismissed if, in his opinion, the decree conforms to the terms of the rescript and the appeal is claimed for purposes of delay. If a further appeal is claimed from an order so dismissing an appeal it shall not operate to suspend or supersede the carrying into effect of the terms of the decree.

Of the acts relating to the service of process Montana provides that if none of the persons named in the act can be found within the State service of a summons against a corporation may be made upon the Secretary of State, who shall accept on behalf of the corporation. North Carolina authorizes the service of "subpoenas and summonses for jurors" by telephone.

A number of acts relate to trial of cases. Perhaps the most radical of these is in Pennsylvania, which authorizes in any action at law a written demand by either party for a jury trial and further provides that if neither party files such a demand, he shall be deemed to forfeit "his right and the Court shall proceed to try the cause without a jury." A California act adds as new methods of waiving trial by jury in certain actions a failure to announce at a given time that a jury is required and a failure to decide the jury fees. South Dakota provides for a verdict by five-sixths of a jury in civil cases.

Nebraska passed another radical act. It provides that every litigant shall be deemed to have excepted to any judgment, order, or other ruling made at any state of a case or proceeding, and material and prejudicial to his substantial rights, and that he shall not be required, in order to preserve his rights, to actually take or cause to be noted upon the record any such exception. This permission to raise objections not noticed at the trial seems to open the way to the multiplication of appeals. Less open to criticism is Chapter 245 of the same State, which provides that where an objection to the admission of testimony has been made once and overruled by the Court, it shall be unnecessary to repeat the same objection to further testimony of the same sort by the same witness in order to save the error, if any, in the ruling of the Court whereby such subsequent testimony is received.

Of acts relating to the competency of witnesses and the admissibility of evidence, Minnesota provides that abstracts of title duly certified by a bonded abstractor or by a Registrar of Deeds may be introduced in evidence in actions in which the title to land is in controversy. In this connection it might be noted that Montana makes it a misdemeanor to compile abstracts of title for compensation without first filing a bond for the protection of any person dealing with the abstractor. An Illinois act provides that the handwriting of a deceased or absent person may be proved by the comparison of specimens of such person's handwriting whether such specimens are relative to the issue or not.

Acts passed in Kansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma provide that a continuance shall be granted whenever a party or attorney is serving as a member of the Legislature and the Oklahoma act even goes so far as to provide that a refusal to grant such a continuance shall constitute an error and entitle the party to a new trial as a matter of right. These acts are in marked contrast to the English practice, where such continuances are never granted. American courts have always been most lenient in the matter of continuances on the grounds of public engagements, and it would seem that the legislators have gone out of their way to provide for their own convenience at the expense of the speedy administration of justice.

The acts providing new remedies are not of great importance, but a few deserve mention. Nebraska creates a physician's lien against any party, except claimants under the Workmen's Compensation act. Montana provides for liens upon growing crops and grain for the price of seeds furnished for the production of such crops and for the compensation of threshermen. Utah amends the sections of the civil code relating to the specific performance of contracts so that such sections will also cover contracts in writing to sell or deliver personal property, securities, and other choses in action. New Jersey authorizes the garnishment of wages for debt where the wages amount to $18 a week. Ohio authorizes the attachment of the amount covered by an insurance policy for injury or damage to person or property or an execution of judgment for damages or injury to the person or property covered by the insurance.

A Missouri act provides that in an action for damages against joint tort-feasors the plaintiff may settle with and discharge and release from further liability any of the defendants without impairing his right to demand and collect the balance of the claim from the other joint tort-feasors. A provision in this act, that the defendants in such a judgment shall be subject to contribution and other consequences of such judgment in the same manner as defendants in a judgment founded on contract, is a radical departure from the generally accepted principles of law. The act gives a release a standing in a tort case which heretofore it had only had collaterally as an incident of covenant not to sue.

Massachusetts provides that a failure to comply with the laws relating to the regulation and equipment of motor vehicles shall not be a defence in actions of tort. This act is designed to protect the rights of innocent passengers in motor vehicles, and to remedy the situation created by a series of decisions to the effect that any person riding in an automobile, the operation of which did not in every respect comply with the law, was a trespasser on the public highways, and entitled only to the rights of a trespasser.

South Dakota provides that before any action for libel other than a libel of a female can be brought against a newspaper the plaintiff must give at least three days' notice, and if the statements were published in good faith and a retraction is made, as prescribed by the act, punitive damages cannot be recovered.

Act No. 140 of the Vermont laws is an interesting example of an attempt to remedy a serious complaint that persons suffering damages done by floating lumber had been unable to get reasonable satisfaction in the hands of the courts. Jurisdiction of the assessment of such damages is transferred to the Public Service Commission, and the act provides that findings shall be final and without appeal and shall be entered upon the court records as a judgment.

A curious and unnecessary statutory requirement is found in a Pennsylvania act (No. 138) which requires that in every county containing more than 40,000 persons who emigrated from Germany, or more than 40,000 persons who emigrated from Italy, or more than 40,000 Yiddish speaking persons who emigrated from Europe, legal notices required to be published in a newspaper in the English language, shall also be published in one German daily newspaper, and one Italian daily newspaper, and one Yiddish daily newspaper. An attack upon the constitutionality of this act has already been sustained in the lower courts.

The most important legislation affecting practice and procedure in probate matters is a Massachusetts act relating to proceedings in Probate Courts, and a Texas act relating to wills probated in another jurisdiction.

Massachusetts changes in many respects the proceedings in the Probate Courts and gives such courts jurisdiction as in equity of many rights and duties. Legacies may be recovered and claims may be enforced in the Probate Court in the same manner as under a decree in equity. An interesting feature of the act is that power is conferred upon the Supreme Court to fix by rule from time to time the rate of interest to be allowed upon pecuniary legacies.

Texas authorizes an executor under a foreign will to sell and convey without any further order from a court of that State real and personal property situated in the State when authorized to do so by the will, if such will has been properly probated in a court having jurisdiction thereof. This act, which also validates all such sales and conveyances heretofore made, is novel in its terms and should be warmly welcomed by the practicing lawyer who has often had occasion to realize the lack of interstate comity in this field of the law. A Delaware act, which provides that a will of a non-resident admitted to probate outside the State shall be admitted to probate in the State when a verified certified copy of the record of its filing has been recorded within the State, is also a step in this direction.

Utah provides that court orders for the sale of real property may allow such sale to be made on credit if in the opinion of the Court it is beneficial to the estate.

Kansas requires executors and administrators to make final settlement before the Probate Court within thirty days after the expiration of two years from their qualification under penalty of the assessment upon them of all costs connected with the settlement on a citation by the Court.

Chapter 383 of New Jersey, which authorized dispensing with publication and notice when the personal estate is not more than $500, is an example of a tendency to dispense with formalities in the case of small estates.

Acts were passed in North Dakota and Indiana relating to the transfer of prosecutions from one Judge to another. The Indiana act contains a novel provision, permitting the prosecuting attorney and the defendant to agree in open court upon some Judge or member of the bar of any court of the State, and compelling the Judge in such a case to appoint that person as Judge in the trial. But in the absence of an agreement, if the Judge on the bench is disqualified, or for any other reason unable to serve, the Court in five days shall nominate five competent and disinterested persons, each a Judge or member of the bar, the Prosecutor and the defendant may each strike off two names from the list presented by the Court, and the remaining nominee shall serve as Judge.

Several interesting acts were passed relating to the rights of defendants and accused persons. Chapter 124 of the North Carolina laws makes it a misdemeanor for any officer to require any person charged with a criminal offence to appear in court for trial in any other apparel than ordinary civilian's dress or with head shaved or cropped, unless so shaved or cropped while the person was serving a term of imprisonment for the commission of a crime. Chapter 157 of the Nevada laws adds to the law, making a defendant in a criminal case a competent witness for himself, a proviso to the effect that no special instruction shall be given relating exclusively to the testimony of the defendant or particularly directing the attention of the jury to the defendant's testimony. An Ohio act makes it a misdemeanor for any one having the custody of a person suspected or accused of a crime to refuse to permit such person to consult privately at any reasonable hour with an attorney-at-law for the purpose of enabling such person to employ such attorney, or with an attorney employed by such person. Chapter 96 of the New Hampshire laws amends the Juvenile Court act so as to prohibit publication even of the names of juvenile offenders, publication of proceedings having already been prohibited.

Act No. 214 of the Pennsylvania laws requires Magistrates, upon the preliminary hearing of a person charged with any but the most serious crimes and misdemeanors, to hear on his demand the accused or witnesses in his behalf. The acknowledged purpose of this latter act is to give persons arrested on charges of a sort which are very apt to be dropped at a later date an opportunity to set their side of the story into the newspapers at the same time as the original publication of the charges brought against them.

The death penalty was abolished in North Dakota, Oregon, and South Dakota, except that under the North Dakota act a person convicted of murder in the first degree, while under a life sentence for the same crime, may be punished by death. The North Dakota act, which provides that the punishment for murder in the first degree shall be life imprisonment also provides that no person shall be eligible to pardon, except in cases in which the Pardon Board is satisfied of his innocence, until he shall have been confined in the penitentiary for 50% of the time of his life expectancy as based on the latest tables of mortality. Chapter 65 of the New Hampshire laws provides that if a jury finds a defendant guilty of murder in the first degree the punishment shall be life imprisonment unless the jury adds the words "with capital punishment." If the defendant pleads guilty of murder in the first degree the Court may impose a sentence of imprisonment for life or submit to a jury the question whether it shall be imprisonment for life or capital punishment. Chapter 87 of the laws of Wyoming authorizes the jury in cases involving capital punishment to qualify their verdict by adding thereto "without capital punishment," and an Arkansas act gives the jury a similar discretion.

Chapter 339 of the Kansas laws provides that no defendant acquitted on the ground of insanity shall be liberated except on an order of the State Board of Correction that he is wholly restored to his right mind and that no one will be injured by his discharge. Laws providing for indeterminate sentences were passed in New York and Montana, and the New York act and Chapter 1156 of the Rhode Island laws also provide for the parole of prisoners. An advisory pardon board to assist the Governor at his request was established in California. The Kansas act makes it a misdemeanor for the Governor or the State to expose a paroled or discharged prisoner as such in order to extort money or prevent his obtaining employment.

Chapter 93 of the New Jersey laws, an act recommended by the State Bar Association, creates a Council of Judicial Procedure, consisting of the Chancellor and one Vice-Chancellor named by him, the Chief Justice and one Associate Justice named by the Supreme Court, the Attorney-General and three counsellors-at-law designated by the Governor. It is the duty of the council to consider the operation of and defects in the statutes and rules of court relating to judicial procedure and report thereon to the Governor and the Legislature, and, at least once in every two years, to recommend any amendments, additions or alterations which in their judgment are expedient.

A Michigan act to expedite judicial administration which provides for the election of a Presiding Circuit Judge to apportion the work of each circuit and assign the Judges where needed, and a Missouri act, which makes the Judges of each Circuit Court a commission for their respective court to select the opinions to be published in the official reports of the State and to supervise the preparation of the syllabi of those opinions, seem commendable steps in the right direction. A Nebraska act relieves the Supreme Court from writing opinions except in cases involving new points of law or those which are reversed.

Chapter 284 of the New York laws amends the New York City Charter by abolishing the office of Coroner and creating in its place that of Chief Medical Examiner. The New York Industrial Commission act also makes an interesting change in the jurisdiction of the courts and one which is in accord with the most advanced ideas in the field of labor legislation. This act provides that the question of the validity of any provision of the labor laws or of any rules or orders made thereunder cannot be raised as a defence but can only be tested in a special action for that purpose to be brought in the Supreme Court, and in the case of rules and orders such an action can only be brought after petition and hearing before the Industrial Commission, thus making available for the courts a full investigation of the matters involved.

A Nebraska act shows another phase of the effort to improve the methods of the administration of justice. This act creates in counties having a population of 100,000 or more the office of Public Defender to defend all persons charged with any offence which is capital or punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary and who are unable to procure counsel. The limitations provided in this act suggest the question whether, as has already been brought out in the report of at least one public defender, there is not even greater need of such an office for the defence of those charged with petty offences.

Massachusetts is one of the States in which the rules governing the admission of attorneys are largely controlled by legislation. The law authorizes the Board of Bar Examiners to make rules, but these are sometimes changed by the Legislature, and this year, in answer to the new rules of the examiners requiring all applicants to take a preliminary examination of a general character, the Legislature has enacted that an applicant who is a college graduate or who has complied with the requirements of a day or evening high school or school of equal grade shall not be required to take an examination as to his general education. This act is regarded in some quarters as an unfortunate interference with the endeavor of the board to raise the standard for admission to the bar. Along somewhat the same lines is Chapter 18 of the Montana laws, which provides that a diploma from the department of law of the State university shall entitle the holder to a license to practise law without further examination.

An interesting bit of special legislation relating to the same subject is found in Chapter 77 of the laws of Tennessee which removes the disability of infamy of Miss R. F. so as to permit her to practise law before she reaches the age of 21.

Act No. 154 of the Pennsylvania laws, which gives an attorney a lien for compensation for services upon his client's cause of action and attaching to any award, order, report, decision, compromise, settlement, verdict or judgment in the client's favor and the proceeds thereof in whosoever's hands the same may be, has been severely criticised in the report of the Committee of Legislation of the Law Association of Philadelphia. In the absence of provisions for supervisory control by the Court over the amount of the fee it subjects clients to disadvantages at the hands of certain classes of practitioners and it also tends to put the relation of attorney and client on a business basis and to obscure and weaken the relationship as one of confidence and trust.

Among the acts relating to the conduct of attorneys are No. 393 of the laws of Pennsylvania, which makes it a misdemeanor for attorneys to receive compensation for insurance sold to or solicited from clients and in some instances fellow-attorneys; Chapter 63 of the laws of Oregon, which makes it a misdemeanor for attorneys or other persons to in any way advertise for business in divorce matters; and Chapter 259 of the laws of Oregon, which provides that a member of the bar shall be disbarred whenever it appears that his conduct has been such that if he were applying for admission his application should be denied. A Missouri act (p. 99) which prohibits the practice of law without a license and provides that no association or corporation may secure such a license defines law business as the advising or counseling for a valuable consideration of any person, firm, association or corporation as to any secular law or the drawing or the procuring of or assisting in the drawing for a valuable consideration of any paper, document or instrument affecting or relating to secular rights or the doing of any act for a valuable consideration in a representative capacity.

EDUCATION.

Compulsory education laws were passed in Texas and in Florida and South Carolina.

A State bureau of vocational education was created in Pennsylvania and Nebraska and Vermont provided for the establishment of vocational schools.

Kansas created a State department of education and California authorized the State board to determine the course of study in high schools and to withhold State subsidy from high schools whose courses were not approved by the board.

Illinois appropriated $5,000,000 for its State university. This is probably the largest sum ever appropriated in one year to a single institution of higher learning in this country. Texas proposed a constitutional amendment authorizing the creation of a students' loan fund, authorizing counties to lend money to students to complete their education.

ELECTIONS.

QUALIFICATIONS OF ELECTORS.

Constitutional amendments authorizing woman suffrage were proposed in Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and West Virginia. The Massachusetts resolution expressly authorizes women to be members of committees to favor or oppose this amendment, thereby removing all doubt of their right so to serve under the Corrupt Practices act.

A constitutional amendment requiring a property qualification for electors on propositions to incur public debt is proposed in Washington.

The voter who changes his residence within fifteen days prior to election day in Vermont may vote in the town from which he removes. Connecticut authorizes a voter to retain for six months for the purpose of voting a residence in a town from which he removes, and meanwhile he is regarded as a resident of the town to which he removes for the purpose of becoming a voter there. A similar provision is contained in California.

Qualified voters absent from their residential precincts are authorized to vote elsewhere in the State in Colorado, Michigan, Montana, and Washington. Texas proposes a constitutional amendment authorizing absentee voting for State officers or on referendum, and Massachusetts calls for a report from the Attorney-General and the Secretary of the Commonwealth on the feasibility and desirability of legislation permitting absentee voting.

ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATOR.

An act of Congress requires United States Senators to be elected at regular elections for Congress next preceding the expiration of a Senator's term and makes temporary provision for nominations and elections until the State Legislatures provide therefor. Legislation providing for the election of United States Senators was enacted in many of the States.

NON-PARTISAN ELECTION OF JUDGES.

Separate ballots for judicial candidates in cities of 200,000 are required in Illinois and Wyoming. These acts provide that Judges shall be nominated regardless of political affiliation on "judicial ballots" at the general primary.

PARTY ORGANIZATION AND ELECTIONS.

Party committees of all kinds are to be elected by party vote in Indiana. A State central committee composed of district chairmen from each Congressional district is vested with the administrative power under the law. This law also provides that candidates for all offices except State offices and Presidential electors are to be chosen by direct primary, but preferential vote for candidates for President, Vice-President, United States Senator, and Governor is authorized.

West Virginia provides for nomination by direct primary of State and county executive committees, delegates to National conventions and all candidates for office except specified judicial offices, Presidential candidates and electors, and officers in small cities.

A new Primary act in South Dakota repealed the Richards Primary law, initiated and enacted by the people in 1913, and restored the 1909 law with amendments. The proponents of the Richards law are expected to ask the courts to pass on the power of the Legislature to repeal the initiated measure.

California enacted a new Direct Primary law. Oregon provided for the election of delegates to National conventions, nomination of Presidential electors, and for expression of choice of candidates for President and Vice-President.

Washington regulates party committees, conventions, etc., and gives a place on the official ballot to any political organization which polled 10% of the vote at the previous general election and which has held a State convention prior to July 10 and declared its political principles and legislative programme.

Vermont enacted a Primary law with a curious referendum provision. If the act is approved by the people it takes effect 1916, and if rejected it takes effect 1927.

Kansas provides as an alternative for nomination by petition a system for individual declaration of intention to become a candidate. At the time of making his declaration the prospective candidate must pay an "entry fee." For United States Senator, State offices, and certain listed offices the entry fee is 1% of one year's salary. For the minor offices the entry fee runs as low as 50 cents.

Campaign expenditures of any party for a single campaign are limited to $15,000 in Nevada. Kansas limits a candidate's expenditures, exclusive of travel expense, to 10% of the office salary for the first year, with a minimum of $50. This act requires candidates owning newspapers to take into account "all personal references at the same rate as charged other candidates." Kansas prohibits any candidate or organization to provide conveyances to take voters to the polls.

INITIATIVE, REFERENDUM, AND RECALL.

Constitutional amendments authorizing the initiative and referendum were proposed in Minnesota and North Dakota.

For the purpose of preventing fraudulent petitions setting in motion the initiative, referendum, and recall Washington requires that such petitions shall contain a warning against signing by persons not legal voters or by other than their true names, and requires a detailed certification by the precinct registration officer that all the signers identify themselves and sign in his presence at his office. This bill was bitterly opposed by the radicals in the Legislature.

California penalizes frauds in connection with initiative, referendum, or recall petitions and makes it a felony punishable by one to fifteen years' imprisonment to subscribe a fictitious name or the name of another to such petitions.

Nevada provides for referendum on local and special legislation to the voters of the county affected. Laws so adopted are to remain in force until repealed by direct vote of the county.

Improvement in the form of initiated bills is provided for in California, which requires the legislative counsel to co-operate in the preparation of such measures on request of twenty-five electors, and which requires the Attorney-General to prepare a title and summary for initiated measures.

REVISION AND AMENDMENT OF STATE CONSTITUTIONS.

The question of calling a constitutional convention was submitted to the voters in New Hampshire, South Dakota, and Tennessee. If authorized, the New Hampshire convention will meet in 1918, and the Tennessee convention November 15, 1916. Tennessee also provides that amendments recommended by the convention shall be submitted separately.

At the regular session in New Jersey an amendment revising the article describing the method of amending the Constitution was submitted, but at a special session this act was repealed and in its place a detailed amendment (Chapter 2) describing procedure for submission of proposed amendments was enacted.

A large number of specific amendments were proposed in various States. These are noted in connection with the legislation dealing with the subject matters to which they refer.

UNIFORM STATE LAWS.

Bills recommended by the Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws were passed as follows:

Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act—Oklahoma, Idaho (Chapter 31), Arkansas.

Uniform Bills of Lading Act—Vermont, Idaho (Chapter 16).

Uniform Desertion and Non-Support Act—Vermont (Chapter 101).

Uniform Workmen's Compensation Act—With slight modifications, Vermont (Chapter 164).

Uniform Partnership Act—Pennsylvania, Wisconsin.

Uniform Sales Act—Pennsylvania, Nevada.

Uniform Probate of Wills Act—Nevada.

Uniform Acknowledgment of Deeds Act—Wisconsin.

Uniform Marriage Act—Wisconsin.

In addition to these uniform bills several model bills recommended by various organizations were enacted, e. g., the Blue Sky law, drafted by a conference of State Attorney-Generals; the Mobile Fraternal Insurance bill and the Uniform Mutual Insurance act. All of these are included in this review under the subject matter to which they relate.

TAXATION.

From its very nature most tax legislation is of merely local interest. Only a few acts are of general interest.

The most evident tendency in tax legislation is toward the centralization in a State board of general control and supervision over the assessment and collection of all taxes, including the property tax.

Among the more important of the laws imposing taxes might be mentioned two Oklahoma acts providing for an inheritance tax and a graduated income tax respectively, the Kansas and South Dakota acts imposing inheritance taxes, the Connecticut, South Dakota, and West Virginia acts, all of which provide complete systems of corporate taxation, and the Massachusetts and Pennsylvania acts which impose stock transfer taxes. A Pennsylvania act, which is of some importance, inasmuch as its effect will be felt beyond the boundaries of the State enacting it, imposes upon every ten of anthracite coal a tax of 2½% of its value when prepared for the market. Most of the important legislation enacted at the special session of the Virginia Legislature this year relates to taxation and constitutes a revision of practically all the tax laws of the State.

The most important constitutional amendment relating to this subject which was proposed this year is the Massachusetts resolve which would authorize the Legislature to impose and levy a tax on incomes which may be graduated according to whether the income is derived from property or not, or according to the class of property from which it is derived, and permit the exemption from taxation of any property the income from which is taxed. A special investigating commission was also created to recommend changes in the tax laws generally and to draft laws in anticipation of the adoption of this amendment.

Special commissions to study taxation and report at the next session were created in California, Indiana, and New York.

MILITARY AND NAVAL AFFAIRS.

Acts of Congress provide for the raising organization, and maintenance of a volunteer army in time of actual or threatened war and for the organization of an aviation section of the Signal Corps.

A State National Guard Reserve is created in New York, which provides that officers and enlisted men who have served in the regular army or navy or in any State militia may be commissioned or enrolled on the reserve list, from which they may be arbitrarily ordered into active service. Massachusetts created a special board to report on the practicability of providing military education for boys and of creating a military reserve.

Acts of Congress created a Chief of Naval Operations, charged with operations of the fleet and with preparation and readiness of plans for its use in war; provided for the organization of a naval militia; created a naval reserve consisting of citizens honorably discharged from the Navy, who are to receive compensation not exceeding $100 a year when not actively employed in the Navy and to perform in times of peace not less than one month nor more than two months' service on board a naval vessel; combined the Life-Saving Service and Revenue Cutter Service into a Coast Guard under the Treasury in time of peace and under the Navy in time of war; and conferred the title of Admiral on the Commanders-in-Chief of the Atlantic, Pacific, and Asiatic fleets.

A Pennsylvania act reorganized the National Guard to conform as far as practicable to the requirements of the organized militia under the laws of the United States.

CONSERVATION.

In Indiana four voluminous acts one of which is a general act and the other three of which apply to the cities of Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, and Peru, provide for the straightening, widening, and deepening of streams and water courses, the enlargement of dikes and levees and the construction of other improvements necessary to prevent such destruction from floods as the State has experienced in the past. A detailed act for the organization and administration of levee and improvement districts to prevent overflow was also passed in Texas.

New York passed an important act looking to the construction of storage reservoirs to regulate the flow of rivers largely for the purpose of creating water power. The act provides for the formation of districts which must include the whole watershed of a river or of a tributary, and while the affairs of each district are to be managed by a local board, the whole system is placed under the supervision of the State authorities. The expense of construction and maintenance is to be assessed according to benefits, but provision is also made for the issuance of bonds. In Vermont a commission was created to investigate and report upon the advisability of State storage reservoirs for water power and flood prevention purposes, and in New Hampshire the Governor was authorized to investigate available water power in the State and to co-operate with the geological survey.

Comprehensive irrigation laws were passed in Oklahoma and California providing in detail for the organization and administration of irrigation districts, and the scope of the California act also includes water power.

In Utah a commission to investigate the subject of irrigation and water rights was created, and the California Legislature memorialized the Federal Government to adopt a fixed policy regarding the development of oil lands. The resolution recites that the development of the oil business in that State is hampered by the existing condition of Federal law and regulation.

LIQUOR LAWS—PROHIBITION.

Constitutional amendments to establish State-wide prohibition were proposed by laws enacted in Colorado, Idaho, and South Dakota. The manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors was prohibited in Arkansas, Colorado, Idaho, Oregon, and Washington. In the latter State the law adopted was an initiated measure. Prohibition acts were referred to the voters in Montana and South Carolina, and Local Option laws were passed in Minnesota and South Dakota.

Alabama forbade advertisements of the manufacture or sale of liquor, and also in furtherance of the Webb-Kenyon act prohibited their shipment into the State.

Kansas made owners of premises where liquors are sold liable for damages caused by intoxicated persons who obtain liquor on such premises, such damages to be a lien on the premises as soon as suit is filed. In the same State cities are made liable for damages caused by intoxicated persons, but good faith on the part of State officers in the enforcement of liquor laws or lack of knowledge of the sale of liquor is a good defense.

HEALTH AND SANITATION.

A State Department of Health under control of a Commissioner and a "public health council" composed of physicians of five years' practice is created in West Virginia and given wide powers, including power to prosecute for violations if the Prosecuting Attorney fails to act, and to apply to the courts for injunctions.

Provision for the collection of vital statistics is contained in laws passed in Illinois and California.

A number of laws having for their object the control of communicable diseases were passed. Physicians are required to report venereal diseases in Connecticut and Vermont. The Vermont act also punishes severely any person suffering from such diseases who marries. An Ohio act (§1275 Code), while making wilful betrayal by a physician of a professional secret such unprofessional conduct as to justify a refusal of a license, expressly provides that a physician who informs a party to a contemplated marriage of the fact that the other party is suffering from such a disease is not to be deemed guilty of betrayal of a professional secret and shall not be liable in damages.

To prevent the spread of tuberculosis Indiana enacted an important law requiring physicians to report cases to a State board, and county health authorities to report monthly the condition of such cases. Premises occupied by tubercular persons must be disinfected on their removal.

A New Hampshire law provides that any person believing that a member of his family has any one of listed diseases shall, if no physician be in attendance, immediately notify the local Board of Health.

The sale or transfer of narcotic or habit-forming drugs is regulated and restricted in Colorado, Idaho, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, South Dakota, Utah, and Vermont.

Regulations of the professions dealing with the health of persons are contained in a number of acts. Massachusetts adds to the qualifications of physicians "the degree of doctor of medicine or its equivalent from a legally chartered medical school," and requires for dentists "a diploma from the faculty of a reputable dental college as defined by this act." The practice of dentistry is also regulated by acts passed in Arkansas, California, and New Jersey.

Chiropractics are regulated and provision made for licensing in Nebraska, North Dakota, and Oregon. A New Jersey act aims at the prohibition of chiropractics.

The practice of optometry is regulated by Minnesota, Tennessee, and Utah.

Nursing is regulated by Connecticut, Colorado, Maine, Ohio, and Tennessee.

Physicians and surgeons are forbidden to split fees except with the full knowledge of the patient by a Kansas act.

Chiropody is regulated by Connecticut, which forbids the use of "doctor" by chiropodists.

The common drinking cup and towel are banished from public places by Rhode Island, New Hampshire, and Pennsylvania. Sterilization of dishes used in public eating houses "in hot boiling water changed every two hours" is required in Texas. Pennsylvania prohibits the employment in hotels and public eating places of persons suffering from specified diseases. A similar rule for laundries, and detailed sanitary regulations for canning factories, were enacted in Delaware.

The manufacture and sale of mattresses and bedding are regulated in the interest of public health by Massachusetts, Colorado, California, Connecticut, Montana, and Oregon. These laws follow a model bill on this subject previously enacted in other States. It is evidently one of those bills prepared and advocated by some organized group.

The bill regulating the size of sheets in hotels and lodging houses, often cited by critics of legislation as a ridiculous instance of detailed legislation, was adopted this year in Indiana. Despite the undesirability of clogging our statute books with such details, the enactment of desirable sanitary rules will be an important duty of the Legislature until adequate power to make and enforce detailed rules of this sort is delegated to our administrative officials. Such delegations tend to increase in number and importance, and the courts are growing more lenient in dealing with their constitutionality under the rule that delegations of legislative power are void.

PURE FOOD LAWS.

A large number of this year's statutes deal with regulations enacted to secure the public against impure and adulterated foods. Necessarily, only a few of these can be mentioned here.

The ingredients which may be used in bread sold by the loaf are designated in Massachusetts, and it is required that the presence of other materials, if any, be stated on a label.

California enacted an interesting law requiring the marking of wrappers or containers of butter and eggs imported into the State from outside the United States and the display of a sign by persons selling such butter.

Similarly Oregon and Washington require the classification and branding of eggs as "storage," "preserved," or "foreign," and require hotels and public houses using "foreign" eggs to display conspicuously a sign "we use foreign eggs."

Conspicuous marking of cold-storage eggs is required in Rhode Island and Minnesota. The latter act makes it a misdemeanor to sell or advertise cold-storage eggs without informing a prospective purchaser that they are cold storage.

Pasteurization of milk is required in New Jersey and in California unless the cows have passed the tuberculin test.

SOCIAL LEGISLATION.

Pensions to widowed, divorced or abandoned mothers to enable them to provide for dependent children in their own homes are provided for in Nebraska, Wyoming, Washington, Montana, Oklahoma, North Dakota, South Dakota, New Hampshire, Tennessee, and Nevada.

New York (Chapter 238) provides for the organization of county boards of child welfare to grant allowances to widowed mothers with one or more children. Detail provision is made for the organization of the board and for its procedure in securing and distributing the public funds, but there is no compulsion on county fiscal authorities to provide funds. Commissions to investigate and report to the next Legislature were authorized in Florida and in Indiana.

Regulations for the treatment of newly born infants' eyes in the interest of conserving eyesight are prescribed in New Hampshire, California, Illinois, and Nebraska. Indiana established an industrial board to aid the blind, and Maine and New Hampshire provide for financial assistance to needy blind not inmates of institutions. Missouri proposed a constitutional amendment authorizing pensions to blind persons.

A commission to investigate the condition of the feeble-minded was created in Utah, and a comprehensive measure for their relief was enacted in Illinois. Nebraska required sterilization before their parole or discharge from State institutions.

California provides for an unpaid county board of public welfare with power to investigate charitable institutions and jails. The board must be appointed on petition of 100 electors.

Pennsylvania passed a Housing act for Philadelphia, while New York repealed a comprehensive Social Class Cities Housing act which, though passed two years ago, had never been in force because of legislative postponement of the time of its taking effect. Massachusetts prohibited "sleeping compartments built on the cubical plan" in lodging houses.

Regulations in the interest of more effective control of disorderly houses through power to enjoin or abate them as moral nuisances were passed in Idaho, Michigan, Colorado, and Indiana.

Money lenders are required to be licensed by Ohio where more than 8% per annum is charged. This act also limits the maximum charge, including interest, to 3% per month. Nebraska limits maximum interest to 10%. A Pennsylvania act, after a long preamble recting the evils of the business, regulates the lending of money in sums of less than $300. Similar "Loan Shark" acts were passed in Michigan, Oregon, and Texas.

Provision for the trial of juvenile delinquents in juvenile courts is made in South Dakota, California, Rhode Island, and West Virginia. West Virginia also authorizes courts to suspend sentence of minors found guilty of non-capital offences and to parole them. Tennessee provides that children convicted of crime shall not be declared infamous within the operation of statutes relating to infamous crimes. Maine authorizes the commitment of delinquent children to correctional institutions or to individuals willing to support them.

LABOR LEGISLATION—ADMINISTRATIVE ORGANIZATION.

Connecticut consolidated the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the office of Factory Inspector in a Department of Labor and Factory Inspection.

Nevada created an industrial commission for the administration of the Workmen's Compensation act and provided that one of the Commissioners should hold the office of Labor Commissioner for the enforcement of the Labor laws.

New York consolidated the Workmen's Compensation Commission and the Labor Department under an Industrial Commission. The provisions of this act are confined to administrative organization and procedure for the enforcement of the Labor laws and the Compensation law. Particular powers are given to the commission to make rules and regulations, to vary in cases of hardship statutory provisions and to hear and determine in the first instance all cases involving validity of the labor statutes or the rules and orders made by the commission. The Compensation Commission prior to the enactment of this law had power to hear and determine compensation claims subject to limited appeal to the courts. This law extends the power to the whole field covered by the State Labor laws. The commission's decision is subject to court review on appeal within thirty days. Failure to bring a question of validity of the law or the commission's orders before the commission or to appeal from its decision waives the right to raise the question of validity in a prosecution for violation. In general, the act is in accord with laws in Wisconsin, Ohio, and a few other States which have created industrial commissions with powers similar to those exercised by public utility commissions.

HOURS AND WAGES.

Six o'clock closing in all mercantile and commercial houses, except six days preceding Christmas, is required in Utah.

The nine-hour day and the fifty-four-hour week for women and children is required in Arkansas, Maine, Nebraska, Oklahoma, and Texas. The limit is made ten hours a day and fifty-six hours a week in Wyoming. The fight of the canning industries to escape the restrictions of limited hours for women and children resulted in the exemption of these industries in Tennessee, and they are also exempted from the Maine act.

Wages in private employments are required to be paid semi-monthly on regular pay days in money or checks, California. Corporations are required to pay wages semi-monthly in Kansas and weekly in Maine. Railroads are required to pay semi-monthly in Iowa and North Carolina and public service corporations semi-monthly in Minnesota.

South Carolina makes it a misdemeanor to acquire at less than par trade checks given in payment of wages and provides that there shall be no right to collect or enforce checks so acquired.

Assignment of the wages of a head of a family is rendered void in Nebraska unless executed and acknowledged by husband and wife as in the case of real estate conveyances.

The Minimum Wage law for women was amended in California and a new law enacted in Arkansas. A commission to investigate the wages of women and minors and on the advisability of establishing a minimum wage board was created in Idaho. An important act relating to hours and wages of women was enacted in Kansas. After declaring that "the State of Kansas exercising herewith its police and sovereign power declares that inadequate wages, long continued hours, and unsanitary conditions of labor exercise a pernicious effect on the health and welfare of women, learners and apprentices and minors," the act creates an industrial welfare commission and makes it unlawful to employ women or minors under conditions detrimental to their health or welfare or at wages not adequate for their maintenance or for more hours than is consistent with their health and welfare. The commission may make investigations and establish wage, hour, or sanitary boards whose recommendations, when approved by the commission, become binding on all employers in the occupations affected.

CHILD LABOR.

Delaware created a labor commission with power to supervise and investigate the employment of children and women.

Child labor acts prohibiting employment of children under 14 except in specified cases and limiting the employments in which or the circumstances under which children over 14, but under 16 (in Wyoming 18) may be employed, were passed in Alabama, Iowa, Maine, Pennsylvania, and Wyoming. Under the Pennsylvania act children between 14 and 16 are not to be employed more than 9 hours a day or 51 hours a week, and each such child must attend a vocational school at least 8 hours per week, to be deducted from the 51 hours.

SAFETY AND SANITATION.

First aid rooms or emergency kits in all manufacturing establishments where machinery is used is required in Connecticut, and in Massachusetts manufacturers are required to provide such accommodation for first aid as a State board prescribes. Executive officers of corporate employers are made personally liable for failure to comply with the Connecticut act.

Pure drinking water for employes is required to be furnished by their employers in California. Detailed provisions regulating heating, lighting and ventilating factories and guarding machinery therein were enacted in Illinois and similar provision regulating work in coal and zinc mines in Missouri. The latter act also requires employers to furnish wash-rooms and provides that a separate room be maintained for negroes. South Carolina also requires complete separation of different races laboring in textile manufacturing.

HIRING AND DISCHARGING OF EMPLOYEES.

A New York law prohibiting employment of aliens on public works was amended so as to give citizens a preference over aliens, but authorizing the employment of aliens where citizens are not available. This legislation was brought about by the necessity of employing foreigners on extensive subway construction in New York City.

No person authorized to hire or direct others is forbidden to receive any fee or gift as a condition of giving or continuing employment to any workman under penalty of punishment for misdemeanor, in California and Nevada.

Corporations are forbidden to dismiss an employe on the statement of a "spotter" without a hearing, in California, and a similar act applying to employers generally was enacted in Nevada.

A black list act in Indiana provides that employes discharged or quitting are entitled on request to a letter from their former employer "setting forth the nature and character of the service rendered and the duration of employment and stating the cause for dismissal or quitting of the service" in all cases where written recommendations or written application showing qualifications or experience were required by such employer. Refusal to give the letter is made a misdemeanor. The same Indiana act and similar acts penalize failure to pay wages of discharged employes within a specified time in Minnesota, South Carolina and Texas.

Employers are forbidden to make a rule prohibiting employes from engaging in politics or becoming candidates for public office in Nevada.

New York created a legislative committee to make a thorough revision of the State labor laws and report to the next session.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES.

Public attention was directed to the problem of unemployment by the large number of unemployed who crowded into the centres of population last winter. That this condition in the labor market was due to some extent at least to failure to bring the jobless man and the manless job together resulted in the creation of temporary public employment agencies. The propaganda to increase the importance of the securing of employment for the unemployed as a function of government has resulted in much legislation on the subject at the session this year. California, because of acute unemployment problems due to large numbers of people who go there for the winter, requested Congress to investigate unemployment and adopt remedial measures.

Free public employment offices were provided for in California, Illinois, Iowa, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. Idaho declares the duty of maintenance of suitable employment offices in the municipalities of the State to be a function of government and provides that such offices shall be established by the municipalities, and provides for the maintenance of State employment agencies for farm labor. On the theory that private employment agencies have been used to the detriment of the laboring classes and have become social nuisances, an act was initiated and adopted at the last general election in Washington, prohibiting under penalty collection of remuneration or fees by such agencies.

The business of such agencies was regulated generally in Nebraska, Oregon, Pennsylvania, and Texas. Idaho forbids further maintenance of private employment offices within the State except charitable offices and agencies for professional employment. The Oregon act makes it a misdemeanor for the employer to request an agent for laborers and then refuse to accept such laborers or to discharge them without cause. Oregon and Nebraska acts make it a misdemeanor for an employer to divide with an employment agent fees paid by applicants. The Texas act and a Connecticut act require the agent to return fees paid by applicants if they fail to obtain jobs within a specified time.

Commissions to investigate unemployment were provided for in California and Illinois.

Emergency public employment is provided for by Idaho by an act which requires County Commissioners to provide not more than sixty days' emergency employment a year for United States citizens resident for six months within the State.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

Compulsory acts providing compensation for injuries in hazardous employments were passed in Montana, Oklahoma, and Wyoming. Elective acts were passed in Colorado, Indiana, Maine, Pennsylvania, and Vermont. The Vermont act modeled on the uniform Compensation act recommended by the Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. The Maine act contains a curious drafting error which may necessitate a special session to amend. In some instances compensation based on weekly wages is to be determined in the phraseology of the act on the basis of 300 times "weekly" wages when 300 times daily wages was evidently intended.

Securing to the injured workman or his dependents the compensation due under the act has become the most important problem of compensation legislation. The Wyoming act creates a State insurance fund and the Colorado and Pennsylvania acts provide for State insurance as one of the alternative methods of insuring the compensation liability under the act.

Insurance provisions also constitute the most important amendments to existing compensation acts. Michigan transferred the administration of the State insurance fund from the Compensation Commission to the State Insurance Department. West Virginia (and one of the extraordinary sessions) require that the State fund pay its expenses out of the fund without contribution by the State and also require it to set up reserves. Both of these provisions are, of course, intended to make the State fund compete on more equal terms with private insurance.

In New York administration of the Compensation act was transferred from a Compensation Commission to an Industrial Commission, which also administers the State Labor Department. Another New York act authorizes direct payment of compensation by the employer or his insurer to the beneficiary instead of payment to the Compensation Commission for distribution by the commission to the beneficiary. This law also authorizes direct settlements between the employer and beneficiaries subject to the approval of the commission, and Chapter 163 provides that payments made by the employer prior to an award may be credited on account of the award.

Most of the important workmen's compensation acts in this country provide for their administration by commissions with only limited review by the courts. The original Massachusetts act authorized summary procedure in the handling of compensation cases before the commission. A new act requires that such procedure shall also be "summary" which indicates that simplification of practice is not assured by substituting commissions for the courts.

Amendments to existing compensation laws were also enacted in California, Connecticut, Illinois, Minnesota, and Washington.

Constitutional amendments authorizing compulsory workmen's compensation legislation were proposed in Oklahoma and Pennsylvania, and a commission to investigate the subject was authorized in Utah.

Employers' liability laws were passed in Minnesota and North Dakota.

INSURANCE.

Mutual insurance companies to carry various kinds of risks are authorized by Illinois, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, and Washington. The comprehensive bill recommended by the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies was enacted in Indiana, which also passed the Uniform and Fraternal Insurance act, known as the Mobile bill.

Employers' mutual liability insurance companies were authorized in New Hampshire, and provision for similar mutuals is contained in several of the workmen's compensation acts, which have given great impetus to the organization of mutual insurance companies among the employers.

New Jersey authorized domestic life stock companies to change from participating to non-participating business, or vice versa, on approval of the Commissioner of Banking.

Insurance by individual concerns, known as Lloyd's, is regulated by New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Individuals and corporations are authorized to exchange reciprocal or inter-insurance contracts by Missouri and Texas.

Premiums are regulated and agents licensed by a State insurance board created in Oklahoma. Corporations are authorized to act as insurance brokers in Massachusetts.

Rebating of agents' commissions is prohibited in Maine and South Carolina. Pennsylvania made it a misdemeanor for attorneys, partners or employees to receive compensation for life insurance sold or solicited for the benefit of or on lives of their clients, partners, masters and employees, and in certain cases of fellow attorneys and fellow employees.

A standard fire policy was provided in Pennsylvania. Washington provided that no oral or written misrepresentation or warranty made in negotiating a contract of insurance shall avoid the policy unless made with intent to deceive.

Maine requires commencement of the adjustment of fire loss within twenty days after notice, but prohibits payment within forty-five days without approval of Insurance Commissioner. Payment of sickness and accident insurance is required in Massachusetts at least once in thirty days, even though not provided in the policy.

Life policies and annuities for the benefit of dependent relatives are exempt from claims of creditors in Pennsylvania "notwithstanding the right to change the beneficiary named has been reversed by the insured or is permitted by the insurer." North Dakota exempts insurance policies from the claims of creditors when the wife, children or dependent relatives of the insured are beneficiaries by its provisions.

Provisions which are everywhere put on securing to the injured employee and his dependents the compensation provided by compensation acts is illustrated in Massachusetts by a requirement that foreign insurance companies writing compensation insurance in the State give bond, conditioned on compliance with a provision that on withdrawal from such business in the State they shall deposit security for the payment of all losses insured by them.

BANKS AND BANKING.

The banking business was regulated generally and the banking laws codified in South Dakota. Montana also passed a complete act regulating the banking business and creating a State Banking Department. Laws providing for the incorporation of banks, savings banks, and trust companies, prescribing their powers and duties and providing for their regulation and control by State agencies were enacted in Washington, New Mexico, New Hampshire and Indiana.

State banks are authorized to subscribe to the Federal Reserve system and comply with its rules. Idaho, Michigan, New Mexico, Nebraska, and Kansas Federal Reserve laws are probably responsible indirectly for the number of statutes enacted this year strengthening the State control of trust companies.

Banks are forbidden in Kansas to engage in trade or commerce or to invest in the stock of other banks or corporations or to loan money on or purchase their own shares unless to prevent loss on debts previously contracted.

Provision for guarantee of bank deposits is made in Indiana and South Dakota. A bank's liability in damages for non-payment through mistake or error but without malice of a depositor's check is limited to actual damage proved, by Montana.

Malevolent circulation of false rumors with intent to injure the financial standing or reputation of banks or financial institutions or the financial standing of individuals is made a misdemeanor by Delaware and Kansas. The Kansas act also applies to any act tending to start a run on a bank.

The drawing of a check on a bank in which the drawer has no funds or credit (the latter term being defined as an arrangement with the bank for the payment of the check) is punished criminally by Kansas, North Dakota, Colorado, and Washington. An Ohio act makes it a felony to give, with intent to defraud, a check on a bank in which the drawer "never had" any funds or credit. The issuing of a check without sufficient funds to meet it is made prima facie evidence of intent to defraud in Idaho.

Banks are authorized in West Virginia to pay checks of minor depositors unless otherwise specifically directed in writing by the parent or guardian.

PUBLIC UTILITIES.

Wyoming was the only State which created a public service commission this year; but the jurisdiction of existing commissions was greatly enlarged in many cases.

Acts regulating the very recent industry of running "jitney buses" were enacted in Colorado, New York, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and Washington. These acts require in general that the persons operating motor vehicles not running on tracks and carrying passengers for pay should take out a license and conform to the regulatory provisions of the statute. Pennsylvania and Washington did not declare the "jitney bus" business a public utility, but Colorado and Tennessee (Chapter 60) specified in their acts that "jitneys" are common carriers and to be regarded as public utilities.

California defines public utilities to include common carriers, pipe lines, gas, electrical, telephone, telegraph, and water supply corporations, wharfers, and warehousemen, "where service is performed or commodity delivered to the public."

Washington (Chapter 132) declared corporations operating pipe lines for the conveyance of light and natural gas to be common carriers and subject to control and regulation by the Public Service Commission of the State. Connecticut (Chapter 65) extended the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission to include complaints by municipalities, persons or corporations whose pipes or other property are injured by electrolysis or by the escape of electricity of any public service or electric company. In Oklahoma (Chapter 178) cotton gins were declared to be public utilities and the business of ginning all seed cotton to be a public business. By the law of North Dakota (Chapter 147) regulation of corporations organized for furnishing water, gas or electricity was placed under the control of the Board of Railroad Commissioners. In Minnesota (Chapter 152) telephone companies were placed under the control and jurisdiction of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. A curious provision in Kansas (Chapter 238) makes it the duty of the Public Service Commission to require every railroad company to provide facilities for stopping every passenger train entering or leaving the State within a reasonable distance of the State line and to stop such train for sufficient time to enable passengers who care to, to enter or leave the train. It is possible that this act was intended to permit passengers to alight and purchase tickets in Kansas, thus enabling them to take advantage of cheaper fares than the regular three-cent fare in interstate traffic.

In Illinois railroads or transfer companies are given the right to sell transportation to newspapers or magazines in exchange for advertising.

A peculiar provision in Oklahoma extending the doctrine of the "Jim Crow" legislation to telephone and telegraph companies compels these companies to furnish separate booths for white and colored people where the Corporation Commission shall determine the necessity of such regulation (Chapter 262).

Of the acts authorizing municipal ownership of public utilities the most important is California, which authorizes the incorporation of public utility districts composed of municipalities of the State with extensive power to construct or acquire and operate public utilities. The act contains detailed provisions for the organization and administration of the districts.

"A Deep Waterway Canal bill" passed by the Illinois Legislature provides for the construction, management, and operation of an eight-foot canal from Lockport to Utica, thereby providing a waterway with a minimum depth of eight feet from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi River. An appropriation of $5,000,000 was made for this work and a provision inserted in the act that when the waterway shall have been completed and paid for the channel shall be tendered to the United States Government for navigation uses.

CORPORATIONS.

Of the many statutes dealing with corporations only a few deserve to be mentioned as of general interest.

New Jersey amended the famous "Seven Sisters bill" by providing that corporations may purchase securities of other corporations for investment, but not for voting purposes or to restrain trade or lessen competition.

In Colorado, where cumulative voting for directors has been in force for a number of years, a new act permits corporations existing or hereafter organized to elect not to have the cumulative system.

"Blue Sky" laws seeking to protect the investing public by regulating the sale of corporate securities were enacted in Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, North Dakota, South Carolina, South Dakota, and West Virginia, and an amending act was passed by Oregon. A criticism of these bills from the point of view of the bankers will be found in the Bulletin of the Investment Bankers' Association under date of June 12, 1915.

Corporations dealing in milk, poultry, and eggs are forbidden by Wyoming from creating a monopoly or destroying the business of competitors by discrimination. A Kansas act dealing with monopolies, which, though it applies to persons as well as corporations, will probably affect only the latter, forbids price discriminations between different parts of the State for the purpose of destroying competition. Detailed provision is made for investigation and prosecution of alleged violations. The Attorney-General is given power in case he finds that a violation was made "willful" and that the offender intends in good faith to abandon the practice complained of may "permit such person to go" without instituting prosecution. The act declares its purpose to be "regulating trade and promoting confidence in persons engaged therein." An act of Congress provides that no part of the appropriation for enforcement of anti-trust laws shall be spent in prosecution of labor or agricultural organizations.

The organization of co-operative industrial or agricultural associations was authorized in Colorado, New Mexico, Oregon, North Carolina, South Carolina, Wyoming, and Kansas.

DOMESTIC RELATIONS.

Abandonment by the husband of his wife or children is made a misdemeanor and thereafter an extraditable offence in Indiana, Illinois, Idaho, Virginia, Oklahoma, Wyoming, and Tennessee. Tennessee also makes it a felony for the husband willfully to leave the State after abandoning his wife or child with intent to leave them destitute. The offence of "cruelty and neglect of children" is defined and punished in New Jersey. This act authorizes payment to charitable organizations of fines imposed under its provisions in cases in which the organization is complainant, a practice which has developed abuses in the field of legislation protecting animals from cruelty.

Equal right to the custody of children is given to the father or mother in South Dakota and Idaho and in Maine, where the husband and wife have lived apart for a year.

A duty to support their indigent parents is placed on adult children in Massachusetts and Montana. Provision is made for proceedings in such cases similar to the usual non-support cases.

DIVORCE.

The California Legislature memorialized Congress to propose an amendment to the Constitution granting to Congress power to pass uniform divorce laws for the United States.

The Nevada law giving jurisdiction in divorce cases to the district court of the county in which the plaintiff has resided for six months before suit is brought is worthy of mention only as a step backward, as it re-establishes the prestige of Reno.

The libellant is made a competent witness generally in Pennsylvania, even though the respondent may not have been personally served and may not have resided within the State.

Colorado passed a comprehensive act specifying the grounds of divorce and procedure in divorce cases.

Divorced persons are prohibited from remarriage within six months, and the Court is authorized to prohibit the guilty party from marrying within five years, by West Virginia.

For the purpose of supervising the conduct of divorce cases, Tennessee provides for a proctor in divorce in counties of 100,000, who shall not appear for either party but shall attend the trial of every divorce case, investigate the charges made, and be prepared to advise the Court as to the merits of the case. He is given power to examine witnesses or parties. West Virginia makes provision for a divorce commissioner with similar duties to investigate, appear at trials, and take necessary steps to prevent fraud and deception.

PROPERTY AND DECEDENTS' ESTATES.

Pennsylvania provided for the appointment and expense of a commission of three persons to codify the law of decedents' estates.

Oklahoma and Wyoming provided by statute that no person who is convicted of taking or having caused to be taken the life of another shall inherit or take by devise or legacy from or receive any insurance on the life of the deceased.

Several States removed the common law disability from women and gave them further power to own, control, and devise their own property. In Pennsylvania two acts give married women the right to appoint testamentary guardians both of the person and of the estate of their children. New Jersey makes the paraphernalia of a married woman the sole and separate property.

Texas passed an act providing that all property or moneys received as compensation for personal injuries sustained by a wife shall be her separate property except actual and necessary expenses accumulated against the husband for medical bills and other expenses incident to the collection of the compensation. New Mexico removes from the control of the husband the real property of the wife and provides that only during coverture shall the husband have the sole power of disposition of the personal property, and that either husband or wife may convey or mortgage separate property without the other joining in the conveyance or mortgage. In Maine a conveyance of his or her property by either the husband or wife, if they have lived apart for good cause for over a year, is permitted.

By an amendment in Pennsylvania no wife who has for one year or more previous to the death of the husband wilfully or maliciously deserted her husband shall have the right to claim any title to the real or personal estate after his decease.

Two States, Washington and Indiana, passed laws in an attempt to provide for a more expedient settlement of decedents' estates. Indiana provides that in case a non-resident entitled to own real estate by descent or devise is absent from the State for more than seven years and makes no claim during that time upon such real estate, he is presumed to be dead and the real estate which he would have taken is to descend to his heirs. A novel and questionable extension of the powers of the Court is contained in Chapter 39 of Washington, which provides that the property of an absentee whose whereabouts or continued life is uncertain, after notice by publication, may be taken charge of by the Court upon petition and administered by an appointed trustee in a manner somewhat similar to the administration of the property of a deceased person, but without sale or distribution until the absentee has been gone for five years.

A very important act was passed by the New Jersey Legislature providing that the father and mother shall take as tenants by the entirety on the death of a person without leaving lawful issue or brother or sister.

FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION.

Many States passed acts providing for punishment in cases of fraudulent advertisements. West Virginia, Idaho, Oklahoma, and Montana make it a misdemeanor for any such advertisements to be circulated. Colorado, Missouri, Kansas, and New York specify that the advertisement must not be untrue and misleading, or circulated for the purpose of disposing of property or service or to make a sale. The Kansas act is not to apply to the publisher of any publication who publishes or circulates it without knowledge that it is false. Another act of New York makes it a misdemeanor to affix in any manner a business or commercial advertisement on any property of another without his consent or on any object within the limits of a highway. The act contains an interesting provision for its enforcement in the provision that any advertisement within the highway in violation of its provisions may be removed or destroyed by any one.

Acts providing for punishment in cases of the making or using of false statements in writing to procure property or credit were passed by West Virginia and Wyoming. A New Hampshire act provides that any person who either directly or indirectly makes any false statement in writing, respecting the financial condition or means or ability of himself or any other person, with intent that it shall be relied upon, shall be guilty of a crime. Oklahoma contains a similar provision.

Kansas provides that the obtaining with intent to cheat and defraud of money or of property by fraudulent representation or device or by check or other written instrument or "spurious coin or metal" shall be punished. Tennessee makes it a misdemeanor for any person to give a second mortgage upon property without giving information to the mortgagee that there is a first or previous mortgage and to whom the same is made.

SALES.

Several of the States accepted the Uniform Sales act. A list of these States is contained under a discussion of uniform legislation.

Three States adopted acts prohibiting the sale of merchandise, goods, and chattels in bulk in fraud of creditors, New Jersey, Kansas and Colorado.

FOREIGN LOANS IN UNITED STATES.

GREAT BRITAIN'S action in closing her money markets to loans other than those floated by her allies has been justified by current events, but it has had the effect of turning other needy nations to the United States for financial aid. (London Statist, July 10, 1915.) These loans are as follows:

|                                         |             |                                                   |              |
| Swedish Government 2-year notes.....    | $5,000,000 | Republic of Panama 30-year 5 per cent. bonds..... | $3,000,000  |
| Argentine National 1-3-year loan.....   | 15,000,000  | Swiss Government 1-5-year notes.....              | 15,000,000   |
| Argentine 5-year 6 per cent. bonds..... | 25,000,000  |                                                   |              |
| Norway short-term loan.....             | 3,000,000   |                                                   |              |
| Bolivian loan.....                      | 1,000,000   | Total.....                                        | $67,000,000 |

The significant fact which these figures reveal is that almost two-thirds of this type of financing has been consummated by Latin-American countries. The $25,000,000 of Argentine 6 per cent. bonds floated in London was only one-half of the total issue.

To the foregoing may be added the $85,500,000 Canadian loans placed in the United States.

Since the outbreak of the great European war the United States has made formal loans to foreign countries to the amount of $257,090,000. Of this total $131,090,000 went to Canada, $44,000,000 to Latin America, and $82,000,000 to Europe. This large figure does not, however, express the sum total of all our loans to foreign countries recently. The rapidity and volume of recent European purchases in this country have not permitted the floating of formal loans. Instead, credits have been organized here on behalf of foreign purchases and payments for merchandise have been made against these credits, many of which have been bank credits. The total amount of such credits cannot, of course, be given with accuracy, but it is likely that they exceed $250,000,000. (From a bulletin issued by the Department of Commerce.)

Further specific loans made in the United States as follows: October 15, 1915, Anglo-French loan, $500,000,000; Italian Government, $25,000,000.

According to compilations made early in November, 1915, the total of loans obtained in the United States by foreign countries since the outbreak of the war was nearing the $900,000,000 mark, and it was not unlikely that credit arrangements then under negotiation would largely increase this figure. The latest French credit for $15,000,000, announced November 4, brings the total of foreign credits to $879,000,000, of which $35,000,000 has matured and been paid off. France alone has borrowed $118,000,000 here, not including her share of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan; Canada has obtained approximately $115,000,000 in various loans, Argentina has borrowed $40,000,000, and Russia $25,000,000. Other countries which have obtained small loans here include Germany, Switzerland, Sweden, Norway, Republic of Panama, and Bolivia. Of all the money borrowed by these countries less than one-fourth has gone from the United States. The big portion has been left here to cover the cost of purchases.

GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.

AVERAGE ANNUAL NET PRICE OF GOVERNMENT BONDS OF ENGLAND, FRANCE, GERMANY AND UNITED STATES.

The quotations for English consols, French rentes and German Imperial loans from 1883 to 1905 are taken from the 'Materialien zur Beurteilung der Zusammenhänge zwischen dem öffentlichen Schuldenwesen und dem Kapitalmarkt,' Berlin, 1908. Figures for more recent years compiled by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce from returns of the Bank of England and data given in the Statistisches Jahrbuch des Deutschen Reichs. The quotations for United States bonds were compiled by the United States Treasury Department.

The returns are for the fiscal year 1915 unless otherwise indicated. * Belongs to the State educational funds. † Including Public Service corporations, railroad, telegraph, or other public utilities. ‡ Year 1914. (a) Personalty, 100 per cent. (b) In Pennsylvania, real none, personal none. The State's revenue is principally derived from tax on capital stock of corporations, the rate being 5 mills on the actual value of the capital stock; tax on corporate loans, the rate being 4 mills on the par value. It also collects 8 mills on the gross receipts of railroad, railway, electric light, telephone and telegraph, and express companies. (c) There is no State tax on property in Delaware, consequently no assessed valuation.

STATE REVENUES AND EXPENDITURES.

(From a bulletin issued by the Department of Commerce, August 13, 1915.)

A new line of work has just been undertaken by the Bureau of the Census, namely, the collection and publication of statistics of State revenues, expenditures, assets and liabilities, tax levies, etc.

When the ALMANAC went to press the work for 1914-1915 had not progressed far enough to yield statistics of any value, but a few figures from the Census Bureau's recently published report on wealth, debt, and taxation are of interest in this connection. Between 1903 and 1913 the revenues of the Federal Government increased 45 per cent., while its expenditures for governmental cost increased by 54.5 per cent. During the same period the revenues of the States increased by 94.3 per cent., and their expenditures for governmental cost by 105.9 per cent.; the revenues of the counties increased by 85.8 per cent., and their expenditures by 95.2 per cent., and the revenues of incorporated places of 8,000 and over increased by 98.3 per cent., and their expenditures by 103.2 per cent.

For every division of Government the increase in expenditures was greater than the increase in revenues, and, except in the case of the Federal Government, which showed a small surplus, the revenues in 1913 were less than the expenditures for governmental cost. The surplus for the Federal Government was about $1,000,000, or approximately one-tenth of 1 per cent. of the revenues; the deficit for the States was $15,000,000, or 4 per cent. of the revenues; the deficit for the counties was $15,000,000, or 4 per cent. of the revenues; and the deficit for incorporated places of 8,000 and over was $129,000,000, or 13 per cent. of the revenues. These deficits, however, are more than accounted for by outlays for permanent improvements. The outlays of the Federal Government in 1913 amounted to nearly 7 per cent. of the total expenditures for governmental cost; of the States, to nearly 13 per cent.; of the counties, to over 23 per cent.; and of the municipalities of 8,000 and over, to over 31 per cent. The excess of expenditures over revenues furnishes an approximate measure of the rate at which the State, county, and municipal Governments are increasing their indebtedness from year to year and thus shifting to the future the burden of paying for present permanent improvements.

* Estimates for the United Kingdom prior to 1910 were for coin only; these figures include $100,000,000 for bullion in banks. † The figures for the stock of the gold in Germany are based upon an estimate by Dr. Arnold, a director of the Reichsbank, of 3,000,000,000 marks in German coin in the country at the end of 1910. At the close of 1913 the Reichsbank held $114,873,080 in bullion and foreign coin.

"Lawful money" includes gold coin, silver dollars, United States notes and Treasury notes. United States notes are by regulation receivable for customs so long as they continue redeemable in coin. There are still in use small amounts of $1 and $2 national bank notes also $500 and $1,000 silver certificates. Treasury notes were issued for purchases of silver bullion, which was coined into dollars wherewith the notes are being redeemed as rapidly as practicable. The issue of national bank notes is practically dependent upon the market price of United States bonds. When the premium is high it is not profitable to issue notes.

HOLDINGS OF STOCK EXCHANGE SECURITIES.

(From M. Neymarck's Report issued in 1914.)

Great Britain, Germany, and France hold more than 330 milliard francs (franc=19.3 cents; hence this sum = $63,690,000,000) of paper securities out of the 570 to 600 milliards ($110.-$110,000,000) to $115,800,000,000 which belong to the various nations inhabiting the various countries of the globe. These 330 milliards taken at 4 per cent. bring them in a minimum interest of 13,200,000,000 francs ($2,509,000,000). On their markets more than 600 milliards are negotiable of the 515 milliards of the negotiable securities quoted in the different markets of the world.

PREMIUMS ON GOLD.

GOLD sold first at a premium early in January, 1862, the New York banks having suspended specie payments December 28, 1861. The highest point reached was 285, July 11, 1864. The premium on gold disappeared at the end of 1878, just prior to resumption of specie payments.

Following is given a table of the high and low prices of gold from 1862 to 1878 inclusive:

The value of a membership in an exchange depends in a large measure upon the prevailing state of business and the market level of securities.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE SEATS.

(Corrected to November 12, 1915.)

Before 1868, seats on the New York Stock Exchange were not transferred by purchase and sale. An initiation fee of $3,000 was, however, required from members duly elected by the board. In 1868, the transfer of seats began to have a market valuation, for in that year the present system of transfer was instituted.

PAN-AMERICAN FINANCIAL CONFERENCE.

(Convened by authority of the Congress of the United States under the direction of William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury and Chairman of the Conference, May 24-29, 1915, in Washington.)

REPORT of the General Committee on Uniformity of Laws Relating to Trade, Commerce, and International Commercial Court, appointed to consider and report upon (1) the subjects to be dealt with by the General Committee, and (2) the organization necessary to carry into effect the resolutions of the Conference.

SUBJECTS.

The subjects which should, in the opinion of the committee, be dealt with in the report of the committee to the Conference are:

1. The establishment of a gold standard of value.
2. Bills of exchange, commercial paper, and bills of lading.

3. Uniform (a) classification of merchandise, (b) customs regulations, (c) consular certificates and invoices, (d) port charges.

4. Uniform regulations for commercial travellers. Consider in this relation the question of a certificate to be issued by the proper department of the Government of the country from which the traveller comes that the bearer is a bona fide commercial traveller, this certificate to be properly viséd.

5. To what extent further legislation may be necessary concerning trade-marks, patents, and copyrights.

6. The establishment of a uniform low rate of postage and of charges for money orders and parcel post between the American countries.

7. The extension of the procedure of arbitration for the adjustment of commercial disputes.

ORGANIZATION.

1. That for the purpose of carrying into effect the resolutions of the Conference, and particularly for bringing about uniformity of laws on the subjects embraced in those resolutions, there be established an International High Commission, to be composed of not more than nine members, resident in each country, to be appointed by the Minister of Finance of such country. The aggregate members thus appointed shall constitute the commission.

2. That for the purpose of aiding the International High Commission and co-ordinating its work, there be created in the Pan-American Union a bureau whose chief shall receive a salary of not less than $5,000 (gold) per annum. Expenses of the bureau, including the salaries of the chief and his assistants, to be paid by the Pan-American Union, in whose budget a corresponding increase shall be included.

3. The American Governments are requested to instruct their diplomatic and consular officers and their commercial attachés to co-operate with the International High Commission and with the bureau.

The bureau shall be authorized to obtain in each country such expert assistance as may be necessary to the prosecution of its work, the expenses thus incurred to be treated as a part of the expenses of the bureau.

4. The bureau shall make to the governing board of the Pan-American Union, for distribution among the Governments concerned, and to the International High Commission, an annual report.

The bureau shall make to the next International American Conference a full report of its proceedings up to that time, with recommendations as to future work.

WILLIAM C. REDFIELD,
Chairman of Committee.

After the report of the Committee on Uniformity of Laws had been read and unanimously adopted, John Bassett Moore presented the following additional resolutions, which were unanimously adopted at the afternoon session of Saturday, May 29, 1915:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Conference—

1. That the local members of the International High Commission should be immediately appointed by their respective Ministers of Finance.

2. That the members of the International High Commission appointed in each country should immediately begin preparatory work, and that the various Governments be requested, through their appropriate departments, to co-operate in the work of the commission.

3. That pending the establishment of the bureau in the Pan-American Union, as recommended in the report of the Committee on Uniformity of Laws, the President of this Conference be requested immediately to appoint a general secretary to the International High Commission to perform such duties as are necessary in the preparatory work of the commission.

4. That the United States members of the International High Commission should, as soon as practicable, proceed to visit the other American countries to meet the members of the commission there resident.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD.

The new banking and currency law, known as the Federal Reserve act, was passed December 23, 1913.

Under the system known as the National Banking System, which was inaugurated at the latter end of the Civil War, the National banknote currency was based upon Government bonds deposited in the Treasury, and the currency thus issued has been classed by economists as bond-secured currency. This plan was evolved not only to nationalize and unify the currency, which had theretofore consisted of notes issued by State banks, but as well to create a market for United States bonds, and in this way to sustain their value. It was entirely successful for the latter purpose, but has outworn its usefulness as a banking system because of its entire want of elasticity.

The Federal Reserve act is the result of a long discussion by statesmen, financiers, economists and bankers, and is a constructive measure based upon and growing out of many bills which have been introduced within the past twenty years. Under it twelve cities, known as Federal Reserve cities, are established, and the (continental) United States is divided into twelve geographical districts, each district containing one of the reserve cities. The twelve districts and their respective reserve cities are as follows:

| Dist. No. 1.. Boston, Mass.     | Dist. No. 5.. Richmond, Va.  | Dist. No. 9.. Minneapolis, Minn.   |
| Dist. No. 2.. New York, N. Y.   | Dist. No. 6.. Atlanta, Ga.   | Dist. No. 10.. Kansas City, Mo.    |
| Dist. No. 3.. Philadelphia, Pa. | Dist. No. 7.. Chicago, Ill.  | Dist. No. 11.. Dallas, Tex.        |
| Dist. No. 4.. Cleveland, Ohio.  | Dist. No. 8.. St. Louis, Mo. | Dist. No. 12.. San Francisco, Cal. |

Every National bank is required to become a stockholder in the Federal Reserve bank of the district in which it is situated, and any State bank or trust company which complies with certain specified requirements is permitted to become a member bank. There are at the present time 7,621 National banks in the United States which have thus been required to become member banks. Twenty-seven State banks are also members.

The largest district, in respect to number of member banks—the seventh or Chicago district—has 987 member banks. The smallest district—the sixth or Atlanta district—has 385 member banks. The number of member banks may largely increase in the near future from the addition of State banks and trust companies as member banks.

Each member bank is required to subscribe to the stock of the Federal Reserve bank of its district in the amount equal to 6 per centum of its paid-up capital stock and surplus. The Federal Reserve bank does not do business with the public in the sense that banks usually do; it may better be described as a bank of banks. It is made a depository for a certain proportion of the reserve of all the member banks, and in addition may also be a depository for Government funds. An important function is as a bank to issue and redemption of currency, for it may secure from the Treasury Government notes known as Federal Reserve notes, which it is authorized to issue against commercial paper with a minimum gold reserve of 40 per centum. Besides this, Federal Reserve banks are granted certain powers in the matter of operations in the open market, such as the purchase of commercial paper, foreign exchange, etc., and in a general way are expected to perform important functions as clearing houses between their member banks.

Each Federal Reserve bank has nine directors, three of whom represent the member banks, three represent commercial, agricultural or other industrial pursuit (these six being chosen by the member banks), and finally three Government directors chosen by the Federal Reserve Board. These nine directors are charged with the duty of appointing all necessary officers, including the active manager of the bank, who is designated as its President or Governor.

Under the act the whole system is under the supervision of a central board in Washington, known as the Federal Reserve Board, consisting of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency acting ex-officio, and five members named by the President with the approval of the Senate. The five members first selected (who took oath of office August 10, 1914) are as follows:

Charles S. Hamlin, Governor, term of office, 2 years.
Frederic A. Delano, Vice-Governor, term of office, 6 years.

Paul M. Warburg, term of office, 4 years.
W. P. G. Harding, term of office, 8 years.
A. C. Miller, term of office, 10 years.

At the termination of the term of office of these five members all subsequent appointees will be named for ten-year terms, except, of course, those who may be selected to fill unexpired terms.

The salary of the members of this board is $12,000 per annum each, which salaries, together with all other expenses of operating the system, are assessed against the Federal Reserve banks in proportion to their capital stock and surplus. Secretary to the board, H. Parker Willis; Assistant Secretary and Fiscal Agent, Sherman Allen. Headquarters, Washington, D. C.

The capital of the Reserve banks of the system follows:

FEDERAL EMPLOYMENT OFFICES.

The Department of Labor, through the Division of Information of the Bureau of Immigration, has recently established Distribution Branches throughout the country for the purpose on the one hand of developing the welfare of the wage earners of the United States and improving their opportunities for profitable employment, and on the other hand of affording to employers a method whereby they may make application for such help as they need, either male or female, citizens or alien residents, and have their wants supplied through said distribution branches. No fee is charged employer or employé for this service.

Manufacturers, contractors, farmers, and, in fact, all employers of labor, may now utilize the Government machinery to supply their wants in this direction.

The country has been divided into eighteen zones, thus bringing the distributing points near to the places where help is needed. The applications for laborers of all kinds and the applications for employment are cleared through one office in each zone. Many of these head offices have sub-branches under their jurisdiction.

Applications for workers should be addressed to the Distribution Branch, Immigration Service, in the city named in this list as the headquarters of the zone in which the help is required.

All of the postmasters throughout the United States are co-operating in this work by distributing application blanks both to employers and employes. The appropriate blanks may, therefore, be had on request to any postmaster. However, in those cities designated as zone headquarters, application for blanks or information should be made direct to the Inspector-in-Charge of the Distribution Branch at the office of the Immigration Service at the address indicated in the foregoing table.

The present system of distribution has only been in operation since the first of February, 1915. The number of applications for positions during the five months (February 1 to June 30, 1915) was 76,503. The number directed to employment during the same period was 10,916.

THE KNIGHTS OF KING ARTHUR.

The Knights of King Arthur is a church boys' club having over 3,000 chapters, enrolling 150,000 boys. It is a fraternity, private but not secret, self-governing and under control of the local church. Based on the oldest Christian legend, that of the Round Table, it was founded in 1893 by Rev. William Byron Forbush. The councillors of the order are: President—G. Stanley Hall; Hon. Ben B. Lindsey and Rev. Frank Graham Taylor. Headquarters—Oberlin, Ohio. Dascomb Forbush, National Seneschal.

LIFE INSURANCE PROGRESS IN THE UNITED STATES.

It is within the past seventy years that the vast business of life insurance in the United States has been developed. The experimental stage was ended and the era of advance was opened when, in 1843, the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York began business, its first policy having been issued on February 1 of that year.

Since then a large number of life insurance companies have been established. The following list includes those now transacting business which had their inception between 1843 and 1860 inclusive, arranged according to the date of the first policy issued:

Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1843, February 1; New England Mutual Life Insurance Company (1), 1844, February 1; New York Life Insurance Company, 1845, April 17; Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company (2), 1845, May 6; State Mutual Life Assurance Company (3), 1845, June 1; Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1846, December 15; Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1847, June 25; Union Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1849, October 1; National Life Insurance Company of Vermont, 1850, February 1; United States Life Insurance Company, 1850, March 4; Aetna Life Insurance Company, 1850, August 1; Manhattan Life Insurance Company, 1850, August 1; Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1851, August 2; Phenix Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1851, September 11; Berkshire Life Insurance Company (4), 1851, October 27; Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, 1858, November 25; Equitable Life Assurance Society, 1859, July 28; Washington Life Insurance Company, 1860, February 2; Home Life Insurance Company, 1860, May 1; Germania Life Insurance Company, 1860, July 16.

How life insurance has progressed since the early part of 1843 is shown in the subjoined table by periods of years as indicated, assessment insurance not being included.

* Annual statements of the fire insurance companies are rendered to the insurance departments during the month of January; therefore the statistics of condition January 1, 1916, were not ready when this publication went to press.

† The New York law requires a deposit of $200,000 from foreign companies with the Insurance Department. This is treated by the department as "deposit capital," and the surplus stated in the next column is "surplus beyond deposit capital" and other liabilities.
